Historic and Modern Are Viewed By Two Monmouth Normal Faculty Members on Round-the-World Tour

MONMOUTH, April 14.—Miss Maude Macpherson, head librarian of Oregon Normal school, and Miss Katherine Arbuthnot, instructor in geography, who recently returned from a round-the-world cruise, have given an interesting review of their travels in the Lamson, student publication of the school.

Said Miss Arbuthnot: "We first stopped in Japan to see the great Buddha at Kamakura. From there we went to Tokyo to visit the Emperor's palace, peer of beautiful buildings."

They found hotel life in Tokyo luxurious. Observing the Japanese celebrating their New Year's festivities was a colorful event. An item of special interest was a nose-guard worn by many Japanese which the travelers concluded must be some sort of protection against the spread of colds.

From Tokyo their itinerary took them to a southern port of Japan where they observed native men, women and children load the ship with coal in bucket-brigade fashion.

At Hongkong the hotels were all so full they were obliged to stay on board their ship. They took a modernized jungle trip by automobile on a good highway.

At Colombo, in Ceylon, they saw a bonafide snake-charmer with a cobra.

See Taj Mahal at Night
Their next stop was at Bombay.

Leaving the boat at Suez, the Monmouth women drove across the desert to Cairo where they saw the Sphinx, rode on a camel, visited El Azar, the University of Cairo in which are enrolled 12,000 students ranging in ages from 9 to 70 years, whose main study is to memorize the Bible.

From India they went to Palestine where they visited Judea; Telaviv, a modern city built by Jews for modern Jews; the Church of the Nativity; the Walling Wall and Rachel's Tomb; the palace where Mary and Martha lived; and the tomb where Lazarus was buried. They also waded in the Dead Sea. They then re-
