Fur Coat Will Lead in Vogue

Return to Luxury Marked With Swagger Styles Widely Popular

By ROBERTA GRANT
All of the fashion forecasts predict that this will be an opulent fall and winter, with luxury the keynote of every smart costume. A lavish and extremely well guarded—and then came the coronation and the Paris exposition to add particular impetus to this trend toward more and more luxurious living. Furs are, of course, the very epitome of luxury—and you are going to see them at their loveliest as they interpret the 1936-'37 styles of the famous couturiers.

Swaggers High in Favor

Swagger, boxy fur coats are slated for the best year ever—and no fur is apparently too precious to assume the simple lines of the swagger with vast distinction. The most popular length for mink coats, for instance, is expected to be 36 to 44 inches in boxy silhouettes, and the new square shouldered effect usually will replace last year's favorite raglan sleeves.

You're sure to notice that this season's swaggers are not quite so full as last year's—modified to hang loosely, but without folds, in straighter silhouettes. And you'll heartily welcome this slenderizing trend. The new square shouldered lines (sometimes either padded or built out) are complemented by the simple, tapering design of the new swaggers' sleeves, which are made as a rule without any unusual details. Their plainness is sometimes even emphasized by a bit of a slit at the wrist which emulates the tailored trimness of a man's cuff.

Tuxedo front swaggers are particularly swanky in such soft furs as squirrel. And gray is one of the best passwords to smartness in sports coats this fall. Along with gray squirrel you'll find the dark gray shade in caracul and other members of the lamb family, as well as silvertone muskrat. And you certainly owe it to yourself not to forget racoon, ocelot, leopard and leopard cat when choosing your sports swaggers—you'll find them more youthfully chic than ever in this season's clever new styles.

Accent on Brown Furs

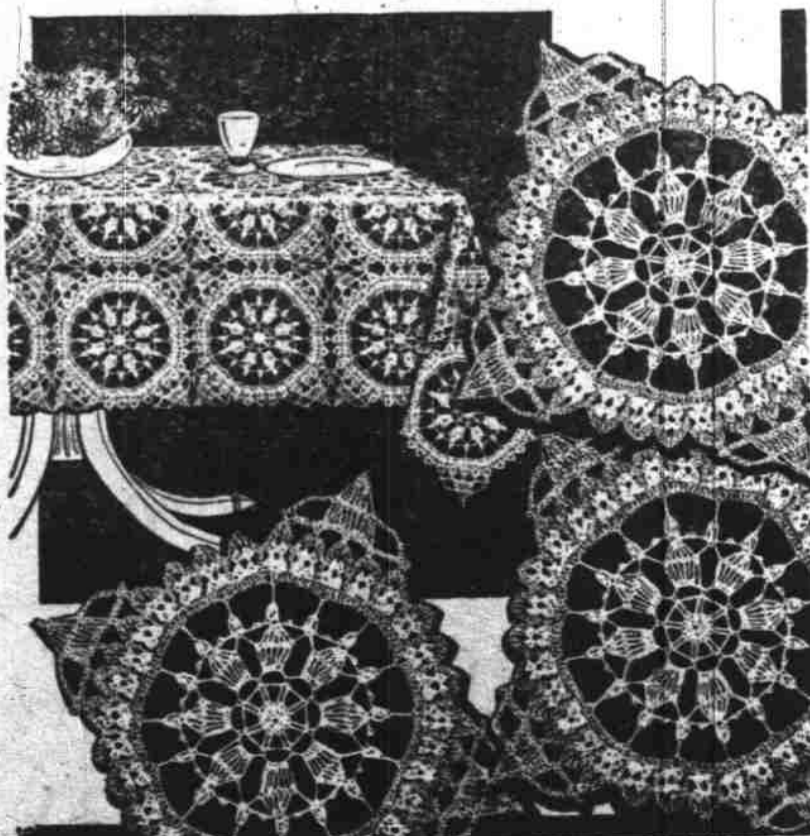

It's going to be a brown year, according to the style prophets of some of the fur experts! Mellow browns, which have always been among fall's and winter's favorite colors in other types of apparel, are expected to be much sought after in furs. Especially fetching are the sombre beige tones shading into brown in some of the new Persian lamb coats. Safari brown Alaska seal, as well as the deeper logwood shades in this rich fur, are to be very important. And we're going to be seeing many more sable dyed kolinsky coats than before. Brown caracul and kidskin also are due to have a wide following, and you know what sleek flatterers these inexpensive furs are! Of course mink, fox mink, beaver, nutria, and

Crochetet Square

Its "repeats" will follow in quick succession for it is simple to do in economical string and makes delightful pick-up work. You may use the same color throughout, if you prefer. Pattern

Provide $154,696 For Month Relief

PORTLAND, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Oregon's public assistance bill for September, $154,696, was authorized today by the state relief committee.

