President's Dance To Be Given on Two Nights

Under the direction of Dr. Floyd L. Utter, general chairman, plans are underway for the President's birthday ball, two dances being arranged this year, as last, under the auspices of the business and professional men of Salem and the Salem Trades and Labor Council. One is to be held on Friday night, January 28, at the Crystal Gardens, the other on Saturday night, January 29, at the armory.

Proceeds will not go to the Warm Springs foundation as in past years but will prove the nucleus for a national foundation planned to fight infantile paralysis on a nation-wide scale. Great progress has been made in meeting the inroads of this scourge but this is the first movement designed to coordinate national efforts in the line of research and treatment. There are four fronts along which immediate action is anticipated by this new foundation —scientific research; epidemic first aid; dissemination to doctors and parents of information concerning proper care which would prevent after-effects such as crooked backs, twisted bodies and contracted limbs; and distribution of funds to orthopedic centers, hospitals and clinics treating infantile paralysis cases.

The ball is being held in Salem on two nights due to the belief that no available hall in the city is sufficiently large to accommodate the crowds expected. The labor group has pledged itself to sell not less than 2000 tickets and the civic organizations hope to dispose of a like number or more. Friendly rivalry is expected to swell receipts over any former year. Tickets will sell at fifty cents each and will admit to either dance. Many plan to attend both events.

W. J. Entress is chairman for the Friday night dance but has not yet announced his committee heads. In charge of the Saturday night affair are the following committee chairmen: Tickets, W. W. Chadwick; program, Tom Windishar; publicity, Jerrold Owen; decorations and music, O. D. Olson; speakers, W. L. Gosslin; distinguished guests, General Thomas E. Rilea; and auditing, C. A. Suing.

Enthusiastic cooperation has been pledged Dr. Utter by motion picture theatres and radio station KSLF in publicizing the events. On the publicity committee are: Earl R. Goodwin, vice chairman; Maxine Buren, Rovena Eyre, Carl Porter, Ray Stumbo, Loring Schmidt, Alden Adolph and Barney Kenworthy.

Excellent music is promised for each of the dances and special entertainment features are planned for the evenings.

Style-Smiles — — — by Gretchen

"Shall I go out to play in the fresh air, mama, or haven't you got a headache?"

It's disconcerting to have one's wiles be so transparent to little daughters . . . But today, definitely, mamma wants to rest and relax—as her handsome pajama costume indicates. Its black velvet trousers are generous in cut, to resemble a skirt, and black velvet buttons and lapels trim the fitted, waist-length jacket of subtly shaded striped lame. For the "little dinner at home" she favors it, too.—Copyright, 1938, Esquire Features, Inc.

June in January Salads Crisp, Refreshing

"June in January" is a sentimental song that comes true on an occasional day and makes every inhabitant wonder why he ever for a moment longed for warmth of a southern sun.

Even though darker days do come to break the springtime spell in winter, we know deep down, we're mighty fortunate to have a mild, moist climate to make the snowdrops bloom and the cherry trees sprout.

This writer finds material from eastern testing kitchens on her desk frequently and they contain such cheerful reminders as "winter tables are apt to settle down into a long calm, sulking, Jaded appetites must be whetted."

But why worry about the weather when you can wake up to a sunny morning even occasionally, and every day look at the markets overflowing with such spring specials as endive, cris, lettuce and bright green celery, scarlet tomatoes, and even an occasional cucumber.

But salads do a lot to bring welcome springtime to menus, no matter how fond the family is of Oregon winters, and good filling ones are necessary to the anything-but-jaded appetites of winter.

One sunny looking salad combines small oranges or tangerines with cream cheese for filling freshness. Peel tangerines and remove fiber, spread the sections slightly and place the fruit on a head of endive. Thin the cream cheese with a little milk and force it through a pastry tube or dab with a spoon in the center of the tangerine.

Another salad that uses cream cheese, or will be nice with shredded Swiss is made by arranging alternate slices of peaches and pears on lettuce, and centering with the cheese, then topping with a little mayonnaise.

