Campaign Planned To Draw Tourists

The 1938 advertising campaign of the state highway commission's travel and tourist bureau will be more extensive than ever before, Harold Say, director, declared Thursday.

Say said more of the larger newspapers and magazines would be used in the drive for tourists. Records prepared by Say yesterday showed that more tourists visited Oregon in 1937 than ever before, with expenditures exceeding those of 1936.

Officials estimated that more than a thousand California fishermen visited Oregon during the first six months this year.

A tourist highway department chart showed that Oregon this year attracted visitors from every state in the union and a large number of foreign countries.

Jacksonville Folk Hit Gold Project

MEDFORD, Dec. 30.—(P)—Jacksonville residents and soil conservationists today objected to proposed gold dredging operations by the California-Oregon and the John Day dredging companies.

The syndicate, represented by Miss Marcella McCullough of Baker, said it held land options, some of which would not expire until May. No work has been started.

Conservationists said the project would ruin the scenic value of the area and remove land from the tax rolls.

Water Service Case Dropped

No Evidence of Malicious Destruction, Finding of Justice Hayden

L. W. Hagel, who constructed a private water main south of the city limits, was cleared yesterday of a charge of maliciously destroying private property by disconnecting a pipe which had been hooked up to his line. Judge Miller B. Hayden, who had the case under advisement since trial in justice court Monday, dismissed the action saying he did not find any evidence of the crime charged.

Hagel was arrested on the complaint of Chester Frederickson, who asserted Hagel wrongfully cut his private water pipe from the main. Hagel, averring Frederickson had hooked on to the line without authority, appealed to the water commission early this month but was advised the commission had no jurisdiction over the main in question. Hagel and Everett Seay laid the main and under an arrangement with T. M. Hicks agreed to supply water service for about a dozen lots.

Grazing Director To Eye Problems

Federal Official to Come Here, Discuss Blocking of State Lands

F. R. Carpenter, federal director of grazing, has telegraphed Governor Charles H. Martin that he will arrive here January 6, to meet with the state land board in connection with the blocking of Oregon grazing lands.

Later in the day Manager Hettwer gave an address on the history of the creamery, and pointed to the true cooperative basis upon which it is operated. He said the creamery has not bought a single pound of milk or cream outside its own membership and that everything has been handled on a pool basis.

It has always been the policy of the creamery to give to the consumer the highest quality at reasonable prices, he said.

Hettwer pointed out that the creamery has cooperated with the employers in basing wages on the market price of butter, and that as volume of business and value of butter has increased the employees have benefited. During the past year as many as eight wage increases were granted.

Leslie Scott, speaker

Guest speaker Thursday afternoon was Leslie M. Scott, former state highway commission chairman, who gave a history of the state highway program, paralleling this to the history of the creamery.

Dean Schoenfeld spoke again, telling about cooperatives in foreign countries and said that history shows that wherever cooperatives have been successful, the home and religious life have been of high standard, with the reverse picture showing where there has been no true cooperation.

Special guests at the creamery celebration Thursday were Prof. P. M. Brand and Dr. G. H. Wilster of Oregon State college; W. Henry of Portland, manager of the Dairy Cooperative association; Marilyn Stauber, director of the Dairy Co-op; G. A. Brown, manager of the Interstate Associated Creameries, Portland; and C. P. Bishop, veteran Salem business man.

Mayor Jacob Berchold of Mt. Angel gave the address of welcome on the morning program.

Arrest Near for Old Plate Users

Motor vehicle owners who drive their cars on the highways after Friday without 1938 license plates will be arrested, Charles P. Pray, superintendent of state police, announced.

There will be no days of grace to obtain licenses this year, Pray stated.

In case the practice of last year is followed state police will be stationed on all highways early Saturday morning with instructions to stop motorists who have not obtained their current license plates.

Unless the driver can show his 1938 plates or satisfactory evidence that he has made application for his plates, he will be arrested and hauled into court.

