"I Met Him in Paris" Is Humorous Romance on Elsinore Screen

Girl meets boy, and so begins one of the year's most uproarious comedy-romances, "I Met Him in Paris"—which stars Claudette Colbert in the type of role which she made famous in her two previous smash comedy hits "It Happened One Night" and "The Bride Comes Home." "I Met Him in Paris," which also features Melvyn Douglas and Robert Young, begins today at the Elsinore theatre.

In "I Met Him in Paris," Miss Colbert, a young American girl on a vacation in the French capital, runs into two handsome, romantic fellow-countrymen, Douglas and Young. Both go overboard for the lovely brunette, and each stages his own idea of a whirlwind courtship, which he is certain will sweep her off her feet. Miss Colbert "falls" for both, but can't get around to making up her mind which style of courtship she prefers—Douglas' cool, matter-of-fact, never-speak-of-love technique, or Young's impetuous affection.

This romantic runaround carries the trio from Paris to St. Moritz, winter capital of the Swiss Alps, where the romantic sweepstakes continues amid glorious scenes of ski-ing, skating and sliding. As the picture progresses, Miss Colbert is forced to flee from her impetuous suitors, back to the comparative safety of Paris, where she finally turns the tables on both, in an hilarious windup.

"I Met Him in Paris" has all the elements that make for real entertainment—a clever and humorous story; an excellent cast; first-rate direction by Wesley Ruggles; and magnificent scenic backgrounds, particularly in the rugged winter sports sequences. Ably assisting the principals are Mona Barrie, George E. Stone, George Davis and Alexander Cross.

Romance in Swiss Alps

Robert Young, Claudette Colbert and Melvyn Douglas in uproarious comedy romance "I Met Him in Paris," featured at the Elsinore theatre today.

Franchot Tone, Spencer Tracy and Gladys George in "They Gave Him a Gun," featuring three well known stars beginning today at the Capitol theatre.

Capitol Bills Spencer Tracy

Simulates "Tough Guy" in Post-War Racketeer Story Scenario

With Spencer Tracy, Gladys George and Franchot Tone in the leading roles, "They Gave Him a Gun" opens today at the Capitol theatre as one of the more important releases from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

Franchot Tone deserts genteel characters to play a "tough guy"; Spencer Tracy deserts the "tough guy" character for a kindly adviser of a wayward youth; and Gladys George, following her success in "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie," plays another valiant role as a war nurse who marries a racketeer she fails to save in "They Gave Him a Gun."

The picture, based on the novel by Major William Joyce Cowan and directed by W. S. Van Dyke II, deals with the effect of war on the psychology of youth, tracing the transition of a kindly young clerk who goes through war into a dangerous post-war racketeer. Tones starts as a clerk, is drafted and taught in warfare that "all men are equal with guns in their hands," a maxim that leads him to crime and disaster in later life. Tracy plays the kindly sidekick barker, his buddy during the war, who attempts with Miss George to save the youth from his ultimate fate. Cowan's book, written largely from his own experiences, is a current best seller. It was adapted to the screen by Cyril Hume, Richard Maibaum and Maurice Rapf and was produced by Harry Rapf.

Compromise Upon Grant Land Sales

The Oregon & California land grant counties' committee yesterday accepted a compromise plan of distribution of timber sales proceeds, County Commissioner Roy S. Melson last night reported on his return from a meeting held at Eugene.

Suggested by the department of the interior, the plan arbitrarily sets a $390,000 minimum share of grant land revenues yearly for the 11 participating counties "under further provisions, however, the counties will receive 50 per cent of each year's revenues, which this year may exceed one-half million dollars, Melson said. Last year approximately $375,000 was distributed to the counties.

The plan also provides that up to 65 per cent of the annual proceeds shall be allotted to the counties if necessary to make up the guaranteed $390,000 minimum. If only the 50 per cent share is needed for this purpose, 25 per cent will go toward wiping out an accumulated deficit in the land grant fund. The remaining 25 per cent will be used to pay administrative costs. Melson said timber sales had increased to such an extent that the counties might receive twice the guarantee sum this year.

