Mrs. James O. Russell and Mrs. Pearl Grote entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Russell home on South Commercial street in compliment to Mrs. C. C. Van Scoyoc of San Jose, California, who is visiting for a fortnight at the Russell home. Sweet peas and ocean spray centered the luncheon table and decorated the guest rooms. The afternoon was spent informally and Mrs. Hiram Torbet of Amity sang several numbers for the pleasure of the group. Covers were placed for Mrs. Van Scoyoc, Mrs. William Hansen, Mrs. Mose Adams, Mrs. Harry Crawford, Mrs. Wren Crews, Mrs. B. B. Flack, Mrs. Nellie Thayer, Mrs. Carrie Fisher, Mrs. W. N. Ash, Mrs. H. A. Gueffroy, Mrs. Hiram Torbet, Mrs. Grote and Mrs. Russell.

Powers' Anniversary Is Honored

A group of friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Powers surprised them on the occasion of their wedding anniversary on Tuesday at their home on route 7. Mr. and Mrs. Powers have lived in the community for many years, where he has been a teacher. They have recently built a new home.

Besides Mrs. Powers' mother, Mrs. Burns, and her sister, Mrs. Elma McAllister, the following friends enjoyed the occasion: Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Stuppel and George, Delphine, Carmel, Carol and Irene; Mrs. Barbara Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Piere Saucy and Ella E. Swink. Mrs. Ralph Gilbert read a poem, dedicated to the couple, and Ralph Gilbert presented them a radio lamp, the gift of the guests.

Eastern Star Receives Invitation

Chadwick chapter, Order of Eastern Star, has received an invitation from Columbia chapter at The Dalles to be present at a reception in honor of Mrs. Hazel Ingram, worthy grand matron and Miss Lillian Schaffner, grand Martha, Saturday, June 19, at eight o'clock in the civic auditorium at The Dalles.

Mrs. Paul H. Hauser was installed as grand lecturer of the grand chapter of Oregon at the installation services held in Portland Thursday night. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Sprague returned from a motor trip to California where they attended the graduation of their daughter Miss Martha Sprague at Stanford university. They were met in San Francisco by their son Wallace who has just completed his junior year at Oberlin. The family returned to Salem on Thursday.

Harry Crawford motored to Colfax

Harry Crawford motored to Colfax, Washington, yesterday where he will meet Mrs. Crawford and their daughter, Harriet. The family will return tomorrow.

Mrs. W. D. Clarke and her daughter, Miss Doris Clarke, have returned for a ten day's trip to California. Miss Clarke will spend this week-end in Portland.

Betrothal Told At Informal Party

An interesting engagement revealed last night was that of Miss Gretchen Steinke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Steinke, to Walter Lebengood, son of Mrs. Eva Lebengood. The news was told at an informal party for which Miss Barbara Lamb was hostess at her home on Chemeketa street in honor of a group of her friends. At midnight supper was served and miniature sail boats with the names of the couple on the sails announced the betrothal. Both Miss Steinke and her fiancé are popular members of the younger set. She graduated from Salem high school in June and Mr. Lebengood has attended the Salem schools. Miss Steinke was prominent in student activities, a member of the student faculty committee and Girls Letter club. Mr. Lebengood is employed at The Oregon Statesman. Guests bidden to the party were Miss Steinke, Miss Maxine and Miss Eileen Goodenough, Miss Helen Kestley, Miss Mabelle Lillburn, Miss Jo Taylor, Miss Janet Robertson, Miss Esther Vehrs, Miss Phyllis Gardner, Miss Doris Taylor, Miss Shirlee McCain and Miss Barbara Tripp of Albany.

Style-Smiles --- by Gretchen

'You're getting good, Mrs. Larkin—you don't make nearly so many stupid plays as you used to.'

