

Camp Menu Includes a Casserole Dish

Campfire fare must be filling, flavorful and there should be plenty of it. Many campers who make weekend fishing trips or a specialty find that taking along a ready cooked dish is practical for the first meal of the trip. This recipe for a tuna dish may be made ahead of time and cooked in a casserole then taken hot to the camp site, or may easily be prepared on the camp stove.

TUNA CAMP DELIGHT
(Serves 10)

- 2 medium cans tuna
- 2 cups medium white sauce
- 1 tablespoon minced parsley
- 1 tablespoon minced green onion tops
- few drops tobacco
- 1 tablespoon Chinese sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- salt and pepper
- 1 cup diced cucumber, cooked until tender

Make a white sauce directly over the fire, using 4 tablespoons each butter and flour and 2 cups milk. Set pan in another of hot water and add tuna which has been well broken up. Include the oil in the can. Add remaining ingredients and heat well.

The cucumber adds an unusual flavor to the dish. By the way, this tuna recipe will prove valuable as an idea for one of the numerous "covered dish" dinners which are so often listed on the social and club pages.

Ham-Cheese Rolls Make Luncheon Dish

Cheese and crumbs make a filling for cold boiled ham balls that make a hot luncheon dish.

HAM ROLLS

Mix grated cheese and crumbs and sautee into balls. Roll in slices of cold boiled ham, wrap with bacon and fasten with a skewer or toothpick. Broil for 20 minutes and serve under a white sauce that is flavored with chopped parsley.

Quick Fish Loaf Handy in Summertime

For short-cut cookery try this salmon loaf that comes from two cans and is surprisingly good.

QUICK SALMON LOAF

- 1 can salmon
 - 1 can vegetable soup
 - 1 cup crumbs
 - 1 egg
- Mix well and bake 30 to 45 minutes. The soup is seasoned highly enough so few other flavors need be added.

Falling health and fear that he was losing his reason were believed to have been the causes of the death leap from his apartment window. Photo shows Dr. Campbell while engaged in research work at famed Lick Observatory on Mt. Hamilton overlooking the Santa Clara Valley in California. He headed the observatory for forty years.

Stevens-Brown Is In new Quarters

Stevens-Brown, jewelers and opticians, yesterday finalized transferring the stocks of the Treasure Chest, which they had operated for over a year, to their main shop, 184 North Liberty street. There they opened for business with their floorspace doubled and the quarters attractively refurnished. The firm in the move added to the wares of its original shop exclusive lines of imported chinaware and earthenware as well as attractive stocks of gift articles. Both the optical and watch repair departments have been moved into enlarged, separate quarters to improve the service and convenience of the firm to its customers.

"We believe ours is among the finest imported chinaware in the city," Sidney L. Stevens, one of the proprietors commented. "With greater room here, we have added to the stock we formerly offered at the Treasure Chest." Harry A. Brown, other member of the firm, expressed appreciation for the good will accorded himself and his partner here.

Bakery Cars Are First Aid Units

12 Cherry City Trucks to Carry Red Cross Emergency Kit

Twelve Cherry City Bakery company trucks at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon were equipped with 24-unit Red Cross emergency first aid kits, presented formally by Justice George Rossman, general chairman of the Merion county Red Cross unit, and immediately became the largest authorized mobile Red Cross first aid corps in Oregon.

The trucks, drivers of which underwent a 40-hour course of instruction in standard and advanced first aid treatment before being entitled to certification by Red Cross, service a territory including practically all of the highways and byways within a 50-mile radius of Salem.

Each truck will bear an emergency first aid American Red Cross marker and each driver who has completed the required course of instruction is entitled to wear a similar insignia on his uniform. Sales Manager Glenn Gregg accepted the presentations from Judge Rossman, who was assisted by Virgil Golden, Merion county first aid chairman, and Mrs. Olive Doak Bynon, Merion county Red Cross secretary.

Instruction was given to the drivers of what will be touring emergency first aid stations by Dr. Lloyd Hockett. Men who completed the course and who will man the mobile units include: John Graybill, Lester Hestick, Dan Zeh, H. L. Roca, Veard Thomas, Louis Cross, Harold Gillespie, Glenn Gregg, M. C. Matson, Joe Bowersox, Charles Boyer and Bob Ashby.
