Martin Swats at Zimmerman Stand

Bonneville Issue Requires Careful Study, Reply Letter Declares

Replying to a letter from Peter Zimmerman of Yamhill county criticizing his stand on Bonneville power matters, Governor Martin in a reply letter released Monday points out that the voters of Oregon have four separate times rejected the scheme of putting the state in the power business.

"Your letter has the good old-time political flavor and the complete misunderstanding of the existing facts which unfortunately characterize your public utterances on this important question," Governor Martin said.

Opposes Haste
Replying to Zimmerman's statement that the transmission systems should wait well along towards completion, Governor Martin said:

"The federal government evidently does not join you in that thought. Government officials have a realization of the need of careful preparation and study before such transmission systems are built in order that there may be no waste of funds in order that, within the range of economic distribution, Bonneville power will be available to all the users of the state at the lowest cost."

"My own study of the public power problem over a period of many years has convinced me that this entire matter is an involved technical question requiring careful consultation with competent experts. I believe we should proceed carefully and cautiously and it should be obvious that our conclusions and actions should be based not upon political or partisan considerations but upon sound economic principles."

Notes Legislation
Governor Martin said recent developments had convinced him that Oregon's welfare with reference to Bonneville power was in such jeopardy that his presence in Washington was imperative.

"Why attempt to do with state money this work for which the federal government will provide funds?" Governor Martin asked.

"A bill now before congress wisely provides that the administrator and his administrative board shall determine the economic limits of transmission from Bonneville and how and where the transmission lines shall be built. Until this determination is made, expenditures of state funds

Second Bridge at Salem Suggested

Annexation of West Salem Also Visioned in Talk By Col. Robertson

A second bridge across the Willamette river in Salem, extending from the foot of State or Court street, and the annexation of West Salem by this city were some of the future possibilities outlined by Col. C. A. Robertson as spokesman for the community of 1500 people on the west bank of the river in a talk before the Salem chamber of commerce Monday.

West Salem is becoming a "political nuisance to Dallas, which entertains justified fears that West Salem will become larger and demand removal of the county seat, Col. Robertson declared. He said he believed the remainder of Polk county would gladly trade West Salem for some hop land.

Col. Robertson pointed out that West Salem has grown from a population of 204 in 1920 to its present size and that nearly all of its large industrial payroll is spent in Salem.

Particularly to be desired by Salem in connection with the annexation proposal, is the West Salem waterfront, an ideal park site along the river which the state, needing a wider right-of-way for its highway, may purchase and improve, Col. Robertson said.

Drainage Sought
Elmer Cook, West Salem city attorney, said that community's payroll amounted to $189,000. He said three drainage projects are in prospect there, one started on Monday and the others likely to be approved. He mentioned also the need of reversion work along the river.

Another speaker introduced by Mayor John Friesen of West Salem was Mrs. Martin who spoke from the viewpoint of a newcomer and declared West Salem would enjoy the new capitol more than Salem since it will have an unobstructed view.

Willamette university's May queen, Gwen Gallaher, and her princesses, Jane Fisher and Lucille Brainard, were introduced at the luncheon.

Name Contest to End on Thursday

Only Two Days Left; All Suggestions Must Be In Before 5 P. M.

Col. Carlis Abrams announces that but 48 hours remain for those who want to enter the contest for a selection of a name for his beautiful addition to this city. The final date for receiving these suggestions for a name is at 5 p.m. Thursday of this week. Col. Abrams reports that the public is taking keen interest in this selection of a suitable name, as is evidenced by the large number of letters which have been received by him and by Messrs. Aschinger & Thomas, 260 North High street, his sales managers, for which they are very grateful.

The contest committee which is to decide upon the name most suitable, Mayor V. E. Kuhn, Don H. Upjohn and Ralph Klotzing, will meet Thursday night and canvass the letters received and decide upon the most suitable name, and on Saturday at 11 a.m. in the big tent on the grounds in front of the city hall, Mayor Kuhn will announce the decision and present the prizes to the successful contestants.

Urges View of Site
Colonel Abrams suggests that the contestants drive over the beautiful tract and become imbued with its beauties and its advantages as a home site and perhaps by so doing the inspiration may come that will suggest an appropriate name. This property is reached from the Salem-Silverton highway by a road near the Beechler in a t-o-n through a beautiful oak grove.

Col. Abrams offers a grand prize of $25,000 in cash to the one naming the title to be accepted and eleven other prizes in credits on the purchase of lots in the addition. The colonel reports that there are no strings to the contest or to the prizes offered and it costs nothing to enter the contest.

"In the city and out of the city," "All city conveniences and all country freedom" are some short sentences which Messrs. Aschinger & Thomas are using to properly expressing the advantages of this addition and these points should appeal particularly to the one desiring country life. Residents in this addition are in the Salem school district and have facilities of the city in almost every way.

HONOR TO A GREAT ATHLETE
LARRUPING LOU GEHRIG
OF THE WORLD'S CHAMPION NEW YORK YANKEES

THIRTEEN YEARS in the big league. "Rookie" Gehrig signed with the Yankees in 1923. By 1927 he was the American League's MOST VALUABLE PLAYER. And won the same honor again in 1931, 1934, and 1936.

A GREAT FIRST BASEMAN. Lou's prowess as a slugger is matched by his brilliant play at first base. His record last year was only 6/1000ths short of PERFECT.

LOU HOLDS MORE RECORDS than any other man in the game today. Here are a few for any four-game World Series: most runs batted in (9); most home-runs (4); most bases on balls (6). He has scored 100 or more runs for 11 consecutive seasons—batted in 100 or more.

HERE'S LOU'S FAVORITE BAT and his favorite first baseman's mitt. His bat is especially made. It weighs 57 ounces — is 35 inches long. He wears out two mits a season.