Spinach is an ever present springlike offering in the markets. Roll tiny center raw spinach leaves up in lettuce with some green onions and slice very, very thin. Put away in a moistened cloth for a half hour or so, and when ready to serve arrange, fluffed up, on individual plates. Moisten with French dressing. The spinach has a spicy tang, very much like the more expensive watercress.

Norwegian Fish Balls American Favorite

A Scandinavian fish special is the recipe for balls; here is a Norwegian version:

FISH BALLS
(Puget Sound Style)

3 pounds mixed red snapper, black cod and sole
1 pound mixed fish scraps, including salmon tips
1 teaspoon mixed pickling spice
½ lemon, sliced
Salt, pepper and paprika
Parsley
1 egg
3 slices of hard toast
4 slices bacon, or equal amount of salt pork
2 cups potato cubes
1 cup diced carrots
½ cup diced onion
1 cup thick white sauce

Have fish man trim out skin and bones of fish. Put these trimmings with fish scraps in kettle with cold water to well cover, mixed pickling spice and onion, boil 30 minutes. Pour strained stock over vegetables, add salt and start boiling. Put fish scraps away to use for cold salad at next meal. Put raw fish through food chopper with dry toast, mix with beaten egg, add salt and pepper, and form into balls size of walnut. Lay on top of boiling vegetables which have cooked 15 minutes. Fry out diced bacon or salt pork and sprinkle on top, including drippings. Cook 20 minutes longer. Serve in warm soup plates with hot white sauce with minced parsley on top.

Cook's Notebook Yields Many Recipes

Notes from a cook's scrapbook make good reading. Here are some for a typical one (none pasted in).

The everyday special, Irish potatoes, can appear in several interesting ways. One of these is:

POTATOES SEVILLE

Scrub potatoes with metal mitt, cover with boiling water and cook until barely tender. Drain, add plenty of butter and sprinkle thickly with minced parsley, chives and 1 small bottle stuffed green olives which are chopped fine. Shake to mix well.

Fresh grated orange rind makes a nice decoration and flavor for a dark cake when white icing is used for topping.

Apple Betty becomes Apple Charlotte when the bottom of the baking dish is spread with brown sugar, apples, then almonds, then a little lemon, bread and butter are added. A dab of cinnamon, a little milk to moisten and more apples and almonds go on top; then the whole is baked to a nice brown.

A mixture of pineapple and perhaps a few nuts in clear lemon gelatine makes an attractive and simple salad. Crisp lettuce furnishes freshness and the pineapple goes well with almost any main meat dish. Use the juice from the pineapple for liquid, adding enough water to make the required 2 cups.

There are 102 possible meat cuts, no wonder we don't know half of them by name.

In grilling fruit such as bananas, with chops, put the fruit in as the chops are turned.

Sweetbreads should be precooked a few minutes before removing the membranes. Vinegar added to the water firms and bleaches them.

Creamed salmon goes over an omelet to make a quick but delightful main dish.

Tomato sauce, heated to simmering, is the liquid in which eggs are poached when a main dish is wanted. Simmer carefully and serve in the same dish as cooked.

Trays of Refrigerator Useful Equipment

The freezing tray of an automatic refrigerator is practical for other purposes than actually freezing desserts. It is usually more economical to buy a quart of ice cream than to only purchase a pint even if the family can do nicely on the smaller amount. The freezing tray in your home refrigerator will hold an extra dessert and will save a trip to the store besides saving a dime or so on the quantity.

Jellied salads and deserts may be prepared on a few minutes' notice when freezing trays of an automatic electric refrigerator are available for quick chilling of the gelatine.

Gelatine for salad is dissolved in liquid and poured in the freezing tray until almost firm. This requires only a few minutes and is then ready for fruits, vegetables or other materials to be folded in. The mixture is ready for individual molds, set in the refrigerator and ready to serve in a few minutes.

• • •

Greens and Ham Mix In Casserole

Greens make a base for ham casserole, particularly good these January days. Place alternate layers of cooked greens (mustard, spinach or broccoli) in a baking pan and add chopped ham mixed with bread crumbs, add a bit of ground or finely minced onion, a dash of horseradish, tomato, and another layer of greens. Strip the top with bacon and cook. Just before serving sprinkle with cheese and allow to melt.
