

Bronze Martin Bust Unveiled

Cabell Presents Likeness, to Stand in State's Capitol Building

State officials, federal officers and close friends of Governor Charles H. Martin stood in the executive department Monday as a bronze bust of the governor, the work of Adrian Voisin, Portland sculptor, was unveiled. The bust will occupy a place in the new state capitol building.

Speaking feelingly of the governor's service to state and nation, Henry F. Cabell, chairman of the state highway commission, made the presentation, and the Oregon state flag covering the bust was drawn aside.

"I am proud that I was selected to this honor," Cabell said, "because of our long and devoted friendship." He reviewed briefly Governor Martin's achievements while a commander in the United States army, a representative in congress and as chief executive of the state.

Governor Responds

Governor Martin, at the outset of his response, referred to Mr. Cabell as an outstanding citizen and an efficient state highway commissioner.

The governor told of his recent trip to Tulsa, Okla., where he attended the annual reunion of the old 90th division of the United States army.

"This was a gathering where generals, majors, lieutenants, sergeants and privates met on a common ground," Governor Martin said.

Class Strife Hit

"There was no meanness or class hatred at that gathering. The people of our country, in the present crisis, could well profit by that reunion."

"What a disgrace is our present class warfare. I, for one, believe we are only going through a phase of thoughtlessness, and that confidence will be restored in our leaders. I have every confidence in the American people."

Funds for the purchase of the bust were raised by Governor Martin's friends in 36 counties of the state. J. C. Alsworth, Portland banker, was chairman of the committee that raised the fund.

MEDFORD, Nov. 15—(AP)—"The best alienists available" will determine whether Fred C. Kelly's insanity complaint against former Jackson County Judge Earl H. Fehl will be heard, Circuit Judge H. D. Norton said today.

The alienists will be named after a court conference with District Attorney Frank J. Newman and Porter J. Neff, attorney for Fehl.

The judge held in abeyance Neff's request that three state prison inmates, associates of Fehl when he served a four year term for ballot theft, be subpoenaed as witnesses.

WPA Recreational Project Show Set

Among exhibits to be shown at the annual open house of the WPA adult education-recreation classes of the county to be held at the old high school Thursday night, November 18, the one by the arts and crafts classes at Turner, Stayton and Salem promises to be one of the best. According to Mrs. Winifred Kendall, one of the instructors, these classes are to have the best exhibit of this kind they have ever had. With only the class from Turner showing at the last open house the showing of papier mache articles, baskets and oil paintings was the occasion for many remarks of surprise and appreciation.

crafts classes has been good throughout the entire year, according to Earl Litwiler, county supervisor. Because so many in Salem have wanted to enroll for basketry and oil painting, it has been necessary to limit the registrations to persons sixteen or more years of age. Others are wanting to enroll so that it may be required that additional classes be organized to meet the demand.

The classes in Diesel engines, sign writing, fly tying, rug making, knitting, sewing, mining, photography and pastel drawing are also planning exhibits for the open house.
