"It's your birthday so I went out and bought a present for you!" She didn't forget him entirely—though every shop window suggested variations in color and accessories for this latest development in the coat world. A slim-fitting cut, of dark green woolen with navy white pin stripes in vertical pairs. The hem and sleeves are finished with narrow rows of cording—a trimming note found more and more in designs for spring. With it she wears a rust felt hat, as fetchingly tailored as the coat.—Copyright, 1938, Esquire Features, Inc.

MONMOUTH—Miss Donna Sivier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Sivier of this city, became the bride of Erroll Wright, a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Wright of Washoulog, Wn., at a simple ceremony at Monmouth hotel, Sunday afternoon. Rev. Father D. Vincent Gray of Corvallis read the service. Miss Sivier wore a three-piece suit of royal blue, with navy blue accessories and a corsage of spring flowers. The bride has lived in Monmouth since childhood, was graduated from the local high school and attended Oregon Normal school. Wright is employed at the Normal school.

DALLAS—Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shattuck entertained with a dinner party in honor of Mrs. May Jonas, president of the Rebekah assembly. Covers were placed for Mrs. Jonas, Mrs. Albert Burelbach, Mrs. Aida Burns, Mrs. Lydia Teats, Miss Julia Nunn and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck.

Today's Menu

Fish on Friday, so we plan cod baked with tomato sauce to fill the bill of fare. The menu includes: Olive-carrot salad, Cod in tomato sauce, Shredded smothered spinach, Baked potatoes, Rhubarb upside-down cake. Mix green or ripe olives with shredded raw or cooked carrots and moisten with mayonnaise to make the salad. FLOUR OR CRUMB TO MATO SAUCE Flour or crumb the cod and brown very quickly on both sides in fat, put in a baking dish with sauteed onion and tomato sauce, bake until fish is done. Serve on a platter with the sauce, and garnish with parsley or a few green celery leaves. Make the rhubarb dessert as for pineapple upside-down cake but add sugar only after the mixture is removed from pan, then while still very hot, sprinkle with brown sugar and put in the oven to melt if necessary.

Conference at
OSC Planned
For Women

National authorities on home management, and a world famous explorer are among the speakers selected for the home interests conference in Corvallis, beginning on Monday morning, February 8, when a large group of women from all parts of the state will gather on the Oregon State college campus for the four-day conference. This is the eighth year of the conference which is designed to give home women a full program of information, music and social interests. Women will be given accommodations at the hotels and in private homes for a minimum cost. Most of the meetings are free. Meals will be served inexpensively, and concert tickets are but a few cents. Speakers Are Named An excellent list of speakers has been selected for the occasion, among them being Mrs. Lydia Ann Lynde, parent education specialist of extension service at Washington, D. C., Miss Barbara Vaan Heulen, representing the farm credit administration at Washington, D. C., Paul Williams, senior marketing specialist from the United States department of agriculture, Dr. Jesse Laird Brodie, practicing physician of Portland, Miss Bertha Stuart, interior decorator of Portland and Vilhjalmur Stefansson, who will be the guest speaker at a meeting on Wednesday morning. Such subjects as "Restoring Old Homes in Oregon," parent education, arrangement of plantings around the home, consumer grades of canned food, and "How to Listen to a Symphony" are among those to be heard. The Portland symphony will play on Wednesday night and a lobby show is scheduled for Thursday night. The conferences are open to all women interested, and many Salem women plan to attend some of the meetings. For those who wish to attend the conference, registration cards and information are available at the offices of Harry L. Riches, county agent, at the postoffice building in Salem.

Chicken, Tomatoes Join At Luncheon Chicken slices, or the chopped meat of chicken will make a company luncheon dish when a few slices of tomatoes are added for style and flavor. CHICKEN LUNCHEON DISH Buttered toast Chicken slices Fresh tomatoes Thin slices cheese Arrange toast in a flat baking dish, on each put first a slice of chicken, then of tomato, then of cheese. Season and just when ready to serve put under the broiler just long enough to melt the cheese. Serve laid carefully in a pool of mushroom sauce. One banana mashed and moistened with juice of a lemon and the juice of an orange is combined with a syrup made by dissolving 1/2 cup sugar in 1 cup milk and adding 1/2 pint cream, whipped.
