

Stocks Rally For Third Day

Late Advance in Rails Is Best Bolster for all Issues

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—In the third successive rally since Monday's climactic relay, the stock market today retrieved 1 to 3 points generally of its recent losses. There were a few gainers of 4 to 11. The list was forced to climb over widespread selling headlines and further dilatoriness of steel. But a late upturn in rails, attributed to rumors of an imminent favorable freight rate decision by the interstate commerce commission, brought in buyers for virtually all departments.

Profits piled up by nimble traders who stepped in and bought the first of the week tempted some and offerings soon were sufficient to cut down initial advances substantially. After noon, minus signs were in the majority.

Carriers, Steels up
Strong support for the carriers in the final lap, though, turned the tide for recovery forces and even steels cut down their declines or replaced them with moderate gains.

Transfers totaled 3,636,051 shares compared with 4,336,620 the day before.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 1.1 points at 49.8. It had recovered all of this week's break, the sharpest in more than four years.

Mott Busy Before Going to Capital

Next Monday Mott will speak before the chamber of commerce at Hillsboro. On Tuesday he will address the Roseburg Kiwanis club and chamber of commerce there. At Eugene on Wednesday he will speak before the chamber of commerce and Lions club.

Relief Load Will Be Heavy, Stated

Oregon's relief load for the coming winter promises to be heavier than for several years, provided the mills and other kindred plants are not reopened, Governor Charles H. Martin declared Thursday.

"There are a lot of millworkers out of employment at the present time," Governor Martin said, "and many of these will apply for relief. Where we are going to get sufficient money to cope with the situation is a problem."

Governor Martin indicated that he would confer with state relief officials within the next few days.

Japan Overrated Senator Asserts

PORTLAND, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Senator Robert R. Reynolds, North Carolina, senate territorial and insular affairs committee member, today characterized Japan as the "most overrated nation in the world."

Speaking before the Willamette democratic society, the senator scoffed at talk of war between the United States and Japan. He declared President Roosevelt would keep the US out of war and that Japan is a non country, not a self sufficient within its own boundaries but dependent upon the world for many commodities.

"We have no business interfering with affairs of other nations, except in conferences," he added.

"The Silver Road Mystery"

By LEWIS ALLEN BROWNE

CHAPTER XXXIII
I slept rather late and had breakfast alone in the sun room. Sally came out to sit with me. She had been asleep when I got in, and I was asleep when she got up. I told her in a low voice, about Morin's proof.

"Sally?"
"So it seems to me, I will know, I hope, this afternoon. I have to get to New York—have to fly to Newark again because I overslept and missed the early train."

Mason came out with the mail. The carrier had just left it. There was nothing for me. One of Sally's letters was from a friend in France, the blue postage stamp reminded me of Lardau.

"Oh, yes, I forgot—they've found Professor Lardau and he is coming back here," I said.

There was a slight crash. I glanced up. Mason had dropped the little metal tray on which he brought out the letters. He seemed to be thoroughly embarrassed. It was the first time I had ever seen his face red.

"Coming back? Have they arrested him?" Sally asked.

"That's the queer part of it." I noticed that Mason took a napkin from the serving tray and was wiping the tray. "Lardau is coming back willingly, the cablegram said. My bet is that he will escape."

I told her my reasons for believing this. Just as I was to be driven to Meadowville to get a plane, Phil called me.

"That's straight, Harley," he said.

"What, where are you?"
"Back in Hoboken. There was a fire in Carlstadt about twenty-one years ago—I have the figures. It destroys some records."

"Thanks. Keep watch of those people. My guess is that we are beginning to get hot."

"That's good. This is deadly dull. If I weren't getting well paid I'd chuck it."

I asked Sally to go up and tell Mary and Mrs. Stapleton that they were bringing Professor Lardau back, and that we would be able to get his story in about a week.

Corn Goes up; Wheat Wavers

Near Working Basis With Europe Contributes to big Rally

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Sustained upturns of corn values today, 2 cents a bushel in some cases, contrasted strongly with wheat vacillation resulting in prices unchanged to 1/2 lower.

Corn owed its upward trend chiefly to the fact United States corn is now figured to be within 3 to 4 cents of a working basis for export to Europe. Trade authorities here said it looks as if the remaining surplus of corn in Argentina may be insufficient for European needs.

Export Demand Slow
A decided let-up of export demand for wheat from North America was largely responsible for wheat price losses that at one stage amounted to 1 1/2 cents a bushel.

At the close, Chicago corn futures were 3/4 to 1 cent higher compared with yesterday's finish.

Dalhover to Face Federal Charges

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Justice department officials said they will seek to indict James Dalhover, survivor of the Brady gang, next week at Hammond, Ind., for violating the federal bank robbery law.

The government's decision to seek the indictment came while Dalhover waited in Marion county jail at Indianapolis, Ind., for federal and state authorities to agree on a scene for his trial.

Dalhover and his two companions, Al Brady and Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., were being sought for several crimes when they were trapped by federal agents in Bangor, Me., October 12. Brady and Shaffer died in the ensuing gun battle.

Marketing Lambs Increase Forecast

Lower Prices Will Result, Until Next April, Bureau Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—An increase in market supplies of fed lambs and a decrease in prices was forecast today by agricultural department for the season, December through next April.

The report said the number of lambs fed this fall and winter is more than offset by a decrease in western states.

The bureau said price of slaughter lambs in December probably will be somewhat higher than a year earlier but added that the seasonal advance from January to April would be less than the same months this year.

Expect Weakened Demand
The bureau said a probable weaker demand for meats and wools would lower the average price for the coming season compared with last season.

Total supplies of sheep and lambs for the December-April period will be no larger than in 1936-37, the report said.

It reported that lamb prices strengthened early this month after a decline in September, with prices at Chicago for the week ended October 16, $1.50 a hundredweight higher than a year earlier.
