

Courthouse Plan Favored by Lions

Need on Basis of Health, Fire Menace Cited in Resolution

The Salem Lions club voted unanimously Thursday to support the proposal to construct a new Marion county courthouse, subject of the special election next Tuesday. The club men adopted unchanged a resolution previously passed by the Lions community betterment committee, headed by Vern D. Mathis. The resolution reads as follows:

"The community betterment committee of the Salem Lions club hereby resolves that a new courthouse should be built in Salem at this time for the following reasons:

"The present building on account of unsanitary conditions, lack of room, poor arrangement of departments, lack of proper fire protection and lack of vault facilities for records is obsolete.

"The building is needed to furnish labor for our people, to finish the new building group in Salem and uphold the prestige of Marion county.

"Finally, the cost to the average taxpayer without federal aid is only approximately $2 per year for four years or $8."

The government charged the alleged remedy was without curative value and that the patients were treated by persons who were not surgeons and were incompetent to perform the alleged operations.
