

4-Cent Climb Made by Corn

Reaches Highest Point in 12 Years; Rye and Oats Up Too

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP)—In a turbulent outburst of speculative buying, corn late today shot upward 4 cents a bushel, the greatest permissible limit, and hoisted all other grains.

Urgent big purchasing of corn for immediate shipment out of Chicago, where supplies are almost at the vanishing point, gave impetus to flurried demand for futures deliveries. The market was especially the case with traders who are short of corn to fill contract requirements in May.

From the outset, corn prices today showed an independent upward tendency, and in the face of sharp temporary setbacks of wheat values as well as tumbles of securities, reached new peaks unequalled before in 12 years. Unusual scarcity of domestic supplies of corn here and elsewhere received emphasis from notice that Argentine corn shipments to the United States this week amounted to only 185,000 bushels.

Futures 4 Cents Up
At the close, corn futures in Chicago were 15-8 to 4 cents higher than yesterday's finish. May, $1.25 3/4; July, $1.17 3/4; Sept., $1.10 1/2; with wheat 1 1/2-1 3/4 up, May, $1.42 3/4-1.43 1/2; July, $1.27 3/4; Sept., $1.24 3/4. Oats 3/4-1/2 advanced, May, 49 5/8-1/2, and rye at 1-2 1/2 cents bulge. Provisions recently varied from 7 cents setback to 7 cents gain.

Rye and oats sympathized with upturns of wheat and corn. Soy beans rivaled corn, and jumped 4 cents, the allowable limit.

Provisions averaged lower, but the unexpected heavy increases of stocks on hand in warehouses.

Group of CCC Boys Are Making Preparations for Opening Camp Mill City

SILVER FALLS, April 2.—A group of CCC boys have been working at Camp Mill City this week, making preparations for a new camp. The Crabtree camp has been transferred here and the boys are expected to arrive this week. The local camp has been abandoned for several months and has been under the hands of a caretaker.

A few buildings at the camp collapsed during the heavy snow and are now being repaired.

Open House Is Slated Tuesday at Silverton For Alta's Beauty Shop

SILVERTON, April 2.—Mrs. Alta Hewitt will have open house Tuesday in her new location at 105 and 106 Olsen building. Mrs. Hewitt will move to her new location over the weekend. She is issuing a welcome to all old and new customers to attend the opening.

Alta's beauty shop has been located in the Hatzberg building on South Water street for the past several years.

Steel, Copper In Sharp Drop

Other Leaders Down 1 to 4 Points After FDR Message

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Stocks topped one to more than five points today following a warning signal by President Roosevelt on soaring prices and production of durable goods.

Steel and copper led the speedy slide as the chief executive particularly referred to these industries as among those having hoisted prices unwarrantedly.

While corporation leaders were not altogether in agreement with the presidential criticism, they noted the announcement the government will make an effort to shift spending for recovery and relief from durable materials to consumers' products as a means of more evenly spreading national income.

Securities Break Again
Buying forces were further intimidated by an early break in U. S. government securities.

In view of the sharp crack suffered by the leaders, the turnover was considered moderate. Transfers totalled 1,637,820 shares compared with 1,207,750 yesterday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 9 of a point at 70.8. Of 873 issues changing hands, 618 declined, 101 advanced and 54 were unchanged.

Conspicuous on the tumble were U. S. steel at 115 1/2, Bethlehem 95 1/2, Chrysler 121 1/2, General Motors 61 1/2, Anacosta 62, Kennecott 61 1/2, Western Union 72, Union Pacific 141 1/2, Pennsylvania 46 1/2, Westinghouse Airbrake 49, Deere 122 1/2, and Goodrich 49 1/2.

Wool in Boston
BOSTON, April 2.—(AP)—(USDA)—Special quotations were steady to firm today but volume of business was light.

Consolidated quotations reported were on wool for placing out immediate requirements. Fine Ohio delaine fleece wools brought 44 1/2 to 45 cents in the grease. Twelve-month Texas wools had calls for limited quantities at around $1.05, according to basis for average lengths.

Mills and topmakers showed little interest in wool. Contracts for western coarse grown wools.

Brief Awaited in Fruit Co-op Case

Gardeners' and Ranchers' Mart

No decision in the Woodburn Fruit Growers' Cooperative association suit against Ray-Malling, Inc. is likely in the near future since defense briefs have not yet been filed with Circuit Judge Arle G. Walker of McMinnville.

W. C. Winslow, plaintiff's counsel, reported yesterday. After the defense brief has been filed the plaintiff will be given time to file a reply brief.

