Oregon Farmers Expected to Receive 3 Millions in new Program

CORVALLIS, March 17-(AP)-Benefit payments to Oregon wheat farmers, alone, under the new AAA act may run as high as three million dollars, committeemen from the Willamette valley counties were told in the first of a series of district conferences here to explain the act.

Total cash benefits, if all farmers participated, could run as high as $4,500,000 but it was estimated that no more than 7 per cent would co-operate. Thus benefits to all farmers were expected to exceed $3,50,000.

Benefits to wheat farmers will be figured on a total acreage of 986,293. The figure was arrived at on the basis of a 10year average acreage. The law provides for a state allotment on a basis of 88 per cent of the total acreage and judging from past production each farmer can qualify for a payment of 12 cents a bushel on an average yield. Check on Depletion

Farmers will be checked on their total soil depleting acreage rather than on total wheat acreage because fall wheat was planted before the act was passed. N. C. Donaldson, state committee secretary, said the purpose was to lay the groundwork for control next year should surpluses occur and prepare for market quotas if conditions necessitated them.

In the five seasons that conrol programs have been effective, farmers of Oregon have received about 15 million dollars in bene-
