them. I prayed to God to take their little souls to heaven and forgive me.

"I led them down the ravine. They know me and had faith in me. But as I led them I was planning what I'd do to them."

As the first step in the state's case, four alienists began exhaustive mental tests of Dyer.

Detective Lieut. Leroy Sanderson said Dyer declared he removed the girls' shoes before he left the killing scene and "kneet over the shoes and prayed for forgiveness."

The shoes were found neatly paired in a row near the bodies.

Dyer's 24-year-old wife, Isabel, also was confined to a jail cell tonight for her own protection. Retreating belief that her husband is innocent, she asked:

"What did they do to him to make him confess to this? He was a good husband. He never beat me. I love him."

Arrived Home Late Saturday Says Wife

The string-haired wife said Dyer arrived home late on the day of the killings and told her he had been delayed, but gave no further explanation. She said she did not notice blood on the blue jeans he wore, although she washed them.

Investigators said they would not have to depend upon Dyer's statement alone for a conviction. Clothesline rope found in Dyer's home which they said is similar to that found around the children's necks is under microscopic examination for comparisons. Chemists also examined the jeans taken from Dyer's home for possible traces of blood.

The paper bag found under the mutilated body of Madeline bore the name of a druggate where Mrs. Charles R. Fish, friend of the Dyer family, said she saw him buying candy the day before the little girls disappeared.

In his jail cell, where guards were stationed against a possible suicide attempt, Dyer covered and whimpered today and occasionally screamed.

"Don't let them get me," he once blurted, placing his hands before his eyes. "Don't let them take me back to Ingewood. They'd tear me to pieces."

Merle O. Everett, father of two of the victims, said tonight he still found it difficult to believe Dyer's story.

My daughters didn't walk from the park, where they disappeared, to the place they were killed," Everett insisted. "They were carried away in an automobile."

Despite doubts expressed by various Ingewood persons acquainted with Dyer that he was telling the truth, Pitts said after questioning him for two hours today "I am satisfied we have the killer."

The story he told last night and re-told today," Pitts said, "can be connected with the physical facts of the situation. In the questioning today, Dyer elaborated some points and gave more details."

Roosevelt Lauds Hopes for Peace

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., July 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt expressed conviction that a constructive beginning has been made in the Western Hemisphere in the establishment of machinery for international peace, in a message delivered tonight at the opening of the 11th annual institute of public affairs, University of Virginia.

In his message, read by Dr. Charles Gilmore Mapris, institute director, the chief executive said, "As Americans, it must be clear to us that a continuation of the existing uncertainties in the international sphere is highly prejudicial to the well being of the United States, in common with all other countries."

"It must be evident beyond a shadow of a doubt that an accentuation of this unsettled condition will bring disaster to the human suffering beyond the mind of man to grasp."

"The problem before every thinking man and woman, then," the president's message continued, "is how to avert this threatened disaster and how to establish conditions which will relieve existing tensions, permit the diversion of taxpayers' money expended on armaments to the improvement of standard of living of the mass of our citizens and assure the firm establishment of economic and political peace."

Cutter Itasca Speeds Quest

Navy Mine Sweeper Swan Also Near but no Success Reported

message the cutter Itasca and the minesweeper Swan launched their race to the indicated area.

Previous efforts at getting a direction bearing from signals which may have come from the missing plane, placed it at widely separated points in the general search area.

At Los Angeles, Lieut. Comdr. Clarence S. Williams, who plotted the Earhart course, suggested the search be made within a cone-shaped area, 200 miles wide at the base, extending westward from Howland.

At Paris, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was quoted as predicting Miss Earhart would be found. A reporter asked him: "Do you believe she is lost?" and his answer was "How should I know? Nevertheless, I should say 'no.'"

Searchers reported they were heartened, also, by what appeared to be wireless replies to instructional broadcasts sent the missing fliers by station KGMB at Honolulu. The faint signals were intercepted by the navy coast guard and Pacific American stations at Honolulu, and by the coast guard at San Francisco.

The fliers were told to send a series of two long dashes if they were on the water, and a series of three long dashes if they were on land. Apparently in reply, on the 3:10-kilocycle band assigned to the Earhart plane, came a number of high frequency whistles from a carrier wave, but listeners could not be certain what the senders were trying to transmit.

Through commercial stations here, Miss Earhart's husband sent a message to the coast guard. "Help is on the way," he told her. Signals have been heard."

The last decipherable message received from Miss Earhart's plane Friday while it still was in the air, was at 8:44 a. m. Howland island time (3:14 p. m. EST). The coast guard revealed that this message said "We are on the line of position 157-337. * * * we are now running north and south."

Forty-seven minutes earlier, Miss Earhart had messaged "We are circling but cannot see island; cannot hear you." At Washington, D. C., was told by the Itasca commander that as the Earhart plane winged toward Howland from the flight from Lae, the fliers neither acknowledged nor complied with repeated instructions from the Itasca to transmit on 500 kilocycles.

The Itasca explained to them that "it was essential they use the 500-kilocycle band in order that the cutter's direction finder function. The finder could not cut in on the higher frequencies. Later, the Itasca said, "a high frequency direction finder was set up on Howland island, and the coast guard was directed throughout Friday night, but never was able to secure bearings due to Earhart's very brief transmissions and her use of voice."

The message that Miss Earhart and Noonan were "running north and south," followed by about an hour a transmission from the plane saying: "We must be on you but cannot see you. Gas is running low. Have been unable reach you by radio. We are flying at 1,000 feet. One hour and 45 minutes earlier the Earhart plane had signaled: "About 100 miles out."