Elk Lake Road Is Closed as Repair Made Upon Bridge

The North Santiam highway is now open across the Cascades and in condition with the detour over the old road that was necessary last year eliminated. It was reported Saturday by Kermit Lindstedt, U. S. forest ranger at Detroit.

Travel over the road to Elk lake will be impossible this weekend because of repairs being made on the bridge over Hungbug creek. Snow damaged the bridge last winter to an extent that it will be necessary to replace it.

Fishing, which had been good up to last week, suffered a temporary setback due to rains but is expected to improve as soon as the rains cease. Blue and red up-ribs are proving the best lure. Trout are averaging larger this year in both the rivers and the lakes, of which Elk and Pamela are the most popular, yielding some nice catches, mostly on bait. The rain has reduced the fire hazard temporarily to a minimum. No fire permits are required yet for camping. A crew is now engaged in conditioning camp grounds in the district for the benefit of vacationists and picnickers. Maintenance crews are also at work on trails and on telephone lines to lookout points.

Scene From "Tundra"

"Tundra," a thrilling epic of Alaska now playing at the Grand theatre through until Wednesday.

Immortal "Trail of Lonesome Pine" Showing Today at Hollywood With Sylvia Sidney and Fred MacMurray

In Walter Wanger's "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," which opens today at the Hollywood theatre, the producers have taken an immortal story, beloved by two generations; selected a superb cast, headed by Sylvia Sidney, Fred MacMurray and Henry Fonda; and have added the magic of outdoor technicolor photography. The color in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is just about as fine as it could possibly be. Every slight shade of distinction in the tones of the trees and clouds and gloriously beautiful mountain backgrounds is sharply and naturally defined. The actors and actresses pulse with warm, glowing life, and at all times live and breathe, instead of being merely pictures on the screen. The story takes us back to the Cumberland mountains, to the section where deadly feuds are raging among the illiterate mountain families, chief among whom are the Tollivers and the Fallins, whose main delight is to lie in ambush and kill each other off. A city engineer (Fred MacMurray), who wants to run a railroad through the Tolliver and Fallin land to reach a valuable coal mine, finds himself up against the refusal of the two clans to make any mutual agreements, and in his attempts to overcome this bitter enmity, becomes embroiled with both sides.

Running through "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is the tender romance between MacMurray and Sylvia Sidney, the primitive, passionate daughter of the hills, with a subtle undercurrent of the anguish brought to the simple mountaineers by their inability to understand modern civilization.

Three Salem Y Camps at Oceanside Next Month to Have Full Rosters; Supervised Surf Swimming Planned

Full houses at all the three Y.M.C.A. camps to be held at the Oceanside site seven miles from Tillamook, beginning July 14, were indicated yesterday when 55 boys had signed up with Gus Moore, director. Additional enrollees are expected to swell the roster for what may be one of the largest encampments ever held.

The two-week vacation within sight of the ocean will be featured by hikes to unexplored spots, and it is hoped a boat may be obtained for voyages by the older groups to the many picturesque rocks near the coast. A strong group of leaders and instructors will be on hand to assure the boys day after day of interesting and healthful activities, both old and new.

On the staff will be Mrs. M. C. Kelly, chef of last year's camp; Chief George Bent of Chemawa Indian school, handicraft expert and colorful campfire storyteller, an assistant who will teach ancient Indian dances, and a full life guard corps, including Forbes Mack, Bob Brownell and Charles Wiper, to supervise swimming in the surf.

Three encampments, those of the Friendly Indians, the Juniors and the seniors will follow each other. Dates for the camp and the boys signed for the outings: Friendly Indians (July 14-21)—Winsor Acton, Fred Anusson, Doug Armstrong, Jim Armstrong, Horace Baldwin, Evan Boies, Stuart Compton, Dick Gray, Leslie Fahey, Charles Follensby, Courney Jones, Richard Page, Bill Podman, Charles Robertson, Robert Smith, Bob Steves, Donald Waters, Dick Yocum, Don Yocum, Robert Zeller, Herbert Steed, Don Chapman, Bill Morrison, Frank Baum, Cole H. Grand Presenting Thriller of North

"Tundra" Shot in Alaskan Wilderness; Adventure of Flying Doctor

Out of the thousands of fans destined to view with breathless interest the scenic wonders and melodramatic thrills of "Tundra," the great spectacular film of the frozen north, showing at the Grand theatre, few if any, will realize what terrific obstacles were encountered and overcome by the company engaged in making the picture. Its story deals with the amazing adventures of a white physician known to the natives of the Yukon wilderness as "The Flying Doctor." So called, because he visits the sick in villages miles apart on the savage terrain in his one-seater plane. His machine is wrecked while making a forced landing due to engine trouble. And its former occupant, uninjured, but unarmed and without food or drink, begins an apparently hopeless pilgrimage on foot toward the outposts of civilization.

