been made toward an appeal and is binding only on Campbell and Arnold.
Claims Not Bound By Stipulations
"Although my client was not legally bound by the stipulation in the Arnold and Campbell cases, it appears that it was the intent of all parties concerned that the provisions of the stipulation should govern as far as the operation of pinball and marble boards in Marion county was concerned," Tooze explained. "These marble boards are not lotteries in any sense and we have other cases pending in other courts which will be heard. One or more of these cases may be finally determined in the supreme court."
"We propose to try these cases in the courts and not in the newspapers."
Prosecuting officers in Washington, Yamhill, Douglas and Klamath counties were reported as contemplating moving to drive pinball machines out of their territories. In Polk county District Attorney Bruce Spaulding said he proposed to act immediately after conferring with Prosecutor Moody. Under an agreement with the Polk county court, Arnold has been running his games in that county and paying $125 a month for the privilege. His machines also have been licensed by the Independence and Moore mouth city councils.
John A. Moore, one of the four recent injunction-seekers, had not decided yesterday what he would do about his machines, his attorney, Paul Burris indicated. Arnold was gathering up his boards in this county in preparation to John Steelhammer, his attorney.

Solomon Case Not Kidnaping

pending a decision on his custody in the civil courts.
Crowley opined the Regans were the "natural parents" of Donald but commented the Horsts had given him "excellent care" since they obtained him in a manner designed to give "neighbors" the impression he was their real child.
All were released.
Crowley and Captain Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorneys police linked this chain of events together after the Regans ended a 16-hour hunt for the child by surrendering and disclosing he was at their home.
Donald was borne by Miss Nelson January 6, 1935, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ewert.
Miss Nelson agreed to let the doctor arrange to place the infant with a "wealthy man" who wanted a child but signed no papers.
Crowley said a birth certificate, purporting to show the Horsts were the parents, was filed.
The assistant prosecutor disclosed Solomonomic tactics had aided in cutting through the maze of conflicting stories.
"Mrs. Horst didn't recall what day the baby was born on," he said. "Mrs. Regan said 'Sunday' right away."
Little Donald was taken away from his yard in an exclusive residential area on the northwest side last night. Crowley deprecated a report that $5,000 ransom had been demanded.
"The only real source of information concerning a demand for money has come from Mrs. Horst," said Crowley.
The Regans denied making any ransom demand.

Railroad Workers Controversy Ends

WASHINGTON, August 4.—(AP)—The national mediation board announced tonight settlement of a controversy resulting from a wage increase demand by non-operating brotherhoods of railroad workers.

The settlement covers between 750,000 to 800,000 rail employees in the non-operating crafts. On a basis of 1936 operations, the board said, the increase would amount to approximately $98,000,000 annually for the class one railroads of the country.
