Paul Carpenter of Oregon State college extension division, was guest speaker. His talk was on the marketing of farm products. The keynote of his speech was that in order to widen markets for farm goods they must first find out more about those markets. He stated the producers still have too many illusions about the marketing end of their produce. In order to widen markets, he told his listeners, they must find out first what the consumers want, and second, advertise the excellence of their product. He said, for one instance, that there is no point in stressing the size of prunes, as few consumers know what 30-40 or similar numbers mean. The whole thing, said Mr. Carpenter, should be done as much as possible by cooperatives, managed by experienced people.

Redhead Roundup Interest Widening

Tourists from 16 States and Canada Inquire About Coast Jubilee

TAPT, May 20.—(Special)—Evidence that the Redhead Roundup, the unique annual titian celebration to be held at Tapt, June 19 and 20, is becoming nationally known is being proved by the large number of inquiries regarding the event coming to Manville Robison, general chairman.

Nearly 100 letters from residents of 16 states and Canada, asking for information regarding the 1937 Redhead festival, have arrived since May 1. Almost without exception, the writers state that they desire to spend their vacation in Oregon at a time which will afford them an opportunity to attend the Redhead Roundup. Several admit being Redheads.

Water Carnival Slated The roundup visitors this year will witness a program replete with interesting and unusual events, among which will be a water carnival; a Redhead revel, with a cast of 50 coast Indians; a Redhead bathing beauty contest; a bicycle marathon from Portland to Tapt; the hop floss follies; a riotous revue by Mayor K. L. Williams of Independence and his Hop Bowl Maniacs; the Red Sun dancers; coronation of the queen, with Governor Charles H. Martin officiating; queen's ball, beach frolic, bands and drum corps, and various Redhead contests.

A contest to select a titian court consisting of a queen, crown princess and four princesses, is now being conducted under the direction of Sam Slocum. Twenty-four Redhead beauties from many sections of the state are candidates for the roundup throne. A trip to Alaska will reward the winner.
