Rise of River Is Slower but Rain Is Heavy

Mill Creek and Shelton Ditch Threaten Flood Southeast of City

Two Ferries Stopped and Lower Silverton Road not now Passable

While small streams surged out of their banks in Marion county yesterday, the Willamette river failed to rise sharply and weather bureau predictions of a 20-foot crest this week became less definite. The river rose twotenths foot in the 24 hours ending at 10:30 o'clock last night to the 14.2 foot mark.

Mill creek and Shelton ditch gave some threat of overflowing the lowlands southeast of Salem late yesterday, City Engineer Hugh Rogers reported. The creek was spilling over its south bank a short distance below Airport road and the ditch was running almost full. Showers today and Thursday were forecast by the weather bureau to augment 1.10 inches of rain which fell between 5 p.m. Monday and 5 p.m. yesterday. With 10:02 inches of precipitation to its credit to date, this November is now the fifth "wet test" on record. November, 1896 set the present record of 16.99

River Will Continue

Rise Until Tonight The Willamette river will continue rising at least until tonight, the weather bureau predicted early yesterday. R. D. Slater, local observer, expressed doubt that the 20-foot stage forecast Monday would be reached this week.

The Albany-Lyons secondary highway remains closed six miles east of Albany. The high water has necessitated discontinuance of ferry service at both Wilsonville and Independence. An unidentified motorist was forced to abandon his automobile yesterday morning when it stalled in water flowing on the Salem-Silverton highway in the low place beyond Pudding river bridge. Three feet of water covered the roadway.

Mountain Splitting Apart Held Peril to Los Angeles Dwellers

New deep fissures appeared recently on the crest of a hill overlooking Elysian Park, a Los Angeles residential district, and, according to geologists, is widening at a rate of one-eighth of an inch an hour. A 500,000 ton segment of earth threatens to crash down a 400 foot escarpment on the edge of the district, imperiling many residents in the nearby vicinity. Authorities believe the "moving mountain" may have been started by water seepage from Elysian Park reservoir. Photo shows officials examining the widening fissure.--IIN

Provisions Are Said Unloaded At Restaurant

Truck Company Manager Demands Immediate End Denies any Change in Situation

Parcel Post Is Used in one Instance: More Complaints Due

Reports of a direct delivery of provisions to one of the two picketed Salem restaurants last night indicated a possible break in the crisis facing union trucking firms under the conflicting demands of a public utilities commissioner's order for common carriers to give services required and of a Teamsters union ban on its member drivers' passing picket lines.

The delivery was said to have been made at the Golden Pheasant cafe shortly before 7 p.m. A truck of the Willamette Valley Transfer company stopped there, while a picket paced the sidewalk, and a driver unloaded approximately 150 pounds of canned goods, it was reported. Joe H. Randall, proprietor of the cafe, identified the driver of the truck as Robert R. Bailey of Portland, manager of the trucking company. Bailey, however, questioned earlier, had denied at any delivery had been made or that the situation had changed in any way. Parcel Post Used

To Make Delivery
The Silver Wheel Motor Freight, Inc., resorted to the United States parcel post service earlier in the day to effect delivery of six cases of canned goods weighing aproximately 50 pounds each to Frank H. Chatas, proprietor of the Quelle cafe. The maximum package weight accepted by the mail service is 70 pounds. The reported delivery to Randall last night was the first made directly by either of the two truck lines since N. G. Wallace, public utilities commission-

Bonneville Power Cheapness Cited

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 .- (AP)-The New York power authority one was promised tomorrow. advised President Roosevelt tonight the way to cheap electricity through the gorges of the Columbia river.

It estimated the government's plants at Bonneville and Grand Coulee would result in large annual savings to consumers b. at virtually half the cost of steam plants operating locally.

Studies disclosed, the authority said, that Bonneville energy probably would be delivered to markets 50 and 100 miles distant at 3.5 mills per kilowatt hour when the plant was operating at 50 per cent of capacity. This, it added, compared with 6.5 mills for equivalent power generated by steam plants and would result in an estimated annual saving of $3,281,710.

At 80 per cent of capacity, the authority said Bonneville could lay down power at 2.9 mills, compared to 5.4 mills for steam, and estimated the annual saving at
