Ten Supervisors Slated to Check Farmers in Federal Program

DALLAS—For the purpose of determining the participation and compliance of the 1300 work sheets in Polk county who have signed up under the 1937 agricultural conservation program, ten supervisors started work last week under the direction of Bert Caster, assistant secretary of the Polk county association.

These supervisors, many of whom worked last year on this program, are for the most part representative farmers. They have been allotted certain sections of the county and will visit all of the cooperators in their respective districts in order to find out what practices each farmer has followed to earn the soil building allowance on his farm.

It is hoped that these payments will be made sooner this year than last. The total amount of payments in this county should be somewhat larger than last year's total of $73,000 as there are many more farmers signed up this year.

About 91 per cent of the crop land in Polk county is included in the 1937 agricultural conservation program according to records in the county agent's office.

A complete list of the supervisors for Polk county this year follows:

L. J. Sechrist—Ballston and Grand Ronde.

J. H. Voth—Salt Creek and North Dallas.

J. C. Richlie—Bethel and Perrydale.
