Mains Job to End in March

12th St. Water Line May Be Finished Then if WPA Labor Stays

The big 12th street water main extending from Rural avenue on the south to the city limits on the north will be completed next March if sufficient WPA labor remains available to keep up the construction schedule. Water works Manager Cuyler Van Patten predicted yesterday. The main is intended to provide central and North Salem with a direct connection to the Salem-Stayton gravity supply line and as a result to increase water pressure throughout this area.

To speed up the project, which is now proceeding rapidly with a single crew, a second WPA crew will soon be assigned to take up the pipe laying job from D street northward.

High water in North Mill creek will not be permitted to delay placing the north end of the main in service, VanPatten said. While a permanent undercrossing will eventually be laid there, a temporary steel pipe connection will be swung across the stream under the Capitol street bridge if necessary.

Route Shifted Slightly—Slightly changed from earlier plans, the tentative route of the main is now as follows:

Along west side of 12th street to Marion, west side of Marion to Capitol, east side of Capitol to Nebraska street, north side of Nebraska street, along alley to Market, east side of Market to McCoy, west side of McCoy to Hunt, north side of Hunt to Capitol, east side of Capitol to Fairgrounds road, east or west side of Fairgrounds road to Great road, east side of Great road to 8th street, connect with eight-inch main laid when highway undercrossing at city limits was built.

Pipe and fittings required for the 12th street main were purchased last summer at an approximate cost of $75,000. At the south end the main is 30 inches in diameter. It tapers to 20 inches at State street and down to eight inches at Gregson street terminus.

Division Chief

Sullivan Division Manager for PGE

The appointment of George E. Sullivan, veteran employee of the Portland General Electric company, to the newly-created post of general division manager, has been announced by James H. Polhemus, executive vice president.

Prior to his new promotion, Sullivan was assistant general sales manager. Sullivan will assist in coordinating the activities of the division and district managers. He will report directly to Polhemus.

The new general division manager has been a part of the Peppo staff since his graduation from the University of Oregon in 1911. His father, T. W. Sullivan, as the company's hydraulic engineer, has had a directing hand in the building of most of Peppo's plant and dam building projects.

Legion Auxiliary Signing Members

Rapid re-enrollment of American Legion auxiliary members and enrollment of many new members brought a prediction yesterday of complete success for the auxiliary's 1938 membership campaign from Mrs. R. D. Woodrow, membership chairman. A total of 137 members have been enrolled for the new year, she announced.

"Membership workers report increasing interest in the auxiliary among the women of Salem," said Mrs. Woodrow. "Important activities ahead command the attention of all women of Legion families. Work for the disabled veterans, the dependent families, for defense of democracy for alien 'isms' and for secure peace will give auxiliary members opportunity for interesting and valuable patriotic service during the coming year."

"In this work they will serve side by side with the men of the families who are members of the American Legion. The Legion and auxiliary give families a common interest that is so often lacking in modern life. There is a place for every member of the veteran's family in Legion work; the father in the Legion, the mother in the auxiliary, the son in the Sons of the Legion and the daughter in the auxiliary's junior membership."

Forests Are Popular

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Mt. Hood and Siuslaw national forests in Oregon had more than 100,000 visitors each during the 1937 fiscal year.

Lovell Asserts Justice's Need

Fair Play Among Nations Will Bring Peace, Says Armistice Speaker

"International peace depends upon international justice; without international justice there can be no peace, so international justice is what we must work for, each according to our lot." So did Prof. R. Ivan Lovell of Willamette university warn as he closed his address at the peace rally held yesterday afternoon at the First Christian church as contribution to the Armistice progress by the local ministerial association and the youth council.

Prof. Lovell declared it will not do to let Armistice day become merely another Roman holiday.

Cites Lincoln's Words—"There is nothing we can do or say to our war dead," Lovell said, adding but that there is much "they can do for us... we survivors should, in Lincoln's words... see that they should not have died in vain."

Lovell, as a historian, related the story of the first armistice. Wilson's negotiations and famous 14 points, subsequently nullified by the treaty of Versailles, and touched upon the state of international affairs growing out of that treaty.

Don Douris, president of the Youth Council, spoke, building his theme about the emergency peace campaign picture, "For what?"

Douris also speaks over the world are speaking definitely against war but that leaders are "flinging us faster and faster toward warfare."

Ministers participating in the program were Rev. Lynn Wood, pastor of Jason Lee and president of the ministerial association; Rev. Guy Drill, pastor of First Christian church; Rev. O. E. Foster, pastor of Englewood United Brethren church; and Rev. Arno Q. Weniger, pastor of Calvary Baptist church.

Musical features were by Lois Plummer Schmidt, organist; John Schmidt, Jr., soloist; and Jason Lee young people's choir.

Short Train Bill Rates Connection Denied by Pierce

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—"Increased freight rates came long before the 70-car bill," Congressman Walter M. Pierce of La Grande, Ore., said today in answer to expressions of fear that legislation to limit freight car lengths would boost rates.

Seven Oregon farm groups urged him to oppose the measure, senate-approved, which now is before the house interstate and foreign commerce committee. It may be considered during the special session.

Tri-County Setup Added, WPA Office

Marion-Polk Headquarters to Handle Linn, Benton and Lincoln Jobs

Linn, Benton and Lincoln county WPA projects will be administered from the Marion-Polk county office here beginning next week, G. R. Boatwright, local district engineer, announced yesterday.

The tasks of supervision, time keeping and employment operations will be assumed by Boatwright's office while the old Benton-Linn county office at Corvallis will retain only engineering supervision.

Fielding Comes Here—Harold Fielding, formerly at the Corvallis office, has already come to Salem to serve as area clerk for the five counties and M. F. Low adds to his duties the time keeping supervision for the three additional counties. Harold Merrill will remain at Corvallis as engineer for the three counties.

The Benton and Linn county WPA operations formerly were entirely supervised from the Corvallis office and those in Lincoln county were directed from a district office at Tillamook.

Retired SP Head Dies

OAKLAND, Calif., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Thomas Francis Rowland, 76, retired Southern Pacific executive, died in a hospital today after a brief illness. Rowland retired as superintendent of the company's western division in 1931.

Famous Diamonds Here in Replica

15 of World's Most Noted Stones Modelled in Miller's Display

An interesting exhibit is on display today and Saturday in one of the show windows of Miller's department store. It is a magnificent collection of 15 exact models of the world's most famous diamonds, including those which rank as the largest and most historically unique.

The largest diamond in the collection, the Grand Mogul, weighs 279 carats, and the collective value of the originals is placed at about $8,000,000.

Lustrous Stone—The collection includes the famous Florentine, a 239 1/2-carat stone of lustrous beauty, with soft pink and yellow casts sparkling forth from many facets; the Orlov, of 194 1/2 carats, so perfect a replica of the original that it carries the rather deep crack in its facets that is so visible to the naked eye in the original. Other famous diamonds represented in this collection are the Pigot, the Polar Star, the Pascha of Egypt, the Shah of Persia, the Nassak, the Lichtberg, the Sancy, the Regent of Pitt, the Star of the South, the Jubilee Diamond, "Excelsior," of an original weight of 971 carats, and the Jehan Ghrir Shah.

Faithful Reproductions—The imitations are faithful reproductions of the originals in true adherence to shape, cuttings and fire. They have proved of tremendous interest to gem lovers.
