

Open Race for Vacancy Faced

McKay, Francisovich in Limelight Along With Other Prospects

While the democratic inter-ecine scrap has absorbed attention, republicans are not to be ignored in figuring on the next governor. In fact astute politicians figure the republicans should profit by the Martin-McKay feud and be the beneficiaries of democratic discontent whether Martin wins or loses in the primaries.

Oregon always has three potential candidates for governor: the three members of the ruling triumvirate, the board of control. Rufus Helman, state treasurer, is another whose decision to run for governor would not be affected by Martin in or out.

Secretary Snell included Peter Zimmerman as a potential candidate for governor on the republican ticket. The Yamhill ex-senator ran independent in 1934, supported Union candidate Lemke for president in 1936, has frequently lambasted both old parties.

Considering that, if he aspires to the office, he might, wait and run independent again if signs seemed favorable.

P. J. Stadelman of The Dalles, who served as House's secretary of state and is now state senator, has been mentioned for the governorship. Pete's taste of official life was better than he anticipated, and he would like to get back to Salem. He's no speech-maker, and would have to depend on his friends for much of the campaigning. He is well able to make a campaign, financially,—a fact which makes him look like a good meal ticket for the professional political promoters of whom there are several now without visible means of support.

For his fine record as senate ways and means chairman, Dean Walker is often proposed for promotion to the governorship. Lucid in debate, fair and judicious, hard-headed in business matters he deserves great credit for the state's healthy financial condition. No demagogue, his chances depend on how much the state has returned to sanity.

The coming week may see developments; perhaps Willis Mahoney may make the big decision his following is anxious to hear. Trial balloons on republican senatorial candidates will be turned loose. At any rate, set down 1938 as a year when Oregon politics will be steamed up from New Year's to election day.

War Threats Held Due to Capitalism

In order to get people into war, said Burt, it is necessary to identify it with those things people love more than they hate war. In this respect democracy is dressed up to cover the economic condition which is really responsible for the war, he continued.

Kansas-born Burt sprang from the mining fields into the Methodist ministry where he was a member of the Methodist board of education, became interested in the socialist party and soon after beginning active work in it, was named national executive secretary.

Lake Shipping Lags Near End; Second Best Year

Although the 1937 shipping season on the Great Lakes rolled up an impressive showing during the early months, the movement of iron ore and coal on the world's greatest inland waterway has fallen off sharply of late. Ore shipments were expected to total 60,000,000 tons and coal shipments better than 40,000,000 tons but numerous carriers have been laid up in the past month and tonnage for September fell off sharply. Total shipments of iron ore up to Oct. 1 total 54,812,122 gross tons in comparison to 33,762,588 for the same period last year. Coal shipments up until Oct. 1 total 35,314,337 tons, well over last year's record mark of 32,729,190 tons for the same period.

John Minneman was general manager of the production which was presented by Theta Alpha Phi.

Between acts Robert Clarke, homecoming manager, presented the silver loving cup for first prize in the sign contest sponsored by the campus living organizations to Alpha Phi Alpha sorority. Second honors went to Alpha Psi Delta fraternity.

New faculty members were introduced at the alumni banquet held in the First Methodist church last night as part of the homecoming celebration. C. S. Emmons presided as toastmaster.

Battle North of Shanghai Raging

British and American troops in the international settlement reported they saw no signs of the Chinese withdrawing from Shanghai.

The Japanese sought to smash the 25-mile front northwest of this city, the contending forces fighting through a maze of creeks and canals. Heavily reinforced Chinese and Japanese armies fought desperately, the Japanese seeking to smash the 25-mile front northwest of this city, the Chinese striving to hold the lines by which they maintain contact with Shanghai.

Athletic Program Will Be Launched

An athletic program, in continuation of the summer's recreational work, sponsored by the state department of education in alliance with WPA and the Salem schools, will begin tomorrow night in the gymnasium at old senior high school, according to Vera Gilmore, director and superintendent of the work. Classes, open to the general public at no charge, will be held from Monday to Friday night inclusively, 7 to 9:30. The whole third floor of the old high school building is available, and rooms other than the gymnasium will be used if necessary, according to Gilmore.

Cotter Gould, assisted by Maynard Clark and Don Reed, all three on the WPA recreational staff, will be in charge of the adult program. Children will be under the supervision of Violet Nichols.

Frank Deckebach Called by Death

(Continued from page 1) group. He was a charter member of the old Illahee Country club. Other affiliations were held with the Masons, Elks, Eagles and Rotary.