Just a table of bridge "to forget the heat" and to look smart and cool while at it. The bouquet-tosser is in black, ribbed, transparent and deeply V-necked. What makes the beige crepe (lower left) outstanding is the yoke fashioned of "spaghetti" in basket weave with loose strands forming sleeves. Her hat's practically all brim. That rough straw cartwheel is new and the hat below is practically all huge taffeta bow repeating the dots of the dress.—Copyright 1937, Esquire Features, Inc.

New Play Placed On Library List

Included on this week's new books added to Salem public library are "Brother Rat," a new play by Monk and Finkelhoffer, and the dramatization of the biblical flood by Anre Oby, entitled "Noah." Both of these plays have enjoyed successful runs. Items which appeared in the recent pamphlet exhibit sponsored by the library, under the auspices of the Portland public works, which are available this week, are "The Psychology of Getting Grades;" "Odele," "Americanism or Communism;" "Jilson," "Unemployment Insurance;" "Ogburn," "You and Machines;" "Rose," "Money;" "DeNood," "Job or the Dole;" "Crichton," "Business and Government;" and "Sentruria," "Strikes." Books in diverse fields also on the new list are Bollith's "King Edward VIII," Coffin's "Kennebec, Cradle of American," and Einstein's "Schrodinger's History of Music." The full list of books added thus far in June is available at the main desk of the library.

Quartzville Mines Are Being Worked, Report

GATES, Ore., June 18.—Louis Stewart and Stanley Rider returned this week from Quartzville, where they have been mining. Much interest is evidenced among local miners who have statements at Quartzville. All state that there is much activity at the mines.

Unusual New Afghan to Crochet

By RUTH ORR
Pattern No. 477

This attractive design embodies a new idea in crocheted afghans. The pattern is worked in cross-wise stripes, and in as many or as few colors as you wish. Here, we've used red, yellow, white and brown, and the effect is charming. The same simple design is used throughout the piece, with a plain border dotted with popcorn stitches. Using the proper materials gives a lovely, soft cover. Heavier yarn will make a thicker piece. The pattern envelope contains complete, easy-to-understand illustrated directions, also what crochet hook and what material and how much you will need. To obtain this pattern, send for No. 477 and enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to cover service and postage. Address The Statesman, Needlework Department.

White Bread Is Festive Food If Toasted

PLAIN white bread takes on a festive air when dressed up with sugar, cheese or toasted French bread. Cinnamon strips are a variation of the popular cinnamon toast, and served for more dressy occasions. Cut the bread in long, narrow strips, roll in melted butter, then in a mixture of powdered sugar and cinnamon. Set in the oven to brown on all sides, so as to caramelize the sugar. Serve very hot, with fruit salad. Pulled bread is an old favorite with many hostesses who like a variation of white bread. Pull French bread apart, with the hands or with two forks, leaving the shape irregular. Put in the oven under direct heat until brown. Some hostesses like to slice their French bread almost through the lower crust, leaving loaf intact, but butter and slices of garlic between the slices and brown. Slice crustless bread about 1 inch thick, cut in square strips and butter on all sides, using a generous amount. Roll in grated American cheese and brown on all sides in the oven. Especially good with vegetable or chicken salad.

Children's Movie Is Four Fitting

"Elephant Boy" Patterned on Kipling Jungle Tale; Scenic Noteworthy

By MAXINE BUREN
Seldom in a film produced that combines exquisite photography, and intensity of plot in combination with educational subject matter to make it suitable for children, yet interesting to grown-ups. Such, however, is the picture "Elephant Boy" in its last day of play today at the Elsinore.

The fact alone that it is based on Kipling's "Toomal of the Elephants" would attract the attention of those old timers who love the stories of his jungle books; more movie-minded folk, seeing the names Alexander Korde and Robert Flaherty as producer and director would immediately expect a fine production.

