Cracker meal, bought in packages, makes an excellent thickener for meat loaves and hamburger cakes. For the latter, add 1 egg to half a pound of ground meat, then put in enough cracker meal to thicken to consistency for frying. Cook slowly and you'll find these fluffy, light cakes delicious. And the meat will go farther too.

Cracker meal makes the place of flour or crumbs for dipping fish or meat, gives a different flavor and is in an easy form to use. Crab cakes, oysters, veal cutlets or mock chicken legs blend flavor nicely with the cracker meal.

An egg beater, a large bowl of suds and a change of clothes handy for use when needed, make an inexpensive and thoroughly satisfactory amusement for little children, especially when they're visiting away from home.

By RUTH ORR Pattern No. 332 Summer may not be the time you use an afghan, but it's the time to make one. This afghan consists of a number of hexagons, each about 5 inches across. If you always have your crochets hook with you—and a bit of yarn—you'll be surprised how quickly a lovely piece will be finished. The design is most simple. Reversing the colors on adjacent motifs forms an unusual pattern.

red clover in western Oregon totaled 43,452 acres on unirrigated land and an additional 2070 acres under irrigation. Irrigated Ladino clover plantings covered 1181 acres.

The preliminary report covered only 11,205 of the 14,000 cooperating farmers.

Eastern Oregon farmers also seeded an additional 35,516 acres of alfalfa, and protected 94,019 acres from erosion with the practice of trashy summer fallow.

New seedlings of alfalfa and other legumes totalled 150,000 acres, principally in eastern Oregon where nearly 40,000 acres of wheat land were devoted to crested wheat grass.

Priming Coat of Oil Is Discussed

Discussion of the possibility of using a prime coat of oil on a few of the county roads to be surfaced this summer by the county was held by the county court yesterday with N. C. Hubbs, county engineer.

Use of the prime coat has been adopted by the federal bureau of roads, Commissioner Roy Meison said. Additional cost was estimated at $200 a mile.

Purpose of the coat, which is applied about three weeks before the asphalt, is to keep the road clean for the sweeper in order that dust will not fly back and prevent the proper adhesion of the pavement to the base. Only objection to the priming coat is that cars passing over the road recently treated usually pick up some of the fresh oil. The first experiment will probably be made on the Jefferson-Talbot road.
