

Carrots Become Dressy During Early Spring

CARROTS are very good this time of year, especially those young tender ones on which the grocer leaves the tops. Several recipes for cooking carrots might be suggested as ways to vary the menu that includes this all year vegetable.

First there's the one that takes parsley to look and taste extra nice.

CARROTS VICIEY

Wash and scrape carrots, boil in a little water until tender, drain and when cool enough to handle, slice in paper thin pieces. Melt butter in a frying pan, add carrots and brown, when browned on all sides, sprinkle liberally with parsley.

A second recipe features carrots glazed with butter and sugar. This recipe is especially good with pork roast.

GLAZED CARROTS

Wash carrots and leave whole, cook in a little salted water until almost done, drain, melt 4 tablespoons butter in a frying pan, add 4 tablespoons granulated sugar, and then well blended, add carrots, cook until brown and glazed, turning to obtain an even color.

The third recipe, I'll admit, is mine. It is simple, but very very good, that is if you like olives.

CARROTS SEVILLE

Partially cook young carrots, drain and add a generous amount of butter, shake in this until all sides are covered, then add a small bottle (more or less) of finely sliced stuffed green olives and cook until olives are very hot and carrots are done.

New potatoes are very good with the olives added just as for the carrots.

Lettuce Cooks for Vegetable Dish

Cooking lettuce sounds rather queer to us, but the French have a recipe for braised lettuce that is quite a delightful dish. Of course they use stock, that ever present liquid that an old world cook always has handy on the stove.

BRAISED LETTUCE

Select small solid heads of lettuce, scald with boiling stock, drain and cool. Press sides of lettuce and place that side down in a baking pan. Dot with butter, and moisten with 1/4 cup stock which has been enriched with 1/2 teaspoon beef extract. Place pan in a moderate oven and baste occasionally. Cook until lettuce has absorbed most of the liquid.

Pattern

Pattern No. 1294-B Here's a delightful frock for sizes eight to sixteen that will make the adolescent girl feel as modern and smartly dressed as any grown-up. It's a two-piece outfit such as Paris favors for daytime wear this spring and summer. The slightly flared peplum comes up in front to a suggestion of the higher, girde waistline which is so prominent this year. A gay round collar and puffed sleeves complete the waist. The skirt is slightly flared. Perfect in a plain fabric or pastel seersucker.

Barbara Bell pattern No. 1294-B is available for sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 10 requires 2 1/2 yards 39-inch fabric. For collar in contrast, it requires 1/2 yard.

Honey Sweetens Fruit, Cereal Or Sauces

HONEY is an excellent substitute for sugar in many recipes, giving a pleasant flavor and delicious sweetness, but it cannot be substituted for sugar in just any recipe. In mixtures where flour is an important ingredient it is necessary to experiment with honey as a sweetening. Usually cookies or cakes made with honey as a sweetening have a characteristic toughness until they have "rested" a few days, when mellowness of texture and flavor becomes noticeable.

But for fruits, either fresh or canned, honey is always a good sweetener. Try mixing honey with rhubarb, apples, or other fresh fruit sauce, or serve on breakfast cereal, or dip fresh strawberries in honey.

Another use for honey as sweetener is in ice cream sauces. Mix 1 mashed banana with 1/2 to 3/4 cup of honey, add a little lemon juice and at least 1/4 cup crushed nuts. Pour over vanilla ice cream. Here is a salad dressing for fruit salad that takes honey as a sweetener:

HONEY-FRUIT DRESSING
3 egg yolks
1/2 cup honey
1 tablespoon sugar
Juice of 3 lemons
1/2 cup whipped cream
Beat yolks, add honey, sugar and lemon juice. Cook in double boiler until thickened. Chill, fold in whipped cream and serve on any fruit salad.

Salad Dressing Uses Canned Pimiento

A rather different, but thoroughly pleasing salad dressing for vegetable mixtures is made by using a whole can of pimiento:

PIMIENTO DRESSING
1 cup oil
1 can pimiento and oil
1/2 cup vinegar
3 hard cooked eggs
1 cup tomato catsup
Cut pimiento, mix all ingredients together and stir well.

C. G. Morris, pastor of the Methodist church, reading the impressive marriage service.

The bride was charming in a dress of pale pink satin and a floral ornament in her hair that was worn by her grandmother at the latter's wedding. Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Alta Welgate sang "I Love You Truly" and Miss Elma Jantunen sang "Because." Mrs. Carl Wood of Grand Island was matron of honor and Norris Bristol was best man.

The bridal party stood under a bower of flowers. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held. Guests were present from California, Washington and Oregon.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Woods will be at home to their many friends in Carlton.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a heavy white satin under hose that was worn in a full skirt, half-length sleeves. Her veil was caught in a cap effect. She carried an arm bouquet of lilies and pink sweet peas.

Her attendants were her sisters, Margaret Bell of Salem in pebble satin and Gladys Bell of Silverton in pale pink. Lois Campbell was flower girl. Ernest Campbell of Seattle and Lloyd Campbell of Silverton attended their brother, while Ernest and Gladys, Ernest Erickson and John Stewart.

Jonas Byberg played the wedding marches and Mrs. Stanley Swanson sang, "I Love You Truly" preceding the ceremony.
