Salem Breakfast Group Wins Prize

Credit Women Are Leaders in Attendance; Next Convention Here

The Salem Credit Women's Breakfast club was awarded the attendance trophy at the annual convention of the Pacific Northwest Council of Breakfast clubs, held in Portland early this week in connection with the annual Retail Credit association convention.

The Portland women's delegation numbered 17, one greater than the nearest trophy contender, the Tacoma club.

The next convention of the Credit Women's Breakfast clubs will be held in Salem, with sessions two nights and a day previous to the 1939 Credit association convention in San Francisco. The Salem club was further honored at the Portland convention by selection of its president, Miss Orma Beard, as recording secretary.

The above information was among the reports presented Friday noon at the regular meeting of the Salem Retail Credit association, which also had a large delegation at the Portland gathering. Highlights of the convention assemblies, group sessions and entertainment were presented to the local members yesterday noon by President Hugh Adams, Francis W. Smith, Ralph Glover, Mrs. Ruth Norris, Miss Hattie Ramp, Mrs. Medora Woodry, Ursula Wolfert, L. J. Whitehouse and John H. Riches.

Two Salem men participated in the convention program Dr. Bruce Baxter of Willamette university who addressed the CWBC breakfast and Douglas McKay, who presented the Salem community credit plan before the convention. Salem attendants reported the Salem community credit plan received wide attention at the convention.

They also reported that Victoria and Vancouver, B. C. delegates declared that those cities were experiencing no business recession and that the fact business there showed a 26 per cent increase over the previous year.

California Boasts new Industry

Launching the Imperial valley of California on its latest adventure in agricultural industry, Betty Palmer of Brawley, Cal., is pictured picking the first sugar beets ever to be harvested in the vicinity. While no official estimate can be made at present, it is expected that within the next few years the sugar beet industry will be valued at 7 to 8 million dollars. Since the beets are grown in winter months and harvested in the spring, farmers are experimenting with a second crop grown through the summer. The Imperial valley is the largest irrigated area in the world and is renowned for its fertile soil.

Member of Byrd Party Is Speaker

The intensely interesting story of a North Dakota youth whose urge to travel took him twice around the world, on an expedition to the arctic with Sir Hubert Wilkins and subsequently with Admiral Byrd's antarctic expedition, was recounted by J. K. Trent, globe trotter, now director of a cooking school for Montgomery Ward, in a talk before the Salem Ad club yesterday noon.

Trent disclosed he is now laying the groundwork for a proposed motorcade to Buen Aires. Sponsored by several of the country's leading manufacturers, the motor expedition would carry the names of these businesses into South America on a trail-blazing journey over the route which eventually will link the two Americas.