$500,000 Highway Note Is Taken up

State Treasurer Rufus C. Holman, yesterday forwarded to the First National bank of Portland $501,137.75, with which to retire $500,000 of short term state highway notes sold to the bank on October 1, 1937, and to pay the interest.

This payment reduces the state highway bonded debt to $21,641,750 and the state debt, including Oregon veterans state aid bonds and other bonds, to $46,075,010.

Next payment of state highway obligations will be on April 1, 1938, at which time the remaining $500,000 of short term notes and $1,300,000 in bonds will mature.

Co-op Jubilee Huge Success

Program Ends With Second Crowd of 1000 Paying Tribute

MT. ANGEL—The two-day silver jubilee celebration of the Mt. Angel Cooperative creamery came to a close today with another 1000 persons enjoying the morning and afternoon programs and the luncheon served by the Mt. Angel business men.

Highlight of the day was the morning half-hour broadcast, carried to the state over KEX by remote control.

The broadcast was announced by Frank Hettwer, manager of the creamery, and included a brief history of the co-op given by President R. J. Bernal and an address by Dean William Schoenfeld of Oregon State college.

Better Quality Boosts Return
Dean Schoenfeld spoke on the results of the monthly butter scoring contests of the state college, and said in the last year's quality of butter has increased 1.5 points in market price, which means an increase of 1 1/2 cents per pound in cash value to the producer or $15,000 per year on a million pounds of cream.

Dean Schoenfeld paid high tribute to the Mt. Angel creamery and its accomplishments in its accomplishments in its first century. The radio report also included a song by the Mt. Angel Knights of Columbus octets; novelty number by Peter Van Augenhagen, whistler and imitator; and talk by Joseph Keber, local banker, on financial success of the creamery.

Hettwer Tells History
Later in the day Manager Hettwer gave an address on the history of the creamery, and pointed to the true cooperative basis upon which it is operated. He said the creamery has not bought a single pound of milk or cream outside its own membership and that everything has been handled on a pool basis.

Tragedies Occur On Yacht Cruise

Sight Clemente Island late the night he was killed, Hanson said. He did not disclose with whom Morgan had the second altercation.

The other members of the party were Mrs. Morgan, an expectant mother; George Spornak, 22, a friend of Morgan; Mrs. Gertrude Turner, a friend of Faulding, and her 8-year-old son, Robert; Elsie Berdan, a nurse, and Robert Horne, 24.

After Morgan was lost, Hanson said, the survivors attempted to sail the ship to the mainland, conserving fuel, which had run low, for use in event of a storm. They made slow progress and were running short of food and water.

"On the morning of December 29," Hanson said, "members of the party, realizing their plight, painted an 'SOS' signal on the mainsail, and a naval aviator from San Diego, observing their condition, landed alongside the Aafie."

Poultry Disease Expert Is Called

CORVALLIS, Dec. 30.—(P)—Dr. Walter T. Johnson, 45, internationally known poultry pathologist, died Wednesday.

He joined the Oregon State college staff in 1925, having been connected previously with Washington State college and the western Washington experiment station at Puyallup.

The first to prove that poultry developed immunity to internal parasites, he was best known for the development of new methods of controlling fowl pox and coccidiosis.

His widow survives.

Miners Involved In French Strike

most of whom are army reservists—back to their tasks this morning, union officials indirectly threatened to resume the strike unless their full demands eventually were met.

The agreement which ended the Paris strike provided for an immediate grant of a 80 francs ($2.31) a month allowance to meet the rising cost of living.

A union announcement, however, said the government had promised eventually to obtain a 100 francs ($2.30) monthly allowance from the Paris municipal council plus a special rent allowance which would raise the total to 120 francs ($3.96) a month.

Salem Contractor Gets Coquille Job

Barham Bros. of Salem have been awarded the contract for construction of the gymnasium to be added to the high school at Coquille, Earl Barham reported yesterday. The Barham bid was $37,587.

Second low bid on the Coquille job was made by Tom Lillebo of Reedsport, who has just been awarded the construction job on the new Jefferson school building.

The last big job handled by Barham Bros. was the contract on the new Junction City high school, a structure which has attracted wide attention.
