Airplanes, a blimp, tractors, horses, bucket lines and sundry other methods of transportation were being employed to bring supplies from the canyon sections.

At Camp Baldy there were 13 children, 25 women and 20 men. A crew of rescue workers sent into the canyon failed to get through last night and were to make a new attempt today.

There were at least 25 persons at Big Tujunga. The resort hotel was wiped out. The 25 were sleeping in the one tiny remaining cabin.

March field, the great army air base, was still flooded. Eight thousand pounds of food were flown to it today.

To help in the repair work in Los Angeles county, 9000 WPA employees were at work today.

Several times the missionaries have been packed ready to leave when ordered to do so, and now it has been planned and arranged for all foreign women and children in Shamen (the British concession) and south China, to be evacuated on American, British and French gunboats, when deemed necessary, that they may not experience the horrors of war as so many did at Shanghai.

ready to undertake any assignment in which it had legal authority to act. As for the Clatsop riot cases Van Winkle declared the settlement was made with the full knowledge and consent of the governor's special representatives, Labor Commissioner Gram and Budget Director Wharton, and with the knowledge and approval of the governor himself. He said he had not come to a decision on whether to run for supreme justice or not.

While the governor has no power to appoint special attorneys he does have an appropriation of $20,000 for "investigation" and it is possible for an attorney to accept employment as an investigator. Whether the secretary of state will cash a warrant on the governor's special investigation fund to pay for a "special legal assistant to the state police" who is named by the governor cannot be foretold.

No announcement was made last night of the governor's selection for the post. Ralph E. Moody, whose name was brought up by the governor in his discussion with Van Winkle, has been in Portland for several days on work connected with the state capitol project.

Dagwell Deplores Labor Difficulty

ALBANY, Ore., March 5—(AP)—Bishop Benjamin Dagwell of the diocese of Portland of the Episcopal church told a Civic club audience here the solution of the country's most pressing problem—the labor situation—would not come until the president made it an issue.

He declared the present policy of the administration to be one of "opportunism or cowardice," resulting in a paralysis in the country because of "concern, doubt and bewilderment of the people."

The bishop, who visited here Thursday, asserted the private citizen with a grievance was without standing in Washington. With a constant drift toward centralized power, he said, the administration is taking over more and more control of the lives of individuals.

Settlement Incomplete He described the fact that lawlessness could continue for one or two years without interruption as evidence of either a breakdown of law and the courts or of public morals.

Despite the cleanup now making progress in the northwest, no real settlement can be made "until the administration makes it its business," the bishop asserted.
