They Keep Race Fans Informed

Enjoyment Aided By Loud Speaker

Announcer Car Tells Race Fans and Vaudeville Crowds of Events

State fair racing fans in the afternoon and vaudeville audiences at night have been kept informed minute by minute of the program as they transpired by E. T. Garesche, general Standard Oil company announcer, assisted by Zack Killian, at this year's fair.

Garesche, who directs the oil company's public address service at stands throughout the northwest states, is serving here at his fourth out of the last five Oregon fairs. He missed the 1936 fair.

Many favorable comments have come to Garesche and to Ernest V. John, local Standard representative, regarding the announcer service, whose volume and quality has made announcements audible throughout the grandstand area.

Garesche was in Salem earlier this year to announce events at the Oregon Air tour sky circus at the municipal airport.

Zack Taylor, who has been manning the microphone daily to keep the audience posted on the progress of the afternoon races, is a professional at the game, has handled similar assignments at Bay Meadows, near San Francisco, at Hot Springs, Ark., San Antonio, Texas, and at Kansas City. He has given up the midwest and extreme southern circuits, however, because of the heat, and is staying on the coast.

Above, Standard Oil company public address car which E. T. Garesche, below, as announcer, has used in keeping state fair racing fans and night vaudeville audiences informed regarding the programs and entertained with intermission music.

Waldo Hills Man Suffers Eye Hurt

WALDO HILLS—Frank M. Egan is in Silverton hospital with bandaged eyes following an accident at his farm home in the Centerville district Thursday morning.

A stick striking him in left eye blinded him for some time. He was rushed to Silverton and then in the afternoon sent him to Dr. Brown in Salem. Following treatment he was sent back to Silverton to the hospital.

The iris of the eye is scattered and the lid injured. He will not be able to be brought home until the middle of next week. Threshing in the Evergreen district was finished Wednesday as the Elmer King machine closed exactly five weeks of work.

Most hog growers are not trying to pick their entire yards. In some cases mold has appeared and in some the hogs have got too ripe due to a shortage of pickers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Day have rented their 65 acre farm to Harry Turrell of Silverton who will move immediately. Mr. Day, who two years ago erected modern buildings on the land, has returned to work with the Southern Pacific at Eugene.

Big Development Due at Crescent

KLAMATH FALLS, Sept. 10—(AP)—Seeking construction of a railroad grade crossing on the Willamette highway near the Deschutes river, B. V. Wright, representative of the Gilchrist Timber company, pictured to the state public utilities commission today, construction of a million-dollar company town and $500,000 sawmill at Crescent, 95 miles north of here.

The development would be made to log the huge timber holdings of the company in northern Klamath county and Wright predicted that between 250 and 300 men would be needed for the logging project. Construction of a $125,000 dam on the Deschutes and 11 miles of railroad from the millsite to the Southern Pacific main line also would be included in the program.

The company's petition for the crossing has been opposed by the state highway commission on the basis that the highway, a $5,500,000 project, will be a heavy traffic carrier when completed and that the crossing would be a hindrance.

Maintenance Task On Santiam Begun

Maintenance work on the North Santiam highway sector in the jurisdiction of the county court has been started as the result of inspection trips made with County Engineer Hubbs by members of the court.

The court has a patrol grader working on the road and gravel will be placed on rough spots. Weeds and grass along the roadside will also be cut.

The bureau of public roads maintains its work on such parts of the road which are not completed.

Saucer Etiquette Causes Cafe Man To Die From Rage

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 10—(AP)—William Falhaber, 68, proprietor of the Liberty cafe, died from rage here last night because his Greek cook, Paul, last name unknown, insisted on drinking coffee from his saucer.

Detective Sergeant Lee Markwood and Deputy Coroner Barnhart made the official report after Paul had dashed frantically into the police station with a wild tale of being chased from the cafe by a shotgun in his employer's hands. When the officers went to investigate they found Falhaber dead behind the counter, the shotgun still gripped before him.

Paul said Falhaber was "awful mad" because he wouldn't keep his spoon in the cup to extract the heat and insisted on drinking from the saucer. Paul left when Falhaber started to enforce the argument with the gun.

Barnhart said the rage caused heart failure.

Blue and Gray to Hold Joint Event

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 10—(AP)—The Grand Army of the Republic voted last night to join consideration of veterans in a blue-gray reunion at Gettysburg, Pa., next summer.

In the resolution accepting the invitation of the Pennsylvania commission in charge of the event, however, the GAR inserted a clause that "such reunions have in view only the flag of this United States of America."

A long controversy over the flag question preceded the decision of the union veterans, which was announced after four hours of conferences yesterday and seven today.

Realtors' Opportunity To Serve Pointed out

McMINNVILLE, Sept. 10—(AP)—Hugh H. Earle, real estate commissioner of Oregon, pointed out to real estate men of 23 Willamette valley towns their responsibilities in the upbuilding of the state through location of desirable settlers.

He addressed the regional meeting of the Willamette valley district here last night.

Grangers' News

RICKREALL—The Rickreall grange No. 671 will receive $20.50 cash prize for exhibit at the Polk county fair held at Monmouth Thursday and Friday. The score 9 on arrangements and 5 on flowers were highest. A high rate upon textiles was received but fruits and agriculture exhibits were not completed. The score totaled 67 points.

The local community fair sponsored by the Rickreall grange will be October 1.

In the open competition the Rickreall ladies took many prizes in needlework.

In the 4-H Forestry club there was no competition and they took all six places.
