Holiday Dress

"I had to run up an enormous bill in the beauty shop before the wom an in the next booth finished gossiping!"

Well, of course, that's one time when economy would be a distinct disadvantage. . . Another time is when buying a "mainstay" daytime dress—the kind that will see you smartly through sunset hours. As a case in point, we recommend the wine wool on the left with its petite pink collar. The toppling hat with its fringe tail matches the dress. Nor is the sable scarf amiss. The black woolen suit-dress on the right fills the same function with its black soutache embroidery border and the gay simplicity of string ties for closing .- Copyright 1937, Esquire Features, Inc.