Mr. Deckebach was already well known in the northwest before he came here. Born in Cincinnati, O., August 6, 1864, he engaged in banking there for some time. He married Adele Louise Hines who survives him in 1888, coming west in 1889.

He assisted in platting the original townsite of Hoquiam, Wash., and in organizing the Bank of Hoquiam, now the First National. He then went to Olympia, where he was register of the land office 1897 to 1902 and was the founder of the Olympia Recorder, a newspaper. He was a member of the Washington state legislature. He was also active in incorporating the Tacoma Olympia and Grays Harbor railroad before coming to Salem in 1904.

Survivors, beside the widow of Salem, are a daughter, Mrs. Helen Egan, Brooks; three sons, Frederick C., Donald C., all of Salem; and grandchildren, William H. and Adele Egan of Brooks and Frank G., III, and Caroline Deckebach, both of Salem.

Haberleis Is Injured At Independence Mill

Graybeal Counters, Run of 61 Yards Is Called Back for Clipping

(Continued from page 1) gon State marched from its own 49 to the one-yard line, with Gray passing his way down the field. With first down and four yards to a touchdown, the Oregon line buckled down to business and held solid.

Five minutes later Gray had passed his way again to the 14, but Gebhardt ended the threat by intercepting Gray's attempted touchdown toss. The "gray ghost" started his mates on their way again early in the fourth period by passing and running his way from the Oregon 40 to the three-yard line, where Oregon again held the powerful Staters' offense on downs.

Further Threats End Short of Goal

Near the end of the first half Oregon State threatened by blocking Bentley's punt, the Staters getting the ball on the Oregon 24. But Nilsen of Oregon intercepted Alexander's pass, Nilsen fumbling and giving the Staters the ball on the 15-yard line. Alexander attempted to toss a touchdown pass to beat the gun at the half, but Gebhardt intercepted it. Graybeal's touchdown run was the prettiest play of the game, even though a penalty crossed it off the books. Graybeal ran through the entire Oregon team without an opponent coming close to tackling him.

Thus Oregon repeated its victory of last year, which ended Oregon's string of four. Gray gained 138 yards from scrimmage, averaging four yards per play. Oregon State made 14 first downs to five for Oregon, gaining 195 yards from scrimmage to 78 for Oregon. The Beavers gained 82 yards by completing eight of 19 passes, while Oregon completed two of nine passes for 42 yards.

Captain Elmer Kolberg of the Oregon State squad was the second best ground gainer with 47 yards. Nicholson led the Oregon ball carriers with 22 yards. Board's Decision Assailed by AFL

(Continued from page 1) that the board's policy is to usurp powers not given it in the national labor relations act. "The decision will have no effect on the boycott of CIO lumber products, for the board has no right, legal or moral, to inject itself into a jurisdictional dispute between labor organizations. "It may be significant that the decision was made just at a time when the CIO was desperately in need of something to sustain the receding morale of its members."

VFW of District Will Gather Here

Veterans of Foreign Wars from Independence, Silverton, Dallas, and Scio will meet with Marlon post 661 of Salem for a VFW fourth district assembly at the chamber of commerce here Wednesday night. Marlon post will meet at 8 o'clock to elect officers; the district meeting will follow immediately after.

Department Commander John R. Snellstrom of Portland, coming here with other state officers, will deliver a special message to the veterans. Fred Egelus of Salem, district commander, and Orpha Egelus, district auxiliary president, have arranged for an entertainment program for the two organizations.

Reports concerning the status of Salem's bid for the 1938 department encampment will be presented.

Recent Illness Is Factor, Indicated

(Continued from page 1) ans' legislation. Stelwer carried a large share of the burden in passage of the cash bonus payment. He also was mentioned as a darkhorse presidential candidate and again as running mate for the nominee. He entered political life as assistant Umatilla county attorney in 1909. He entered the state senate in 1917, served with the United States forces in France and became senator in 1926.

Senator Charles L. McNary had just returned from a trip to the coast Saturday night and had not been previously advised of Senator Frederick Stelwer's intention not to seek reelection.

"I am very sorry to hear that Senator Stelwer does not intend to run, and I sincerely hope that he will revise his judgment in the matter," Senator McNary said.

"Throughout our association together in the senate I have always found him a fine and able colleague, with whom it was a pleasure to cooperate in all matters for the good of Oregon."
