Lease Dispute Is Dismissed

Harper Suit Over Beaver Dam Land Possession Not Maintained

Circuit Judge L. G. Lewelling yesterday afternoon dismissed a suit to oust A. L. Kostenborder, mint grower, from 25 acres of Beaver dam land owned by Ralph S. Harper after Harper as plaintiff and Kostenborder had presented testimony on both sides of the case.

The action involved a lease which Harper claimed expired last fall and Kostenborder maintained did not expire until next fall. The situation was complicated by the fact that Harper had leased the land to John Henry to take effect at the time he claimed Kostenborder's term ended.

The criminal case of State vs. Thomas Weidner which had been set for today before Judge L. H. McMahan was continued yesterday on the motion of Weidner's attorney, L. N. Brown for the reason of the attorney's illness. The case of State vs. Barrett and McKee and of State vs. Gaus, set for yesterday, were also postponed by arrangements made by the attorneys.

Portland Garage Rented for $700

The state board of control Wednesday entered into a lease with owners of a garage building at West Burnside and 20th streets in Portland, for use of the Oregon state reemployment service, on a rental basis of $700 a month for three years.

At the expiration of that period the state may lease the garage for an additional three years at $500 a month.

The owners originally demanded $850 a month for this building, but State Treasurer Rufus C. Holman objected on the ground that the rent was excessive.

The larger part of the rental will be paid by the federal government.

Traffic Toll Low, Former Mark Cut

Oregon traffic deaths in February of this year showed a reduction of 60 per cent when compared with the previous low record of 12, Secretary of State Snell announced yesterday.

February's death rate was approximately 3.8 fatalities for every 100,000,000 vehicle miles, Snell said. This compares with Oregon's average of 13.9 deaths per 100,000,000 vehicle miles during 1937 and 11.4 deaths per 100,000,000 vehicle miles in February of last year.

In February, 1937, there were 17 traffic deaths in Oregon compared with only six last month. The previous low record was in February, 1931.

Housing Act View Stated at Rotary

Choate Balances Benefits and Drawbacks; Terms Declared Liberal

While the new housing act gives insurance to house building loans up to $8000 on 90 per cent valuation, for 25-year term and at 5 1/2 per cent interest, few borrowers can expect such generous accommodations, said W. C. Choate, assistant cashier of the United States National bank, Portland, in a talk to the Salem Rotary club Wednesday. Lending organizations are more apt to make a loan of 70 per cent and for a shorter term, he said.

Choate explained the changes made in the old law by the 1933 amendments. The purpose of the old law was to stimulate recovery by encouraging building, and it did accomplish a great deal toward that end. Modernization loans proved very practical, but the extension of the loans to equipment bought on the "installment plan produced losses and that portion has not been renewed. Losses on foreclosures on properties have averaged about $500 apiece, said Choate, which is met by the FHA which gives the lender government guaranteed debentures covering the principal of the indebtedness.

One effect of the more liberal terms may be to depreciate values of existing houses, said Choate, because prospective buyers may find they can build more advantageously. It may also increase foreclosures because of the thinness of the equities of borrowers. However, Choate expressed the opinion that the act would work out for good and would revive building over the country.

Health Office Is Busy With Clinics

Staff Members Conduct Several at Outlying and City Schools

Staff members of the Marion county health department are busy conducting health clinics this week. A clinic was held at Central Howell Tuesday with students from North Howell and Pratum coming to Central Howell for examinations. Twenty-nine students were examined, 1 vaccinated and 15 immunized. Miss Helen Bird was the nurse in charge.

At Silvertown Tuesday afternoon 160 tuberculin tests were given which will be read back today. Following the tests an infant clinic was held with 11 babies examined. Miss Helen Bird was the nurse and Dr. V. A. Douglas did the examining.

Clinic at Turner

Mrs. Dolise was in charge of the clinic at Turner Tuesday. Thirteen were given physical examinations, 21 vaccinated and 14 given toxoid. Examinations were given to 4H club members yesterday afternoon at the health department. These club members are competing for scholarships to be given by the Marion county public health association. Eight girls and nine boys from Leslie junior high school were examined, two girls and two boys from Detroit and 7 others. They scored very high in their examinations and were in good physical conditions.

Salvation Army Solicitors Bogus

Major Issues Warning to Public Against False Fund Campaigners

Major Ronald M. Eberhart of Portland, divisional commander of the Salvation Army for Oregon and southern Idaho, reports that a number of complaints have been received regarding people soliciting in the name of the Salvation Army who are not authorized to receive such contributions.

In order to eliminate the possibility of any fraud, small numbered identification cards signed by Major Eberhart have been issued to every person who is properly authorized by him to receive money for the Salvation Army, stating in what county or state they are authorized to solicit.

The major has asked that the public challenge anyone soliciting for Salvation Army funds to show their authorization card. If anyone is found soliciting funds for the Salvation Army who are not authorized, the major has requested that officers of the law be notified, who have agreed to cooperate.

Court Catches up Says J. O. Bailey

Oregon's state supreme court is on a body that benefits by the depression. Judge J. O. Bailey, member since 1932, told members of the Marion county Young Democrats at the Marion hotel Tuesday night. He explained that litigation fell off during the depression with the result the court was assisted in its successful effort to bring its calendar up to a current basis.

While a few years ago the court was running 28 months behind in its consideration of cases, it is now up to date, Judge Bailey reported. As of yesterday it had but six cases ready to be heard following completion of the present week's work.

Judge Bailey outlined the development of the Oregon judicial system from its beginnings with the first court, which he said was the first instrument of government in Oregon.

New Lumber Yard Building Started

F. I. Bressler Part Owner of Local Firm; Retail Department Added

Excavation has been started at 1020 North Commercial street for the new building which will be erected to house the retail department of the Capital Lumber company, Inc.

A strictly modern retail lumber establishment is planned, with capacity for one million feet of lumber, all protected from weather damage, as well as complete lines of building materials. The yard will be ready to open in about six weeks.

Announcement was also made Wednesday that Floyd I. Bressler, formerly manager in Salem for Cobbs & Mitchell, had purchased an interest in the firm and would have charge of the new retail department. Charles H. Strickfaden will be manager of the mill and wholesale department on Cherry avenue.

The Capital Lumber company will be prepared to handle federal housing loans for modernization of homes and also long term loans for new construction. Company officials have expressed particular gratification at being able to offer this service.

Associated with Mr. Bressler in the retail department will be F. J. Colgan, who also was formerly with Cobbs & Mitchell. Mr. Colgan is especially qualified to advise prospective home builders on the details of planning and financing homes under the federal housing program.

Bush Lecture Set Tonight at Leslie

Jungle Setting Provided for Story of Life on Malay Peninsula

Amidst a setting typical of the subject matter, Captain Willard C. Bush of Salem, author of the new best-seller "Pahang," will deliver his lecture on life in the Malay jungle tonight at 8 o'clock in the Leslie junior high school auditorium.

In harmony with the thrilling events which Captain Bush will describe, the Salem 20-30 club, sponsor of the lecture, has arranged a jungle setting which will include a Malay hut surrounded by palms and bamboo trees. Jungle drums will sound as the speaker makes his appearance. The usher will wear white pith helmets. The lighting effects have also been especially designed to enhance the Malay setting.

Captain Bush will be introduced by President Bruce R. Baxter of Willamette university.

Doors of the Leslie auditorium will open at 7:30 o'clock. Large attendance is assured by the advance sale of tickets which have been in the hands of 20-30 club members, but tickets may also be purchased at the door.