The story centers around the native boy, Toomal, and his huge elephant, Kala Nag, who are among those hired by a white man to hunt wild elephants. No elephants are located, but the boy's father is killed by a tiger. Kala Nag is turned over to a cruel driver and in sorrow for his master injures his tormenter. Thinking they will kill his friend, Toomal takes to the jungle, accidentally locates a herd of wild elephants and when the searching party arrives he aids them in driving the herd to camp. He is hailed as "Toomal of the Elephants," the name by which his grandfather was known. The picture is beautifully photographed, exciting, but not too exhausting for children and the elephant drive is authentic. The chief actor is Sabu a native boy who was discovered in an orphan asylum in Mysore and whose ancestors were really mahouts (elephant drivers). The other star is the elephant, a prize animal from the stables of the Maharaja of Mysore. As the boy's speech is broken, a synopsis told briefly to the youngsters will help their understanding of the picture. The second feature on the program is not suitable for young children.

Family Reunion Of Vegetables In Markets

It's Old Home week in the markets today, with mid-summer vegetables dropping in for a visit and late winter specialties still on hand to welcome the newcomers. Winter's pride Hubbard squash sits side by side with cousins Crook-neck and Scallop squash. Even green corn, that late summer favorite has put in a bashful appearance at some markets. Watermelons, sporting a "3c a pound" sign in one market look like permanent visitors for the summer months. Then over on the fruit counter there's a surprise; apricots, peaches, pineapple, fresh figs, cantaloupes, and even dear little red currants looking very fresh and bright. Among the regular vegetables that make for variety on our local market displays I've seen: Asparagus, kale, spinach and locof lettuce. New beans with tops, new turnips also with tops. New onions, red onions and white onions. Peas, new beans, artichokes, radishes and cabbage in a variety of sizes. Cauliflower is scarce, parsnips are practically gone and rutabagas have given way to more interesting vegetables. Although many of these fruits and vegetables, so far out of season are expensive, they do add zest to the menu and are a tonic to meals with spring fever.

Boiled Dressing Is for Fruit Salads

A cooked salad dressing recommended by George Rector is his FRUIT SALAD DRESSING
1 egg
Pinch salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 cup pineapple juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Put slightly beaten egg, salt and sugar in a saucepan, add cornstarch which has been mixed with the pineapple and lemon juice. Cook slowly until thickened. Chill and serve.

New Potatoes Need Some Variety

Along about the first of May, when new potatoes are a novelty, we think that never will we have enough of them creamed or buttered. But now, when they've become a regular member of the daily menu, good cooks begin to cast about for recipes to vary the new potato fare. Roll new boiled potatoes in very finely grated cheese and serve piping hot as a variation of buttered new potatoes. This recipe sounds elegant, and really is, so try: NEW POTATO BARIGOLE Cook the scraped small new potatoes in stock or bouillon, adding a little olive oil, drain, sprinkle with salt and pepper and squeeze a lemon over the top. The recipe doesn't say so, but why not make thickened sauce from the stock and serve with the potatoes? Sprinkle with chopped chives instead of parsley is another idea. Use this writer's favorite combination, new potatoes and butter, sprinkled liberally with chopped stuffed olives for another variation. Chopped mint adds nice flavor to the buttered new potatoes too, or when baked with new peas and carrots the potatoes become a casserole dish.

Luncheon for Company Includes Timbale

A party luncheon menu which includes a fruit salad takes this meatless combination for its main dish. EGG AND ASPARAGUS TIMBALE
2 eggs
Few grains pepper
Dash of salt
1 cup milk
1 cup cold asparagus
Beat eggs slightly, add seasonings and milk, fill 6 small buttered timbale molds about 3/4 full of diced asparagus, and cover with egg mixture. Put in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees) about 30 minutes or until firm.

Appetizer on Menu For Supper

An appetizer, very popular on the Swedish smorgasbord or buffet table is "ox eye" decorative and very good, once you've gained courage to taste it. Here is a recipe for OX EYE Prepare on a pretty round plate a ring of finely chopped raw onion, inside this a circle of finely chopped anchovies and in the middle a raw egg yolk. The first person to be served stirs up the mixture.

