Style-Smiles --- by Gretchen

"I can't figure out what's wrong with this hat—my husband likes it." The new hats are always full of surprises. With this return of the picturesque, you'll be hearing more of the male voice raised in approval. They come in beautiful straws, and anything from a lone orchid or geranium to a bed of field or house flowers perched on their crowns. Particularly enchanting is this capeline of black leghorn, apparently crownless, with four roses, natural as life, enthroned in the exact center of its fluid lines.—Copyright 1937, Esquire Features, Inc.
