Billion Dollar Crop Found in "Hen's Fruit" During '37

The agricultural surprise of the year promises to be "nature's perfect food"- the egg-according to officials of the National Poultry Producers Federation, citing the AAA poultry section in Washington that eggs constitute a billion dollar crop in farm value. The 1937 crop is unusually large and running into a surplus.

"If we can successfully market this year's output," said Prof. James E. Rice, dean of the poultry industry, "it will be a real service to the consuming public and for the families on five million farms having laying flocks.

"A billion dollar egg crop surpasses in farm value even the 15 million bale cotton crop and the 885 million bushel wheat crop at present prices for those staples which attract so much attention. Must Increase Eating

"The problem for egg produ-cers," continued Prof. Rice, "Is how to pass our product into con-Sumption. The department of ag-riculture estimates that the Amriculture estimates that the American public has been eating eggs at the rate of 21 dozen per person per annum. That is less than one a day on the average.

We maintain that a good heal- Medium wool thy diet calls for two eggs per day on the average for adults, and the U. S. Bureau of Home Economics recommends one whole egg a day for children.

"Throughout the country, farmers and producers generally have come together in well organized groups, allied on a nation-wide basis for an October campaign to disose of the accumulated surplus. We have had the benefit of government advice and the practical cooperation of retail merchants including the food chains which are prompting sales of our eggs in their 37,000 stores, thus giving a direct producer-consumer line of Colored hens, over 4 1/2 lbs. ____ distribution. In Downfall

Maximum Loss on Chicago Grain Is 3 Cents: More Abroad

CHICAGO, Nov. 15-(AP)-Wheat slid down about 3 cents a bushel maximum in Chicago today, and displayed but little power to rally. Corn prices hit a new bottom record for the season.

With assertions persistent that crop conditions in Argentina were better than expected, and with export demand for North American wheat almost nil, the wheat market here tumbled fast at times. A severe jolt resulted from a fall of as much as 4 % cents in Liverpool quotations and from 21/2 million bushel increase of stocks of wheat afloat for Europe.