Expenditure of $276,413 for old age assistance in August! $10,419 for blind assistance and $28,515 for the care of dependent children was approved.

Elmer R. Goudy, administrator, reported 35.1 per cent of the 20,316 cases handled in August were for direct relief. Old age assistance represented 53.9 per cent of the total; blind assistance, 1.9 per cent, and dependent children, 3.3 per cent.

General assistance cases dropped from $270 in June to 7,559 in July, Goudy said. Old age assistance declined but aid to the blind and dependent children increased.

Delk Home at Oakdale Is Destroyed by Fire

OAKDALE — The house belonging to David Delk and family, the old Creed place, was burned to the ground Saturday. The children were home alone when the fire started.

The new chicken house near by was saved. Mr. Delk had insurance on the house.

S. Stephenson Smith, president of the Oregon Commonwealth Federation and professor at the University of Oregon, asked the committee to "rescind its order removing from relief rolls families with one or more employables."

The committee, however, denied that it had ever issued the order.

A petition from the Workers' Alliance that the organization be represented on state and county relief committees was tabled, the committee having no control over its membership.

OSC Bulletin Has Pointers, Culling Of Turkey Flock

Individual culling of the poultry flock is just about a year-round task, but there are definite seasons, usually in late spring and late summer, that flock culling is done to advantage, says H. E. Conby, head of the poultry department at Oregon State college, in the latest extension bulletin, entitled, "Culling the Poultry Flock." This is a revision of previous bulletins on this subject and includes considerable additional information.

The bulletin discusses the comparative value of factors used to indicate profitable producers, such as vigor and health, yellow pigment, moult, body changes, head, and temperament. No one factor is a complete guide taken by itself, according to the bulletin, although vigor is the foundation of a successful poultry

Pan-American Is Furniture Trend

A well known manufacturer located in the middle west has noted the great curiosity people are showing in the colorful Pan-American countries and is starting to do something about it by introducing a new style in furniture design.

Known as Mexican modern, the new line is made of tropical and native hardwoods and, in addition to a new finish termed desert dawn, employs brilliant Pan-American colors, typical Mexican motifs, and new details.

Sombrero drawer pulls, cactus motif trims, tile inserts, Mexican bubble glass panels, authentic hardware inspired by Mexican saddle trims, and a host of other clever ideas are incorporated into bedroom and dining suites to make them really unique.

Hues of Hosiery Offer Surprises

Stockings always provide delightful surprises when it comes to the colors which a new season introduces. And this fall is no exception with its gorgeous range of coppery tones and reddish beige shades.

Their very names suggest the autumn-haunt (a soft reddish copper), cedar (a vivid yellowish copper), quail (a warm light brown, toasty shade), red fox (an especially rich reddish brown), Partridge (taupe with a deliciously soft brown cast), and chipmunk (something rather neutral in the way of beige).

Grays subtly tinged with brown include the new bayberry, pheasant, woodsmoke, and pine cone.

Best Suit Season In Years, Outlook

The stores are predicting the biggest suit season in years, so if you would be well dressed be sure to include at least one suit costume in your wardrobe. Choose from among these four types: The three piece, which consists of a two piece suit with a topper or cape; the tuxedo, in tweed or mannish worsted; the formal tuxedo, in suede or smooth doeskin to be worn with a fur scarf; the fur jacket ensemble, those elegant costumes that have been so smart the last season or two.

Knitted fashions will always have devoted admirers among women of all ages. College girls, of course, find nothing that is more comfortable or better suited to the rigors of campus life. Older women feel well dressed in knits, and there is an increased following among them for dresses of this type.

Bags Will Match Shoes in Details

Smart women have long known the advantages of properly correlated accessories. But fall will bring a new meaning to matched bags and shoes that you're sure to like. Not only will shoes be made of the same materials and in the same colors but they'll have identical style details.

For instance, we saw a suede shoe with patent trim at side and toe. Next to it was displayed a suede bag with patent stripes in the same design as that carried on the shoe. Another shoe of suede with patent stitching in two rows of white and green had its matched bag in flower pot shape carrying the identical motif. Still another smart effect was created by the showing of a bow type bag with slot openings suggesting the treatment on the vamp of its accompanying shoe.

That should be enough to tell you that your hunt for fall and winter shoes will be interesting indeed, exciting too.

Rug Hues Feature Extreme Variety

As rugs and floor coverings are the medium that ties the whole home furnishings picture together—thus both light and dark shades in plain colored broadloom and texture, pile rugs are sharing the style spotlight. The good earth shades and medium colors share the honors with beige and rosy tones. Many patterned rugs and period type carpets, as well as all-over designs in modern feeling, are being shown.

Breakfast room and dinette furniture is leaning heavily towards modern. Upholstered seats or shaped wood seats, designed to make "eating a pleasure," will replace the hard straight seat of past seasons.
