Diamond Sparkler.

But the story. Did you know that Kolb is considered some squash, back around St. Bene-dict's, when it comes to cavorting on the diamond and handling the old horsehide agate? It seems he had amassed no little rep in New Jersey base-ball haunts. Mr. Keene knew 4t, even if you and me d'dn't. So Mr. Keene says to young John: "Why not come to Willamette, where we have a great big scholastic standing, and play baseball for us-you can't go wrong." Not many can resist Keene's persuasive arguments, and Johnny was no exception. He hit the local campus just in time to gaze down on Sweetland field from Keene's office and see a bunch of bruisers cruising around in moleskins.

Delivered on Grid.

Not supposed to have much shucks at gampoling with the pighide, Kolb nevertheless tucked his 180 pounds of far eastern frame into grid paraphernalia and went to work. The manner in which he handled a wing berth throughout the Bearcat schedule left a lemonishly wry taste on "Spec's" grid palate. Yeah, just Hill sugar plums would. The 19year-old youngster ended the '37 grid season by scoring three touchdowns at Reno to abty assist in the 41-7 massacre of the proved. Divorcees. He strung his ix-foot frame over a fumble behind the goal for one, and snared two aerial slants on the dead run for the other two.

A Hooper, too.

The Reno dust had barely settled before Coach Maple barked a demand for hoop aspirants to come forth and show their wares. Well, there happened to be an extra old ragged sweat suit tossed in the corner of the 'Cats' dressing room, so Kolb eased into it and stalked onto the hardboards along with the rest. The first night or two of practice "Mapes" mentally marked down those wrist-flings of Kolb's, that were miraculously accurate, as "accidents." About a week of them, however, and the roly-poly court tutor began mumbling to himself, "I believe I've got something there." In his first start with the varsity Tuesday night, Kolb caged five field goals and played a steady defensive game to prove Mentor Maple's self-whispered

Chicago High School Grid Phenom Will Enroll at Northwestern, Says

By CHARLES DUNKLEY CHICAGO, Feb. 2-(AP)-Bill De Correvont, touchdown here of America's prep gridiron, will enter Northwestern university next fall. There, along with four of his high school teammates, he plans to continue his amazing football career.

The 19-year-old blond bullet, whose ball-carrying ability drew 120,000 spectators to Soldier field college basketball team back to to watch him lead Austin high school to the Chicago championship last fall, made this announcement today. De Correvont's answer to the constant questioning about his future was given in a brief, boyish statement. It read: "I'm going to Northwestern next September. The newspapers and everybody in Chicago have been very nice to me. My folks have always lived here and I wanted to go to school near home. I was lucky to play on a very good high school team and scare of the other boys are going to Northwestern, I want to be with them. I know I can get a good education at Northwestern and I have always wanted to play in the Big Ten."

Alumni Tickled These few words sent alumni of Northwestern almost dancing with joy and dashed the hopes of other institutions which had sought him.

Football experts regard the lithe 180-pound Austin lad, who set a record by scoring 35 touc downs and 211 points in his 10 games last fall, as the greatest prep star since the days of the late Walter Eckersall of University of Chicago fame and Harold "Red" Grange, the famed galloping ghost of Illinois. They believe that De Correvont has a collegiate future as bright, if not brighter, than that of the famous redhead of Illinois.