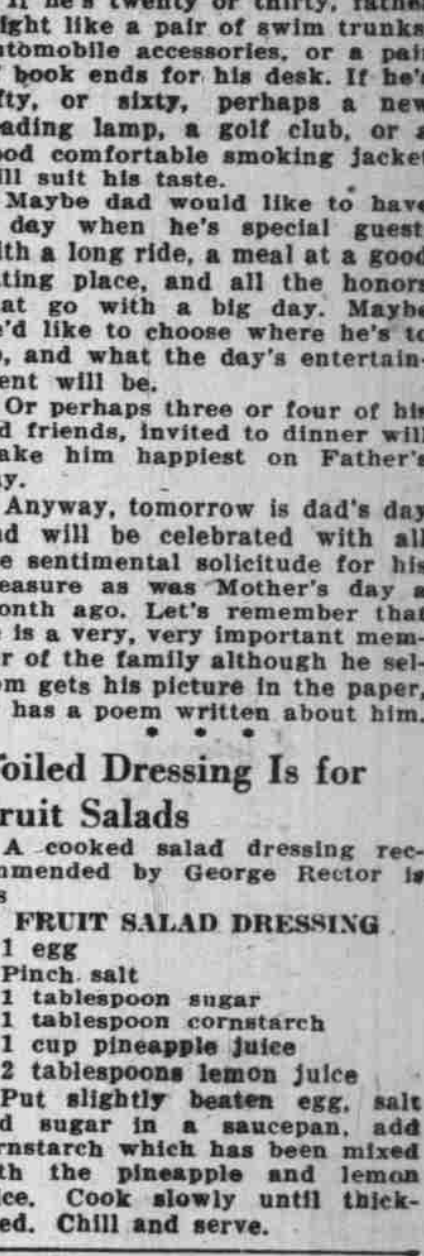

Percy McElroy Services Will Be at Gates Today

MILL CITY, June 18. — Services will be held at the Gates cemetery Saturday afternoon for Percy McElroy, who passed away in Salem Wednesday. Services will be in charge of the Disabled American War Veterans. Mr. McElroy was survived by his wife.

Father's Day On Calendar Tomorrow

A sort of an after thought, Father's day has been added to the calendar and now the head of the family will enjoy a day each year as the center of attraction, and the recipient of special gifts. Father's day gifts are usually less original than those for mother; knick-knacks for the house are not considered in his realm, flowers just aren't being given to dads and candy isn't good for him. Of course the gift planned for Father's day depends greatly on his age, because there isn't any typical father, he might be anywhere from an early twenties to his late eighties. Clothes usually please the man, or he says they do, so dad finds among his gifts a marvelous collection of Sox, shirts, handkerchiefs or suspenders. If he's twenty or thirty, father might like a pair of swim trunks, automobile accessories, or a pair of book ends for his desk. If he's fifty, or sixty, perhaps a new reading lamp, a golf club, or a good comfortable smoking jacket will suit his taste. Maybe dad would like to have a day when he's special guest, with a long ride, a meal at a good eating place, and all the honors that go with a big day. Maybe he'd like to choose where he's to go, and what the day's entertainment will be. Or perhaps three or four of his old friends, invited to dinner will make him happiest on Father's day. Anyway, tomorrow is dad's day and will be celebrated with all the sentimental solicitude for his pleasure as was Mother's day month ago. Let's remember that he is a very, very important member of the family although he seldom gets his picture in the paper, or has a poem written about him.

Mrs. J. J. Nunn left for Marshfield Thursday night to be with her daughter, Margaret, who underwent an operation for appendicitis Thursday afternoon at the Marshfield hospital. She is reported as recovering satisfactorily.

The meeting of the executive committee of the Salem Council of Churches has been postponed from this coming Tuesday to June 28.

At White House

As a result of a chance meeting two years ago in New York, at which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt made the acquaintance of Roberta Jonay, and was impressed by her talent and beauty, the young lady has been a guest at the White House during a two-week engagement as dancer at a Washington hotel. She has also been a guest of the Roosevelts at Hyde Park. She is shown here on the White House lawn.
