"Put Something in Bank" of Mind Is Advice of Henry Berkowitz

"You want to have something to draw on. You want to put something in the bank, in the savings account of the mind," Rabbi Henry J. Berkowitz, of Temple Beth Israel in Portland told 474 graduating seniors of Salem high last night as he expounded the reasons for a high school education.

Taking as his theme a refutation of the time-worn statement of high school speakers, "young people, I can't see you," Berkowitz stated that the crucible years of high school just completed was as difficult a period as they would be called to face. "I envy you only one thing," he said, "and that is that you are finished."

The years of study and of tests, he explained, are justified in that "it makes us good company for ourselves."

"Some people when alone, Berkowitz said, are absolutely alone—alone with their backbone. . . but when you stand alone, as you inevitably will, then you will draw from the bank, then you will reap the harvest."

Auditorium Filled at First Event There

The new Salem high auditorium, used for the first time, was filled with graduates, relatives and friends until there was standing room only and that only in the balcony. Even the fire escapes outside the auditorium windows bore crowds of ticketless spectators.

Edith Oglesby, who in the valedictory talk assured the audience that the class of 1937 would prove its value to society, and Jack Powers, who played the second movement of Bruch's Concerto in G minor on the violin, represented the class on the program.

Bill Thomas, student body president during the past year, was announced by Principal Fred Wolf as winner of the Albert prize of $25, an award made each year to a student who, opportunities considered, has made the greatest progress toward the ideal in character, service and wholesome influence.

The American Legion auxiliary history award was presented to Alice Thompson. Magna cum laude and cum laude awards for highest and second highest grades (Turn to page 6, col. 6)

Anti-Gambling Bills Blocked; Petition Filed

Plenty of Names Appear Upon Referendum of Pinball Measures

Fair Trade Enactment Is Also Slated for Vote at Next Election

The two anti-gambling device bills and the fair trade bill enacted at the 1937 legislative session will not go into effect June 7, but will instead be voted upon in the next general state election, it was determined Thursday afternoon.

Referendum petitions placing the three measures on the ballot were filed in the state department Thursday afternoon. Petitions against the anti-gambling bills were sponsored by the Oregon Merchants Legislative league and were filed by Walter Tooze, attorney for the organization.

One of the laws under attack was introduced by Senator Carney and outlaws slot machines. The other by Representative Hannah Martin, makes it unlawful to possess or operate pinball machines, marbleboards and other similar devices. The Martin law also gives the officers the right of confiscation and destruction.

Petitions attacking the Carney law contained 18,100 signatures while the petitions striking at the Martin law contained 18,161 names. Only 12,528 signatures were required to insure the referendum measures a place on the ballot at the next general election.

Tooze said approximately 5000 signatures were obtained which were not checked or certified by the county clerks.

The signatures represent every county in Oregon with the exception of Hood River and Lake. "The Oregon merchants legislative league has only started its campaign," Tooze said, declaring that initiative petitions would be placed in circulation soon to amend the lottery section of the state constitution so as to permit the legislature to license, tax and regulate all games of amusement, skill and chance.

The petitions attacking the anti-price discrimination law were filed by George C. Stanley of Eugene. These petitions contained 14,063 signatures.

The anti-price discrimination law would prevent price cutting below the cost of production. It was known as senate bill No. 103. The time for filing completed referendum petitions for the next general election expires Saturday at midnight.

Roosevelt Seeks to Create Regional Power Authorities

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asked Congress today for legislation giving every major river valley in the nation a TVA of its own.

While republicans and the organized public utilities denounced the plan, and administration adherents came to its defense, Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.), called the "father of the Tennessee valley authority" introduced a bill to make the proposal effective.

With a plea for conservation of the nation's natural wealth and for protection against dust storms, floods and droughts, Mr. Roosevelt proposed the country be blanketed with seven regional authorities, to have charge of the work.

He suggested the territories assigned to them be the Atlantic seaboard, the Great Lakes and Ohio valley, the drainage basin of the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers, the basins of the Missouri river and Red river of the north, the basins of the Colorado and rivers flowing into the Pacific south of the California-Oregon boundary, and the basin of the Columbia river. To those he added the existing Mississippi river com-

Action at This Session to Be Insisted Upon

Will Write Amendments Himself, Hints; not Seeking Court Job

Land Owner, Housing and Labor Legislation on Major List, States

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the majority leader, strongly indicated after a White House conference tonight that the administration may propose a compromise of the supreme court reorganization.

Robinson at the same time said he was not a candidate himself for the supreme court vacancy created by the retirement of Justice Van Devanter and that it had not been discussed with the president.

The Arkansas senator said after the two-hour session at the executive mansion that the bill to add new justices to the court if incumbents over 70 do not retire would be pressed for action at this session.

He quickly added, however, that some amendments would be submitted and that he may offer one himself.

Robinson would not disclose what the amendments would be, saying "you will have to wait and see."

Smaller Number of Justices Probable There have been persistent reports, especially since Justice Van Devanter announced he would retire, that the administration may be willing to accept a bill providing for only two or three new justices, instead of the five provided in the legislation as it now stands.

Robinson also said the conference discussed the general legislative program for the remainder of the congressional session and added that while there was no "must" list, it would be desirable if congress acted on the following:

- 1.—Legislation to help tenant farmers become land owners.
- 2.—Low cost housing and slum clearance.
- 3.—Extension of nuisance taxes and closing loopholes against tax dodgers.
- 4.—Government reorganization.
- 5.—Minimum wages and maximum hours.

Waterfront Fire Damage Is Heavy

SEATTLE, June 3.—(AP)—A spectacular fire of undetermined origin wrecked the Connecticut pier here late today, causing damage estimated at $170,000 or more and injuring four firemen.

Fanned by a strong north wind, the flames threatened a large part of the Seattle waterfront until they were brought under control by joint efforts of the fire department, coast guardsmen and the crew of the navy tug Modoc.

The second story of the dock was used by the coast guard as a rifle range and small arms ammunition was stored there. Cartridge cases flew high into the air, and there was a series of explosions that sounded like machine gun fire as the ammunition exploded. No casualties were reported from this source.
