Sage of Salem Speculates

By D. H. TALMADGE

Probably it was just because I liked Frank. Furthermore, the office had a homey air, familiar to me in other offices in other places. Senator Harry Lane, during his frequent visits to Salem, was usually to be found there. And Bert Haney, and a dozen others, all democrats but I, and naturally all talking much more than I talked.

Senator Lane is an especially happy memory. The old Salem is almost gone. With the new state house and other state buildings, now in process of building, the new post office, and the new court house (which is inevitable) another step will have been taken to abolish former identities. Residents of even so short a time as 30 years ago, who went away, must hurry to come back if they have any wish to be reminded of the Salem they used to know.

Now see what that innocent old stranger who asked me about the Tioga building went and did!
