Popular Operas On List Presented In Portland

DORTLAND'S annual festival of grand opera will begin tomorrow night when the San Carlo opera company opens its five day engagement at the Paramount theatre with a performance of "Carmen." The selection of operas is an especially happy one, all seven are familiar and will please a widely number of people.

Bizet's "Carmen" will be the first offering of the San Carlo Opera Co. Coe Glade has been engaged as guest artist to sing the title role; Leola Turner, another newcomer with the troupe, will sing the role of Micaela; Dimitri Onofrei, popular tenor of past seasons, will sing the role of Don Jose; and Mostyn Thomas, Welsh baritone, will sing Escamillo.

On Thursday the company will present Verdi's blood-and-thunder musical drama, "Il Trovatore," with its familiar arias, dramatic concerted pieces and famous choruses. Audiences will admire the tunefulness with which Manrico (Aroldo Lindi) and Leonora (Bianca Saroya) express their sentiments in song. Grace Angelau will make her first Portland appearance as Azucena, the gypsy woman; Mario Valle, favorite of past seasons, will sing the part of Count