Japanese to Aid In Amelia Quest

TOKYO, July 6.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—The Japanese navy today ordered the airplane carrier Kamoi with its full complement of airplanes and seaplanes and the special service cutter Koshu to aid the U. S. navy search for Amelia Earhart.

Scores of Japanese fighting boats and other vessels were rushing to the Marshall islands and other areas in the Pacific ocean near tiny Howland island where it was thought the American flier might have been forced down.

Silver Falls and Townies Win Out

Five Hits Are Enough for Victory; Bill Anton Whiffs Thirteen

SILVERTON, July 5.—Silver Falls Timber company's horsehide knockers, still undefeated on their new and imposing home diamond, remained very much in the running in the Oregon state semi-pro tournament at the close of the third day of hostilities, following a brilliant 7 to 2 victory over Sellwood of Portland here tonight.

Only five hits were collected by the Silverton cohorts against the pitching of R. Smith of Sellwood and the visitors doubled that figure on bingles, but errorless defense on the part of the Silver Falls boys and the relief pitching of Jerry Gastineau who went to "Squeak" Wilson's aid in the fifth, held the visitors' tallies to two.

Silver Falls needed only one hit to two runs in the third, and piled up five tallies in the fifth with three hits. Sellwood's four errors contributed to its downfall. The visitors got only two hits off Gastineau after he went in with one out in the fifth.

Gastineau's team mate last spring at Willamette, Bill Anton, was the whole show at Woodburn as the Townies triumphed over Molalla, 6 to 2. In the first game tonight, Anton fanned 13 men, allowing only three hits. Jell of Molalla struck out 12 and also gave up only three blows, but he walked seven.

ville, ran in second place. The vaudeville acts and fireworks display which followed proved pleasing to the vast stadium crowd. The ornate set pieces of colored fire were easily seen from their location near the race track.

When no programs were scheduled, and at all other hours of the day, the many rides on the midway did a large business.

The fairgrounds were well policed, and the Floyd McMullen first aid car, as well as a state hospital association car, were on hand to care for emergency cases. No accidents other than slight cuts and bruises received in falls by youngsters were reported. A small fire under the grandstand was extinguished by a fire truck which was at hand. The celebration commission of Capital Post No. 9, sponsor, said through a spokesman that the crowd was the most orderly, as well as the largest, ever to attend one of these celebrations.

and crashed three miles south of Rockaway. Kellow and two girls riding in the car were uninjured.

Fred B. Lawrence, 37, of Camden, was instantly killed when his car turned over into a ditch after falling to negotiate a sharp curve on the Tangent-Corvallis highway. Lawrence was traveling alone in an old touring car.

Rudolph Inabit, 47, of Rural Dell east of Canby, died of injuries following an automobile accident a block from his residence. The car in which he was riding alone collided with one driven by Grant L. Barnard of Dallas. Barnard suffered slight injuries.

Charles E. Ritter, 20, of Prescott, Wash., drowned when a boat in which three persons were riding overturned in Landon lake about 20 miles east of Weston.

The boat tipped when one of the three attempted to change positions in the boat.

Mrs. Edith D. Nollseh, 31, of Portland, secretary in the city school administration, was the second drowning victim while swimming at Cannon Beach. She failed to respond to artificial respiration after Homer Tucker, Nelsalem, had brought her to the water.

Boyd Owen, stock raiser from Richmond, was shot and fatally wounded in a camp on Warner mountain in the southeastern part of Lane county. Investigating officials said they believed the shooting accidental.

Brady Potter, a sheepherder in the camp with Owen, told officers the two were getting breakfast. Potter was cleaning a .22 calibre rifle when the gun suddenly discharged, wounding Owen. Potter ran for help at the Logger Butte lookout station and then remained with the wounded man until he died.

Samuel E. Holloway, 30, negro, was dead and his wife Ludie Belle Holloway was held in the Portland city jail after she told Deputy District Attorney Tarshis she had strangled him with her nightgown.

Officers said the negroes told them Holloway broke down her locked door and attacked her with an ax. She alleged he was in an intoxicated condition. She later called the police.

The fatal fall occurred at Astoria when Andrew Goff, 68, of St. Regis, Mont., apparently mistook the basement door for the bathroom door in the home of his son.

ferred tonight specifying how interchange of services among the various city departments shall be paid for. Alderman Marshall as chairman of the accounts and chairman of the expenses committee refused to approve a bill for $196 submitted by the water commission for water main replacements necessitated by street department paving operations until this resolution was drafted by the street, sewer, and accounts and current expenses committees.

The resolution, which carries the water commission's approval, will provide that a department's services when utilized for by another shall be paid for on the basis of actual cost plus 10 per cent for supervision.

The other dispute over water commissioners' sales of materials to the city, will be considered in the form of a report to be brought in by a special committee consisting of Aldermen W. D. Evans, Fred A. Williams and Edwin C. Goodenough. Evans declared Saturday his committee would submit recommendations to govern the council's future policy regarding business and professional dealings with the city by all city officials and employees, as directed by the council last month.

Several important changes in council committee assignments will be made tonight by Mayor C. E. Kuhn as a result of the changes in personnel. While the mayor has not indicated what the changes will be, it is understood Alderman Goodenough may retrieve the police committee position he lost at the first of the year. Ross Goodman is chairman and Marshall the second member of that group with Fuhrer dropping out by his impending resignation.

Plea for Reason Voiced by Roper

Discussing the Wagner act, he said "When fair administration reveals defects or inadequacies in a statutory requirements, then prompt correction should be made in the interest of all."

Concluding his plea for industrial peace, Roper said:

"Now the component parts of the national community demand that the disturbed segments adjust their differences, equitably and peacefully, so that the system under which we achieve mutual progress, shall be maintained inviolate."
