others scattered as follows: Princeton, 10 1/2; New York University, 10; Rhode Island State, 9 1/2; Columbia, 8 3/4; Cornell and Penn State, 7 each; Yale, 6 1/2; Brown, 5; Boston College and Maine, 4 each; Syracuse and UCLA, 3 each; Fordham and Colgate, 2 each; West Virginia and Pennsylvania, 1 each.

Double triumphs for Long John Woodruff, Pittsburgh's great Negro runner, and Michigan State's crack hurdler, Harvey Woodstra, shared the individual spotlight with the record-breaking mile victory of Edgar Howard Borch, slender Manhattan college star.

Borch, making his first start in the ICAAAA mile, came from behind with a beautifully-timed last lap-flush to beat Alex Northrup, Harvard's favorite, by 20 yards, and wipe out the classic record of 4:14.4 set by John Paul Jones of Cornell at Ithaca in 1913. Borch clipped a half-second from the long-standing mark, oldest on the meet's books, when he was clocked in 4:13.9.

Woodruff wins 880 and 440 Long John Woodruff pulled away to a two-yard victory over Borch in the 880, a race which timed in 1:52.5, after equalling the meet record of 47 seconds in capturing the 440-yard race.

Woodruff thus duplicated a feat achieved by only one other athlete in ICAAAA history, Hed Meredith of Pennsylvania, who turned the trick in 1918 and '19. He is the only other athlete to win both the 440 and 880 in successive years.

Britain Wins Walker Cup in 17th Year of Striving; Young Olympia Player Beats Jones' Stroke Mark

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, June 4.—(AP)—An ancient St. Andrews caddy, his blue eyes swimming with tears, carried America's Walker cup into the historic front room of the royal and ancient golf club tonight and set it upright prominently under the portrait of Old Tom Morris, almost legendary figure in the annals of British golf.

For 16 years Great Britain had tried to win the trophy. Three times it had visited this old gray clubhouse and gone home again. But today Britain won it, 7 matches to 4, and the old man carrying it through a cheering crowd of 10,000 was proud and he was happy.

The facts of this victory—and it was a decisive victory—can be dismissed summarily.

The British led at the end of Scotch foursome play yesterday by 2 to 1, having halted the other match.

Captainman Fades Out Marvin "Bud" Ward of Olympia, Wash., squared it today by playing 25 holes in five under pars to beat Frank Pennink, English amateur champion in 1937 and 1938, 12 and 11. Scotland's Hector Thomson thumped what was only a strange shadow of Johnny Goodman, 6 and 4, but irrepressible Charley Pates, who won the British amateur just a week ago, came back with a 2 and a 1 victory over Jna Bruen to tie it up again at 3 to 3.

Then, for brief and brilliant period, the United States led 4 to 3 as Johnny Fisher, playing one of the most heroic games of his life, reeled off 16 holes in six under 4's to make up a four-hole deficit and beat a much-astonished Leonard Crawley, 3 and 2.

Ward Surprises Britons Brightest spot on the American side of the picture, in addition to the victories by Yates, who hung on to beat Bruen, and Fischer, who came back to down Crawley, his curves pulled the Elks off balance. Easy grounders and high flies were "meat" for the visiting high school stars.

Only one player on the entire Babes' squad is more than 20. Hughie Day, whose pitching helped carry Consolidated Freight to a tie for fifth place in the 1937 semi-pro tournament, is the lone veteran.

Ray Brooks, the genius behind the youthful club won two championships in the Oregon State league, and is hot on the trail of a third. In 1932 his Westside Babes of Portland, just a "bunch of high school kids," romped off with the pennant, and again in 1933 his Walker's Federals, mostly the same crew of players, repeated.

From the first championship seven players have gone into organized ball.

An aggressive manager of the old school, yet with a leadership which makes his players want to hustle and win, Brooks admits that this year's team, with addition of another pitcher or two, will be "the best I ever had."

Athletes Show Way. Forty-six of the 1938 Salem high school graduating class were members of the national honor society, which figures to be less than 9 per cent of the 519 graduates. There were 35 lettermen who were graduated, six of whom were members of the society—or 17 per cent. Not long ago you heard a lot of folks talking about "dumb" athletes.

Dennis Heenan to Get San Jose Job

To Coach Prep School for Santa Clara; Will Be Here for Summer

Dennis A. Heenan, stellar athlete at Salem high in the middle 20's, later a star basketball and baseball player at Notre Dame and for the past seven years athletic director at St. Cloud Cathedral high school in St. Cloud, Minn., is expected to be a Salem visitor shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Heenan and daughter Virginia Maureen, 4, will spend a part of the summer here before leaving for Santa Clara, Calif., where he has accepted the position of director of athletics at Bellarmine college, preparatory school to Santa Clara university. There Heenan will coach basketball and baseball, and will assist with football.

Long wishing to land a position on the west coast, and at one college coaching position, the exit considered for the Mt. Angel Salem athlete now has his desire fulfilled. In tendering his resignation to St. Cloud, he gave the west coast's better climate as his incentive to move.

more sinister side to it than that. I've been put on to try and run this dangerous organization to earth, so that we can hand particulars over to the authorities and have it mopped up."

"Seems like you've succeeded pretty quick, sir."

"Good Lord no! What we've seen tonight is only one thread in the tangled skein. These people must be operating on a huge scale. They've probably got half a dozen bases on this side, because if they sent every cargo from that dip in the downs the French police would get wind of it before long. We've got to find out where they land their stuff in England and how they distribute it afterwards too."

Gregory climbed again, allowing the smuggler fleet to fly beneath... "Seems a chancy game for me, anyhow, with all the planes there are flying about these days. Some bloke might fly over casual like any old night 'nd spot those fares."

Gregory shook his head. "Didn't get to give him that. If anybody visited that base in the day time there wouldn't be a thing to show what's going on, not even a cart track, because the goods are all consigned to one of the little fishing villages on the coast and brought underground through the caves."

"Maybe, Mr. Gregory, sir, but what about all these planes? They've got 'em all over 'em, ain't they? Though I didn't see none."

"Of course you didn't, because the planes are not kept there. Each one is probably registered as a privately owned machine and housed separately somewhere between here and Paris. Then, when these night birds get their orders, they go up, only land here long enough to take on their cargo, and are away again over the sea. I doubt if the whole operation takes more than half an hour. So if they don't use any one base too frequently, the chances are all against their being caught; in an almost unobscured stretch of country like this."

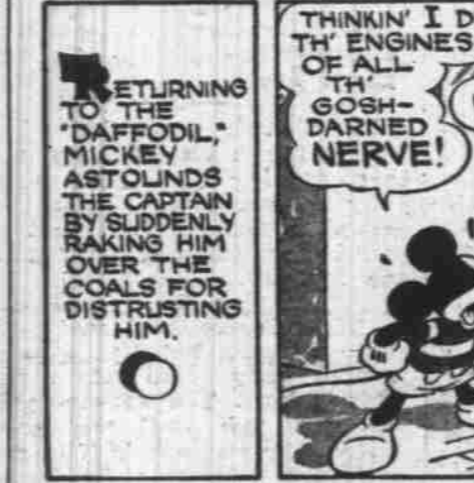

As he spoke the truck was rumbling into the outskirts of Calais. Leaving Rudd, Gregory crawled forward and spoke to the driver, asking him to take them direct to the airport for an action ten francs.

The man complied and five minutes after their arrival they were in their plane. Gregory did not make straight for the secret base on the downs behind Cape Gris Nez. The