Nearly a year elapsed in the making of "Tundra." Interiors were shot at Hollywood, with the aid of native Eskimos. But for a full six months the company was in actual location in the Alaskan wilderness and Arctic circle. Hence, its extraordinary fidelity to detail and atmosphere! Director, players and cameramen lived in small tents and slumbered in sleeping bags, lying on the snow, roared by mosquitos and ground in the worst of weather conditions, with the cold sometimes registering at 9 degrees below zero. Wild animals were patiently stalked in their native habitat.

Thinning Peaches Topic on Tuesday

There will be a meeting at the farm of Pearl Patterson, eight miles north of Salem, on Tuesday forenoon, July 22, at 9:30 o'clock, for the purpose of discussing and demonstrating the methods of thinning peaches, announces County Agent Harry L. Riches.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

Lebanon Sawmill Shuts Down as Pickets March

LEBANON, June 19.—(P)—The Winn and Sewell sawmill here suspended operations today while ten pickets patrolled the property where 30 men are on strike, demanding the wage scale be increased from 37 1/2 cents to 43 cents an hour. Ten men were working in the yards, but the saws were idle.

BROADWAY NIGHTS

Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

By Clark Kinnaird

NEW YORK, June 19.—The theatre devotes with an automobile and a roving disposition will find more exciting prospects await him this summer in rural shrines of drama than Broadway will have to offer. No more than 10 attractions, all but two months old, may be expected to be available to the transient in the Big Town until Labor day, whereas the following may be sought out at rustic theatres:

- "The Mistress of the Inn," with Eva Le Gallienne; American premiere of "Retreat From Folly," with Margaret Anglin; Nazimova's fine production of "Ghosts," Ina Claire in Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie"; Edward Sheldon's old play, "Romance," with Eugene Leontovich; "Princess Turandot," with Anna May Wong, and possibly another Ibsen play, "A Doll's House," with Ruth Gordon, all at Westchester County playhouse, Mt. Kisco, N. Y.
- The Mohawk drama festival, for six weeks beginning July 6, at Union college, Schenectady, N. Y.
- Norma Terris, the heroine of Ziegfeld's classic, "Show Boat," in "Tonight at 8:30," and Tamara Geva (who made "Roberta" a hit by the way she sang and played "Smoke Gets in My Eyes") in the Lynn Fontanne part in "Idiot's Delight," at the County theatre, Suffern, N. Y.
- "Bell Bottoms," a new comedy, with Lean Janney of the movies, at the Playhouse in Ivoryton, Conn.
- "Calling All Men," new musical by Albert Carroll, Robert Garland and Leonard Sillman, with our favorite comedienne, Imogene Coca; and Phillips Holmes, the erstwhile movie hero, in the role written for Leslie Howard in "The Petrified Forest," at Cape playhouse, Dennis, Mass. This will also have the tryout of Leonard

Son of Minister Victim of Crash

PORTLAND, June 19.—(P)—Evan Wahl, 13, son of the Rev. E. P. Wahl, pastor of the Second German Baptist church, died instantly today when an automobile in which he was a passenger collided with a Williams avenue trolley bus.

J. O. Wahl, a cousin, driver of the car, was reported seriously injured and the Rev. Wahl and William Pyle, a pedestrian, received minor injuries.

Traffic Patrolmen C. G. Stephens and James O. Mills said the trolley, operated by William L. Roach, struck the car broadside, knocking it onto the sidewalk, where it struck Pyle.

Scio School Vote Results to Await Court's Decision

ALBANY, June 19.—(P)—Residents of the proposed Scio Union high school district will not know whether the district will be formed even after Monday's election, unless the proposal is voted down.
