

Dedication Plans Ready

Judge Lusk to Be Speaker at Ceremony for new Memorial Hall

MT. ANGEL—George L. Koehn, past state commander of the American Legion, will officiate in the dedication of the memorial building here Saturday afternoon, May 14. Judge Lusk of Portland will be the principal speaker in the program that follows.

The parade will form at the city hall at 3 p. m., march through the town and up to the memorial hall for the dedication. After a program of speaking and music the building will be thrown open for public inspection.

Banquet Is Feature
At 6:30 p. m. a banquet will be served in the dining hall of St. Mary's school with the auxiliary in charge. The general public is invited. Charles Johnson of Salem will act as toastmaster.

There will be no speaking during the dinner but a number of prominent speakers are scheduled to take the floor immediately after. There will also be several musical numbers.

Quit Hop Game

OH! We Love to Hear Em Brag On Us—

This week we're doin a little checkin up on our ads — and figured wed ask soma the boys that claim to be able to read writin just as good as they do readin. Below we list what some of the literate ones think of our ad writin. First one we encountered was Doug McKay, and in that pleasin way of ourn we says — Well Dug whatch think of our ads. LOUZY, plum louzy he said as he turned on his heel and started in a dog trot to some kindava political meetin. About that time Custer Ross, the man of very few words (all of them used correctly of course) come along. Knowin Custer (by site any way) we says to him—Custer we're doin a little checkin up on our ads—whatch think of em. Well says Custer, ye seen yer duty and ye did it. Yer prices are low enough to suit me. And up piped Ed Keech with, By golly Bill, he says, if your prices are low enough to please Custer you'd better start doin some checkin for of all the lawyers I know of Custer aint the most reckless with his money. Now after hearin all that brag on us we decided to git buisy and quote some real red hot specials, so here they are . . .

Pastel Shades Featured in new Bridal Gowns

Time was when white was the only color considered for a bridal gown but the new designs are featuring pastel shades to match the wedding bouquet. These are not only attractive but practical since they better adapt themselves to being made over later for evening wear. Little Lee, Hollywood designer, is wearing a shade of softest blush pink with strapless bodice, cut low and heart-shaped. Wedding veil tulle gives the cloud effect and fastens the skirt. Ruth Sokel of New York is wearing an attractive debutante bridal dress of white net with satin applique. There is a voluminous train and a veil dropping from the orange blossom coronet. Rochelle Hudson models a pale ivory chiffon over a foundation of ivory satin. The dress is fashioned along princess lines and is reminiscent of the Spanish influence in bodice and mantle-like veil. Chantilly lace forms the leg-of-mutton sleeves.