Judge Walker came here from McMinnville a month ago to hear the testimony in the case and then took the matter under advisement with briefs to be submitted later. The fruit growers are asking damages for loganberries they allege the Ray Malling company refused to accept and an additional sum for alleged non-payment of money due under the contract.

State Committee To Establish '37 Farmers' Bases

With the sign-up of work sheets complete in all counties, members of the C.A.A. committee are preparing to assemble all of the county listing sheets at Corvallis and establish the 1937 soil depleting bases.

Members of the committee will meet April 27 with E. C. Carter, representing the western region, to make the tabulations and to make the necessary adjustments from last year caused by the change in the classification of a number of crops.

For example, all clean cultivated orchards are placed in the neutral classification this year as are a number of other crops of importance to Oregon.

Complete tabulation of work sheets signed up in Oregon's 36 counties has not been made, but estimates from preliminary reports are that around 35,000 have been filled out this year, as compared with 22,000 last year.

Clackamas, Marion, Umatilla and Linn counties are expected to show the largest number, with 2500 or more work sheets each.

An organization of technical field men needed to carry on the detailed farm mapping work throughout the state is now being set up.

"Leisure to Repent" by URSULA PARROTT

CHAPTER XVI
Gilbert looked at Denise. Tenuous his hold upon her had been and he knew it, but he had never known now tenuous. He said slowly: "I suppose I've given you reason to hate me?"

Then she wept as he had never seen her weep. Her great sobs shook her thin shoulders. As if—as if he were torturing her!

He said aloud: "I simply cannot stand this."

"Then let me go. Let me go." Her face was disfigured with tears, but like a child's face still.

A kind of despair came to him. It was futile. She had never wanted him, never would want him, though he held her to the last hour of the year she'd promised, that year in which he had meant to make her so very happy.

Yet if he let her go home, not to Felicia, of course, but to that man she wanted, she would go to no happiness. He had no doubts about the meaning of Michael Rendale's cable message. Complete realization that if she went home, she would be brought face to face with an impossible situation at least, and with complete tragedy if as he had never separated himself from her, she would be obliged to complete her marriage to him.

"Why are you suddenly being so horrible?"

"Why not? Let me say what I have to say. Then you can go."

She interrupted, "To America?"

"To bed."

"I detest you, Gilbert."

"You said that before."

"I know. I know. I suppose I don't really mean it. You've been kind to me, up to now."

"Well then, for that, if for no other reason, will you listen to me?"

"Do you realize that we haven't said 'Keith Sheldie' once in the last twelve hours, though it's he to whom you really want to go?"

She did not deny it. She said softly: "I cannot help it, Gilbert. Blame me as much as you like. You must and can help it." He drew a long breath, though. "She will hate me now for a long time, perhaps for always!"

"You married me, not him, because he did not want to marry you, I judge. There couldn't be any other reason. So, he could not have cared about you as much as you cared about him."

"That isn't true. In his fashion he did care. Just as much."

"Why didn't you marry him, then?"

She said, indignantly: "I shouldn't have believed you capable—"

"Neither should I believe myself to be. I'm capable of a great deal in the effort to keep you from making a very complete fool of yourself."

"I wouldn't be. Keith did ask me to marry him, just a few days before I married you."

"Morning was bright over Hyde Park outside the windows, but when she closed her hand together, the dark park lights and the lights on motorcars swinging round and round in Central Park, the very tang of the autumn air, came back to her.

"Gilbert's voice came from a long way off."

"Nice of him. I suppose that was when I was away in Canada."

She opened her eyes: "Yes. But what does that matter? You can make him out a completely impossible person, but he isn't."

Her husband said gently: "No, I don't suppose he is, altogether. But what does that matter? You can make him out a completely impossible person, but he isn't."

"Because of my family, and because—oh, I was afraid I shouldn't be happy, that his father would disapprove. Stop cross-examining me."

"Think of your family now."

"I have. They'll be glad to see me."

He thought: "To the day I die, I shall regret having to do this. But short of locking her up, there's no other way that I can see to keep her off a ship for America." And he said: "Your father owes me about a hundred and eighty thousand dollars."

He saw she could not answer him, and went on evenly: "I suppose you think you've given me enough happiness in six months to be worth it."

Her gaze was level. "I've given you no happiness, Gilbert. You have every right to humiliate me."

"That isn't what I want to do—only to face facts. So, here's another fact: I suppose you think your family will be pleased to see you run off the bedside of your own dear love, with newspaper photographers waiting for pictures as you come out. . . Personally, I think if your parents do manage to survive this dreadful business, Felicia's brought upon them, your appearance with the announcement that you love Keith Sheldie in spite of all, would just about kill them."
