Vegetables Lend To Ingenuity In Cooking

Vegetables found in local markets lend themselves to ingenuity in cooking or in old favorite ways of preparation and the variety is great.

New peas, which are beginning to be down in price can be stretched with new carrots to a few to go a longer way. Or cream them with new potatoes to serve on crisp toast.

Carrots are excellent with chopped chives, mix with green celery in a butter sauce or are fine served plain with plenty of pepper in the butter. Green beans go with bacon, or mixed with a sour milk sauce and cooked slowly until done. Cauliflower makes a fine showing and may be served with cheese's a uce or topped with creamed peas or carrots.

New potatoes are big enough to brown with the roast, or small enough to drop whole into deep fat and cook. Celery is so good it's excellent as-is. Tomatoes may be stuffed with ffesh crab meat for salad, then topped with a shredding of new spinach.

And speaking of spinach, try some of those fresh young leaves shredded with new onlons and radishes, to be topped with olive oil French dressing and served as an ice cold salad.

Egg plant has appeared more frequently in the past week or so and makes a good showing fried or stuffed and baked. Cucumbers go with their companions, new onions and toma-

Among the fruits to look like spring are fresh pineapple, skihigh but very elegant to serve to fine guests. With fresh strawberries and powdered sugar they make a delicious dessert cup. Strawberries from Louisiana are showing red and tasting luscious. On sundaes, in shortcake and as a topping for custards they go a long way. Rhubarb is another standby that's still with us. Fresh strawberries stirred into rhubarb sauce make an interesting combination; sliced bananas add flavor to the rhubarb sauce. Limes add flavor to lemon Held at Silverton
