Less than two weeks after its opening for business in Salem, the Gevurtz Furniture company has already found it necessary to obtain additional quarters for expansion, it was revealed Monday.

Greatly encouraged by the immediate response of the public, following its opening in the former Montgomery Ward location on North Liberty, the furniture company management has leased half of the basement space of the adjoining Busick market building for an exchange and used furniture department.

Plans are now under way for construction of an addition on property at the rear of the Busick market, to be utilized as a finishing room and for additional display of used furniture.

State Utility Commissioner Wallace Monday refused to take any action on the complaints of Joseph E. Wallace said that if there had been any violations they would come under the interstate commerce commission and not the state utility department.

Harvey particularly complained of Portland establishments which were alleged to have placed wagers on dog and horse races held in other states.

Teachers to Get Contracts Today

Will Be Paid on Fifth of Each Month; Bus Issue up at Meet Tonight

Salary contracts are expected to be ready for distribution to Salem's public school teachers today, it was announced at the administrative officers' meeting yesterday. The contracts provide for salary increases averaging 6 per cent, as provided for in the 1937-38 school budget.

The teachers last week received their first month's pay checks for the new school year and will be paid on the fifth day of each month to and including next September under the new contracts. Payment of one-half month's salary October 5 and 15 last year caused a school board disagreement which lasted until the recent auditors' report which upheld in part both sides to the controversy.

Among matters to be considered at tonight's regular school board meeting are a committee report on requests for transportation of high school students from the southwest corner of the city to the new building at 14th and D streets. Another matter will be establishment of a policy regarding free use of school auditoriums to non-profit groups, provided for by the budget committee through a $500 appropriation.
