Public Works or Relief

Some one raised the point in the recent courthouse election that it was wrong to spend money for a new courthouse when it could be used for relief or pensions. If it were an immediate matter of spending money for luxuries while letting folk starve the point would be well taken.

The cure for destitution is not just immediate relief; it is revival of the economic system to provide general employment, and improvement of the distribution of production.

Public works, like constructing a public building, provide employment and consume materials which are the product of labor at points remote from the job.

Constructing a public building is not of as great economic value as building a factory to produce goods, or spending money to clear land to bring it into production.

For illustration: several years ago when the county had to start paying old age pensions it included in its budget the sum estimated as needed for the purpose.

Off-Year Convention

The off-year convention of the republicans appears to be definitely off. Sponsored by former president Herbert Hoover, the idea drew fire from ex-candidate Alf Landon and Frank Knox.

Considerable of the sparring appears due to personal rivalry. Alf Landon, one-year sunflower, objected to Mr. Hoover's stepping out in front, though no one else was manifesting any sign of leadership.

Times are changing so fast it is difficult to frame a political statement now. A 1938 platform would probably be 1940 waste paper.

The democrats caught the boat on the 1932 backwash. By a policy of watchful waiting the republicans may do the same.

The Oregon Accent

Now Oregon is reviled in the house of commons. Its "accent" is held up to scorn where Edmund Burke plead for reconciliation with the colonies and Gladstone oozed his piety.

The Massachusetts accent is well known, at least the Harvard version of it. Chicago's is less distinctive. But just what is the Oregon accent?

It is altogether probable that home state organizations will rise in defense of the state's fair name. It will be contended that Oregonese is quite as good English as is spoken in the east end of London.

Hitler as Mediator

Der Fuhrer Hitler plans to cut a big swath in world politics. His scheme is to short circuit the nine-power conference by becoming personal mediator between China and Japan.

Maybe the member of parliament is so accustomed to London cockney that Oregonese grates on his ears. We are conscious of no dialect. In fact we do not agree on how to pronounce "Oregon."

Windsor not Coming

Because labor radicals saw visions of the Duke of Windsor as a stooge for fascism the duke has decided not to come to America now. This is the way it happened.

Dr. Charles W. Gordon died last week in a Winnipeg hospital. He is better known as Ralph Connor, author of "The Sky Pilot," "The Man from Glengarry" and other novels familiar to readers of fiction a-quarter-century ago.

Bits for Breakfast

By R. J. HENDRICKS

Beautiful, rich, historic 11-6-37 Spring Valley, pioneers of which were among progressive people of Oregon's early career:

(Continuing from yesterday.) The Major Walkers brought with them from Missouri, Betsey, a Negro girl aged about 12. When she grew up she was known as "Aunt Betsy," and in time she married a man of her race named Waterford, and they made their home in Portland.

One finds from the Chapman Biographical Record of the Willamette valley, published in 1903, that Dudley G. Henry came to his Spring valley farm in 1878, and that he, then (1903) had 349 acres under cultivation; that his grandfather, Alexander Henry, was a soldier of the war of 1812 and fought in the battle of New Orleans; that his father, John D. Henry, was born in Tennessee.

Then a U. S. Army captain, Smith had fought in Oregon's Indian wars, and his life was by a miracle saved, with all his command, at the battle of the Meadows, the last major engagement of the so-called Rogue River Indian war of 1855-6, which was part of the war to end the white race, extending from the Missouri river to the Pacific ocean.

Smith had for a number of months been in quest of a photograph of the identical knoll on which the battle of the Meadows was fought with a prospect that it may at an early day in the future be successful.

After the Civil war was over, Dudley farmed in Missouri until 1868, when he came to this coast "around the Horn;" raised cattle on the Feather river, Cal., then in Kikkikat, county, Wash., and came to Spring valley and, Feb. 22, 1876, married Nancy Walker, daughter of Major W. M. Walker. He engaged in street contracting in Seattle for two years, when he came and took charge of his Polk county farm as noted.

Clyde, the oldest son of the Dudley Henrys, was (1903) a druggist at Evanston, Wyoming; Wayne was a progressive citizen; member and officer of and contributor to the Presbyterian church of Zena.

Clyde is now a valued member of the city health department of Los Angeles, Cal., and has been so long that he will soon reach the age of retirement on a pension. Wayne is here on parts of the broadcast acres and has served his community in school, road and other offices for a generation. Worth is on their father's old home place and likewise making himself a useful citizen.
