

Injunctions to Fall, Claimed

Appeals From Rulings of Crawford not Filed; Stipulation Cited

Copies of motions for dismissal of the appeal, signed by Guy O. Smith as attorney, were placed in Moody's hands late yesterday afternoon.

Since the stipulations were drawn, Arnold and John A. Moore both filed new injunction actions in the circuit court here. Campbell did likewise but only to remedy a misunderstanding that arose locally, Moody said in Campbell's defense. In the case of Craig's suit, Moody asserted no notice of the action had been filed with him, as required, and on that ground he therefore would ask Tuesday that this matter also be quashed.

"They have been attempting through the courts to prevent me as far as Marion county is concerned from doing my duty in stopping these things," the special prosecutor declared.

The motive behind the recent injunction actions, Moody averred, was not only to make continued operation in this county possible but also to clear the way for the referendums on the Carney and Martin anti-pinball bills passed by the legislature last winter.

Present Statutes Permit Prosecution
"But even though the people should vote down the Martin and Carney bills, my cases will stand because I can prosecute under the present statute, which holds good under Judge Crawford's decision," the special prosecutor pointed out.

The history of the current pinball litigation dates back to last July. At that time Sheriff A. C. Burk at Moody's request conducted a survey of the pinball and marble game business in the county and, after he had filed his report with the special prosecutor, Moody on August 10 ordered him to give the operators five days' notice to remove their equipment. The result was the filing in circuit court here August 14 of the injunction suits by Campbell and Arnold, which were based on conditions that their machines were games of skill rather than of chance.

Three Extensions Given Operators
The two cases were moved to Multnomah county on change of venue October 6. Judge Crawford decided them last January 23 and handed down his written decree early February declaring the games to be lotteries. Giving notice of appeal, Arnold and Campbell subsequently in April, May and June obtained extensions of time in which to perfect their appeal to the supreme court.

Elton Watkins, Portland attorney who first represented Arnold, later withdrew from the case and Guy O. Smith, who was Campbell's attorney, took over. John Steelhammer of Salem is the attorney of record in the recently-filed Arnold case.

Prosecutor Moody declared that "as far as Guy Smith and Elton Watkins are concerned, they have faithfully performed their agreement with me," regarding Moody's assent to the temporary injunctions in connection with the original Campbell and Arnold suits.

In the other actions pending Moore is represented by Paul F. Burris of Salem and Craig by Walter L. Toose of Portland.

Tension Eases at Peiping Legation

breaks threatened within the ancient capital of China.

Slackening of the tension around Peiping enable the Americans to leave the heavily guarded embassy if they wished, but officials arranged for their quick return if trouble arises again.

Officials of the Japanese embassy ended their reticence concerning Japanese losses Thursday when Chinese gendarmes surrounded a Japanese garrison at Tungchow, east of Peiping, and poured deadly fire into the stronghold.

Authorities said they had learned that casualties have been heavy and that "from 350 Japanese and Koreans there in June, only three have been located thus far" after the siege.

Japanese mastery of Peiping and its environs seemed complete with only scattered resistance continuing from a few gendarmes who participated in the Tungchow battle.

Armed with machine guns, Japanese forces methodically were hunting down the gendarmes in the hills west of Peiping.

Thomas P. Thompson, Portland man who is in Salem at present and who lived in China for many years, reported Saturday that his wife at latest reports was at their home at Peitai Ho, 20 miles south of the great wall near Tientsin.

Christenson Hens Gain new Laurels In Eastern Tests

DALLAS—The remarkable records of the Oak Knoll farm's White Leghorns are making in the egg laying contests back east are phenomenal and are bringing Mr. Morris Christenson, the owner of the farm, a great deal of publicity.

Mr. Christenson has recently received a letter from Thomas E. Moncrief, egg laying editor of Everybody's Poultry Magazine, who says:

"I have watched with keen interest the remarkable records being made by your leghorn pens both at the Missouri tests and the Passaic, N. J., tests. As you undoubtedly know, your Passaic pen set a production record for May at that contest, and as far as I am able to ascertain, the record of 316 points made by your birds at Missouri during last month has not been equalled before. Also the feat of being high pen of all 1023 pens for three months straight is extra ordinary."

Mr. Christenson is considered one of the outstanding poultrymen in Oregon. He has been very successful as a poultry breeder and is represented on the governing boards of a number of poultry organizations.

Mystery of Crab Corpses Unsolved

PORTLAND, Ore., July 31.—(P)—The mystery of "who killed the crabs" remained today after a month of study by biologists, fishermen and other experts.

Coastal residents recently awakened to find Clatsop beaches littered with thousands of dead female crabs. A few days later, in another nearby location, they found countless dead male crabs.

Angry fishermen, fearing off-shore trawlers netting fish might have destroyed the crabs by dragging the ocean bottom, demanded an investigation.

M. T. Hoy, master fish yarden of Oregon, exonerated humans. He suggested some oceanic disturbance "of which we know nothing" was the cause. He pointed out that some shells seemed petrified, indicating the crabs had been dead a long time.

Hoy said only shells with legs attached were found. Body parts were gone. He said the shells had not been crushed or damaged in a battle.

Baker Checks up On Petition Lists

Armed with a Marion county directory, J. S. Baker, Siegmund recall leader, yesterday began checking over the petitions on file at the county clerk's office in an effort to find enough signatures, among those disqualified by the clerk's staff, to enable him to demand the calling of a recall election.

Baker is seeking to establish a sufficient list of names of signers, such as those who since registration had moved to new precincts, on which to base a contest of the clerk's report that the required 4196 certified signatures had not been filed.

The clerk's staff yesterday discovered five more names in duplicate on the petitions, reducing to 3371 the number certified and raising to 795 the number by which the recall movement fell short. A list of 63 names found to have appeared more than once on the petitions was given Baker.

Exam Isn't Taken By Mrs. Becknell
MEDFORD, July 31.—(P)—Florbannah Mae Becknell, serving a 30-day sentence in the Jackson county jail for non-possession of an auto driver's license, did not take the examination for a new one as she had expressed willingness to do, but instead remained in her cell to complete the first week of her sentence.

Sheriff Syd Brown advised Mrs. Becknell he would take her to the examiner's any time during the day she desired to go. Mrs. Becknell did not telephone him.

Ranger Takes First Victory

Worst Shellacking Ever Is Given Sopwith Entry in Opening Race

By ALAN GOULD
NEWPORT, R. I., July 31.—(P)—It was Ranger by the proverbial mile today, and just about double that distance by the nautical measurement as the first race for the America's cup unexpectedly assumed all the proportions of a seagoing route to Thomas O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour 2nd, sixteenth challenger for the classic emblem of international yachting supremacy.

The snub-nosed white-hulled American defender, Ranger, sailed with characteristic and consummate skill by Harold Stirling "Make" Vanderbilt, led all the way in light streaky breezes over a 30-mile ocean course. 15 miles to windward and return. She came home in solitary splendor, her huge spinnaker billowing against a foggy background and her British rival so far astern she was scarcely discernible in the rapidly settling mists of a dismal finish as the big yacht races have ever witnessed.

Biggest Margin Ever
Victory by the overwhelming margin of 17 minutes, 5 seconds, Ranger and Vanderbilt established their combined supremacy, for the time being, by handing the challenger the worst shellacking in the past half century of America's cup history.

Ranger negotiated the course in 4 hours, 41 minutes, 15 seconds. The challenger, approximately two miles behind after a final and futile hunt for more wind, was timed in 4:58:20.
