

Helen Crawford Funeral Is Held

Lebanon Woman Was First Elocution Teacher At Corvallis

LEBANON, April 1.—Helen Virginia, seventh daughter and youngest child of Dr. G. F. and Mary E. Gilmore Crawford, pioneers of 1852, was born on her father's donation land claim on Albany Prairie, October 15, 1866. She passed away at her home in Lebanon March 20, at the age of 70 years. Funeral services were held at the Lowe mortuary Thursday afternoon, Rev. D. V. Poling officiating. Miss Crawford was a graduate of Albany college and in 1893 was one of the first graduates of the School of Oratory of Willamette university. She later attended school of expression in Chicago and in 1898 when the board of O. A. C. established a chair of elocution and physical culture, Miss Crawford was employed as first teacher, a position which she held for 12 years during which time many leading Oregon citizens came under her instruction. Had First Nut Orchard In 1909 she came to Linn county and as the result of her study

College Hall Named for Former Salem Woman

Flavia Hall, residential hall under construction at Marylhurst College, Oswego, which has been named in honor of a former Salem resident, Mother Mary Flavia, Provincial Mother of the Sisters of the Holy Names. Mother Flavia attended the Sacred Heart Academy here before taking vows in the order.

of walnut growth which was then an experiment at the college she planted what is said to be the first walnut orchard in Linn county—an orchard that is still bearing.

She built a home in Lebanon and was always interested in civic affairs; she was the first president of the Lebanon Civic club; a member of the D. A. R., of Chapter V, P. E. O., the Presbyterian church and the study club.

She is survived by five nephews, George Crawford of Pendleton, Roy of Mountain Home, Ida, Ralph, Vancouver, Wash.; Harry, Salem and Bert, Albany; one niece, Mrs. Lillian Rader, Rainier.

Residential Quarters at Marylhurst To Bear Name of Flavia Hall After Educator Who Formerly Lived Here

When the new residential hall at Marylhurst College, Oswego, is dedicated upon its completion in September, it will bear the name Flavia Hall in honor of Mother Mary Flavia, who was educated at the Sacred Heart Academy in Salem. She is now Provincial Mother of the Sisters of the Holy Names and is at the Provincial House in Oswego, engaged in writing a book of memoirs.

The new building will stand as a permanent memorial to her 60 years of service in the order and her work towards development of educational advantages for women in Oregon. Mother Flavia will formally celebrate her diamond jubilee at Marylhurst on August 5.

After finishing her work at the Salem academy, the young religious became one of the first postulants from the West, teaching in Baker and Jacksonville under pioneer conditions. From 1888 to 1909 she was intimately associated with St. Mary's Academy, Portland. Her efforts led to the organization of Marylhurst College, only standard four-year college for women in the Pacific Northwest, in 1930.

Flavia Hall, a two-story structure made necessary by rapidly increasing enrollment, will accommodate 32 students in living quarters, will contain a large ballroom and also house student body offices and class rooms.

Gardner Recalls Early Business Days at Stayton

STAYTON, April 1.—Because Stayton had no banking facilities in the early days, as much as $2000 in postal money orders were written before breakfast in those days by A. D. Gardner, Sr., Gardner reminisced here Monday at a reception given at his home in honor of his 82nd birthday anniversary.

Gardner, born on his father's donation land claim near Mehama in 1855, came here in 1876 to enter the drug store business. He also managed the postoffice here, and it was the custom of merchants at that time to send their money away by postal money order.

When Gardner resigned as postmaster, a petition bearing the names of every resident in this community, was filed with the postal authorities, asking that the resignation be refused.

Later Gardner started the present Gardner Flour Mills and took medals at both Omaha and Chicago exposition. The orders for the flour far exceeded the capacity of the mill, the records show. He also filed on the water rights of the Santiam river and formulated plans for the construction of the present Gardner and Salem ditches.

Social Events Are Stayton Features

STAYTON, April 1.—A large crowd attended the annual Easter Monday card party given at the Foresters' hall by the women of the Catholic parish for the benefit of the Catholic Young people's club. Bridge, "500" and pinocle were in play at 37 tables. The high score for bridge was held by Mr. and Mrs. Miles Austin; "500", Mrs. Henry Gacher and John Dozier; and pinocle, Mrs. Fred Terry and Ernest Dozier. Leonard Thoma received the special prize.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Champ and family of Bonneville, former residents were guests of friends Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Avery Murphy are visiting relatives in southern Oregon this week.

S. J. McKee Sustains Injured Back and Arm; Roberts, Jr., Has Job

AUMSVILLE, April 1.—S. J. McKee sustained some bad injuries while working on his turkey brooder house south of Salem. While putting up rafters, the ladder gave way and he fell 10 feet to the cement floor. He struck on his back with his arms under his body, causing a badly sprained wrist, and a torn muscle in his shoulder.

Laurence Roberts Jr., has gone to Corvallis where he will take up work at a position secured at Oregon State college, in dairying.

Loot From Rickreall Store Is About $65, Owner Price Declares

RICKREALL, April 1.—D. V. Price, proprietor of the store here which was robbed sometime Tuesday night, estimates his loss at $65, including candy bars, cigarettes, a box of pocket knives, four cases of eggs, a sack of sugar, and pennies from a bank. Entry was made through a rear window. Deputy Sheriff Williams found well defined finger prints.

Businessmen Take Over Scout Troop

STAYTON, April 1.—Assurance that Boy Scout activities would be continued in Stayton was explained and subscriptions taken.

30 business men attended a breakfast Monday morning when the plan for sponsoring the troop was explained and subscriptions taken. Tuesday night the sponsors held a meeting when Grant Murphy was elected chairman of directors with Virgil Tuel, G. W. DeJadin, James Say and Floyd Crabtree. The committee is to meet next Monday night.

when the local post of the American Legion, sponsors for the past three years, decided to discontinue the sponsorship. A move was started right away the business men to underwrite the troop budget. Bob Wood will no doubt be named as scoutmaster.
