Nancy Thielsen on Program Monday In Portland

Here is a 'scoop!' Northwest music lovers are to have the joy of hearing the great Jose Iturbi conduct the Stadium Philharmonic in Portland's Multnomah stadium next Monday night, July 26. And this is how it came about.

Erno Rapee, conductor of Radio City and the General Motors orchestra, who was scheduled to act as guest conductor for this concert, was taken suddenly ill and all of his western concert dates had to be cancelled. With the concert at which he was to conduct the Stadium Philharmonic only ten days off, the management decided that a substitution had to be made, it would get the great Iturbi to take Rapee's place.

Featured as soloist with the Stadium Philharmonic on next Monday evening will be beautiful Nancy Thielsen, whose soprano voice will add much to the keen enjoyment of this outstanding concert. Miss Thielsen will sing two groups of songs with the orchestra: "Ritorna Vincitor" from "Aida" and "When I Have Sung My Songs" by Ernest Charles and "Ouvro Ton Coeur" from "Carmen" and "O, Lovely Night" by Ronald.

The rich timbre of Miss Thielsen's voice is well adapted to these numbers, all of which will be sung with orchestral accompaniment. Because Miss Thielsen is a former Salem girl, the concert Monday night will salute Salem and sister Willamette valley cities who like to claim the artist.

Miss Thielsen will be accompanied by the capital city orchestra, which will include Albert Silverton and Woodburn. Special sections of the grandstand have been arranged for the large groups who will attend from each.

The special priced coupon scrip tickets have proved so popular that the Stadium Philharmonic management has decided to continue their sale during the rest of the concert. These, as well as reserved seats, may be had at the Stadium Philharmonic box office at the J. K. Gill Co.

Style - Smiles - - - by Gretchen

"Good Heavens! I thought you were dressed!—I let the baggage man take everything to the station!" That makes him quite an unsuitable traveling companion at present—and the little woman so perfectly togged out for a trip! High points of summer fashion meet in her beige and brown cape ensemble. Deceptively simple, its smartness, shoulder tucks for that trim, square line, cording round neck and opening. Twin brown flowers. Crowned with grosgrain in a beige straw brim.

LEBANON—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McClain of Tallahassee was scene Sunday morning of a beautiful wedding, when their daughter Betty McClain became the bride of Lee Scott of Lebanon, a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Scott. Rev. LeRoy Crossley of the Baptist church read the marriage service.

Preceding the marriage Dean Stephens accompanied on the piano by his mother, sang "At Dawning"; Mrs. John Summers, sr., sang "Because." She was accompanied by Mr. Bernard McClain of Portland, brother of the bride who also played "For You," a solo of his own composition dedicated to his sister on her wedding day.

Miss Marian Morris and Joe MacPherson with the groom were attendants: The bride entered with her father who gave her in marriage. Vows were taken before a latticed altar entwined with ivory and pink rambler roses, before which seven McClain weddings have been solemnized.

The bride wore white silk organdie, made in semi-princess style, her mother's wedding gown. Her long veil with floral coronet was worn by her sister Mrs. Loyd Wright at her wedding; she carried a bouquet of white sweet peas and sweet Williams.

The bridesmaid wore a dress of hyacinth blue silk taffeta. Both Mr. and Mrs. Scott are graduates of Lebanon high school; Mrs. Scott took a year's work in Linfield college and later entered college at Coalinga, Cal. Mr. Scott has been in business in Lebanon the past few years.

Following congratulations the couple left for a brief wedding journey, and on their return will be at home at their new apartment on Grove street.

AMITY—Coming as a surprise to her many friends here was the announcement of the marriage of Miss Edna Strout and Sydney DeRogue of Portland, which took place in Montana two weeks ago. Mrs. DeRogue is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Strout of Amity and has been home economics teacher in the Amity union high school for the last nine years. The young couple are spending their honeymoon with Mr. DeRogue's relatives in St. Paul, Minn., and various parts of Wisconsin. They will return to Oregon next month.

SILVERTON—Silverton Pythian Sisters will be hosts to other sister and knight groups at a picnic at the South Silver Creek falls July 25. Coffee will be furnished by the hostess group. A large delegation from Portland will attend.

Mrs. E. Z. Kaufman is Most Excellent Chief of the hostess lodge and Mrs. Carl Specht heads the coffee committee.

Women Prominent In Headlines Of the Day

It is interesting, from a woman's point of view, to note that the two best sellers in fiction, recorded by leading bookstores of the United States the last two weeks of June were "The Years" by Virginia Woolf, and "Gone With the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell. They lead by a wide margin over the others.

In Annapolis, Md., Mrs. Mildred M. Clements, wife of a professor in the naval academy, is running for mayor. She's the republican candidate, and was chosen over her male opponent, the former city health officer, 429 to 61. The city is 229 years old, it has never had a woman mayor.

The world's attention has been focused on the charming country of Austria since the Duke of Windsor has taken up his residence in that country. They're always been a romantic fascination in Austrian cities, the very name Vienna means sentiment, beauty and charm. It strikes the romantic imagination of the American mind.

Jane Seymour, the girl who was elected by classmates in the Norfolk, Conn., high school as the laziest girl in school, and listed so in the 183 annuals published, showed that she wasn't really that way at all. She called it a joke, her father thought not, so Jane had to take a razor blade and cut her name from each of the books. She got better than average grades through the year, and worked all day Saturday as a doctor's assistant.

Mrs. Martin Johnson, widow of the jungle explorer who was killed in an airplane crash this year, left recently for Kenya Colony, East Africa, where she will lead a party of 13 white people and 100 natives into the wilds to shoot the film "Stanley and Livingston" being produced by Twentieth Century-Fox.

Although Mrs. Johnson was herself injured in the crash which killed her noted husband, she has chosen the African jungles again for adventure. She will continue to photograph and lecture.

Patties Use Ground Lamb, Make Sauce
Lamb makes meat to serve the family when it's ground. Here is a recipe for a very nice meat that can be dressed up to make excellent party fare, but is an inexpensive cut to serve the family.

DEVILED LAMB PATTIES
Use the patties as bought from the market, or run shoulder lamb through the chopper, then make into cakes and wrap each with a piece of bacon, secure with a skewer.

Make a paste of 1 tablespoon butter, juice of half a lemon, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon chutney or chili sauce, salt, 1/2 teaspoon mustard and dash each of paprika and pepper. Rub top of each patty with this and broil, turning just once. Serve with the rest of the sauce and hot potato chips.

First Apples Make Good Jelly.
The very first apples make jelly, and it's good. Save the skins and cores for the jelly. Use the apple pulp for pie or sauce. Some cooks like to make the pie as usual, boil down the skin with cores and a little water, add sugar and carefully make a hole in the crust. The jelly is poured in and the pie gains a thick sauce. Add a bit of cinnamon or nutmeg and butter to make the sauce even better.

These first apples make Waldorf salad that tastes mighty good. Mix them with celery, nuts and dates. You may have to add a dash of sugar if the apples are a bit sour.
