County Agent's Office Sets up Emergency Cages to Sound Warning

Before the month of March is gone, farmers will see the arrival of that most important insect enemy of the prune crop, the prune thrips. The tiny insects usually first make their appearance about the middle of March and reach their peak of emergence about April 1, according to Robert E. Rieder, assistant county agent. Control measures for this pes have been worked out by the experiment station at Oregon State college based on 10 years ot experimental work.

Thrips often cause enormous not so well known on bears, abples, and cherries in Oregon, it will attack these and many other plants and cause injury to them. Prune thrips in some years at least are a decided factor in causing partial or total failure of prune crops in the Willamette valley, states Mr. Rie-Injury Starts Early

The adult thrips are very minute, dark brown, active insects, 1-20 of an inch long. They possess wings in this stage and can fly a considerable distance. The adult insect injures the developing blossom buds, and as soon as the scales on these buds loosen up enough the thrips can be found inside, feeding on the tissues of the buds and espe-SILVERTON-At the annual cially the blossem stems.
