Lebanon Gardens Produce Rose for January Club Meeting

LEBANON—The Mens' Brotherhood of the Methodist church won the acclaim of 159 guests assembled Wednesday night for the annual Jiggs dinner of corned beef and cabbage. The menu and service were perfect and the table decorations especially appreciated.

The program featured the comedy "A Star is Born," was presented by Jiggs, Lottie Arnold; Maggie, Miriam Eichner and an assisting cast.

Twenty members of the Church of Christ were in Crabtree Tuesday to attend the Linn county convention of Christian church members and to hear the address of Earl Childers of Eugene.

The garden club at its meeting this week heard Prof. Ira Forrey, Smith Hughes teacher in Lebanon high, tell of the various soils in Lebanon vicinity. Sol Lindley displayed five varieties of flowers grown on his own grounds.

The club planned a moving picture show of native flowers, their development and methods of cultivation. A meeting with the Albany garden club was planned for February 15.

Bouquets of roses gathered in the west end of town were unusual January features.

Artificial Scarcity Regulation Most Roundly Censured When Farmers Discuss Economy Camps

LIBERTY—The experimental round table discussion on "regulated economy vs. unregulated economy" was a great success at the Tuesday night meeting here of the Liberty Farmers union local. The discussion was led by Frank Judd, leader of the County FU adult education group, assisted by Wayne Williams.

Judd gave an outline of the laissez faire, or unregulated system and Williams explained the pressure which caused the various regulations to be enacted. Comment of the audience showed a majority for regulated economy. There was, however, a divergence of opinion about the regulation already imposed, the artificial scarcity plan receiving the most censure.

Visiting Farmer Union members from Bethel and Roberts took a prominent part in the discussion. Several expressed a desire for similar "town meeting" style discussions to be held at their local meetings. The tariff will be similarly discussed here in February.

S. B. Holt, state Farmer Union secretary, installed the new officers of the Liberty local. Isaac Schmidt was initiated. A program of music was given by L. L. Norton, C. G. Lawrence and Harry Evans.
