Punishing Oregon?

A few days ago there appeared in the Oregonian a letter signed by Col. Harekett, assistant administrator for PWA in Washington...

To those who have been in touch with negotiations for the federal grant the Harekett letter was most amazing. In the first place it is very unusual for a high public official to disseminate information by "letters to the press."

The Hayden amendment specifically set up funds for PWA allotment to cover projects for which legislatures had made appropriations, which very definitely covered the Oregon case.

Informed circles here wonder if Oregon has not been singled out for punishment because its senators defied the president on his command to pass the court bill.

That the rule of an eye for an eye and a grant for a vote prevails in Washington has long been recognized.

These episodes also build up Jimmie as an important figure. The latest beneficiary from such a deal was Rep. Lyndon Johnson who was sent to Washington as a 100 per cent Rooseveltian in a special election only a few months ago.

It will be astonishing if, even to punish Oregon, the administration withholds the grant to Oregon, for which it has made morally binding commitments.

Newspaper Subscription Rates

Newspaper publishers all over the country have suffered in the last two years because their operating costs were mounting faster than their gross income.

This area has long been a "low" as far as costs of its newspapers are concerned. Here are comparisons with other cities of the northwest, for the daily paper delivered by carrier.

The principal elements of cost in newspaper operation are newsprint and wages. Prices of paper have already had two increases with a third jump of $7.50 per ton announced for next year.

Another factor in newspaper production is the constant demand for new and costly features. If we could publish the kind of paper that was acceptable years ago the old rates would be sufficient.

Back in 1851 when The Statesman was founded, subscribers paid $3.00 a year for a four-page weekly. It contained Bush's editorials, political gossip, "miscellany," and advertising and legal notices.

The constant effort of a responsible publisher is to give his subscribers just as fine a newspaper as is possible with the revenues available. That pledge holds with The Statesman.

New-Style Utopia

A new style utopia is proposed by H. L. Mencken, writing in the American Mercury, - utopia by sterilization. He suggests that the best way to reduce today's sorrows and obliterate those of tomorrow is to sterilize large numbers of males, both white and black, so they can no longer beget, and thinks the readiest way to induce them to submit is to pay them an indemnity of say $50 a head.

That utopia is quite as far distant as social credit, the TOARP, and all the others that are brain children of those who attempt heavy thinking in these days. Even the apostles

Bits for Breakfast

By R. J. HENDRICKS

Smith-Chamberlain 8-1-37... 1846 covered wagon trains.

(Concluding from yesterday:) One may find on page 43, volume 2, Bancroft's Oregon History, words in paragraphs about the receipt in Oregon of the news of gold discovery in California that are of interest in this setting.

By the way, the discovery was made by two Polk county men, James W. Marshall and Stephen Staats, and a Marion county man, Capt. Chas. Bennett.

The news seemed too good, or too wild, to be true. The doubting Thomas attitude was noted, even Chief Factor James Douglas, just home on a Hudson's Bay company ship from Hawaii, was disinclined to believe the reports.

In the midst of this matter, one finds these words:

"But in a few days more the tidings had traveled overland by letter, ex-Governor Boggs having written to some of his former Missouri friends in Oregon by certain men coming with horses to the Willamette valley for provisions, that much gold was found on the American river."

"No one doubted longer; covetous desire quickly increased to a delirium of hope."

"The late Indian disturbances were forgotten; and from the rippling harvests came a way out... Far more went to the gold mines than had volunteered to fight the Cayuses... The farms were abandoned to women and boys."

Well, who was this "ex-Governor Boggs" who wrote "some of his former Missouri friends"? His second wife was a Boone, aunt of Chloe Donnelly Boone, the first school teacher in Polk county, who was married later to George L. Curry, fifth, seventh, eighth and last territorial governor of Oregon.

Lillburn W. Boggs had a colorful career. Born Dec. 14, 1792, died March 4, 1860. He married Julia, a daughter of Judge Silas Bent, thus identifying himself with the famous fur trading group.

He had stores at Fort Osage, the New Harmony mission, then at the town of Independence, starting place of scores of thousands of covered wagon immigrants. His first wife, a Bent of the Bents' family, relative of governors, having died, he married Panthea Boone, granddaughter of Daniel Boone of Kentucky.

Boggs served in the Missouri state senate, 1826; reelected, 1830; elected lieutenant governor in 1832, governor in 1836, defeating the famous popular W. H. Ashley. He took sides against the Mormons, in the bitter Mormon war; promoted the new Missouri state capitol, the initial appropriation $75,000, and in 1840 $200,000 having been expended, and the structure yet unfinished; there had been a depression, and cheap dollars. He promoted the state bank, established the state university and the public school system. Shortly after his retirement as governor, he was the victim of a murder attempt, universally believed to have been instigated by the Mormons.

He had taken a filing (1829) in the Santa Fe trade. Was the state senate, 1842-6, and in that time broke with the powerful U. S. Senator Thomas H. Benton faction. By 1846 he had two sons in the Rocky mountain fur trade, and with his wife he joined the 1846 caravans for the ultimate west, as already said. The Boggs contingent landed in Nagasaki, California. The Mexican war brought a breakdown of the Mexican regime, and this former governor of Missouri was in the nick of time to become alcalde, practically governor, of all California north of a line running east and west through Sacramento. And this lasted until California became a state—through the most tempestuous times, in the history of rush days, in the history of the section that is now a part of Oregon's sister state to the south.

He was Governor Boggs then, (through being alcalde), in a period and place where there was depression, but a wild boom, and he entered into trade again and for the first time gathered wealth. He paid his heavy and numerous debts, and retired to his Napa valley farm, where he spent his remaining years.

Bancroft said letters were sent by Boggs to former Missouri friends "by certain men coming with horses to the Willamette valley for provisions," telling that the report of gold discovery in California was true.

What supplies were they after, of new deal regimentation haven't had nerve enough to plow under every third row of potential fathers, preventing them from spawning and populating the cotton belt and the slums with more to be listed among the "ill-fed, ill-clothed, and ill-housed."

Gov. Martin urges the game commission to double the output of fish hatcheries and bird farms to make Oregon a sportsman's paradise for the tourists. The natives would be happy if more fish and game were propagated and the tourists kept out.

"Things have come to a serious pass in the federal government when even the Indians protest against the "reds" in the federal administration. At least the Indians can prove their claims of being "100% American."

The home ec editors say this is the proper season for meals "al fresco." That means eating outdoors. It also means ants in the cheese and yellow jackets in the pear preserve.

Seattle has sent one of its old cable cars to the Smithsonian institution for storage as a relic. Most cable cars have tried riding the Seattle streets think that's where they all came from.
