Movie Stars Abandon Their Diets for Curves

Not so long ago one of the principle topics of feminine conversation was about the latest Hollywood diet. Stars indulged their pet ways of reducing and the whole thing was quite a game. The tide has turned now, however, and the headlines of slimness are no longer shying away from food like they once did. In fact, so impressive has it become for one of these celluloid charmers to avoid thinness, that the studios have ordered six celebs to put on weight. Among those who are now trying to tip the scales a bit more are Bette Davis, who was told to gain eight pounds; Wendy Barrie, 9; Olivia De Havilland, 8; Ann Sheridan, 12; Marie Wilson, 6; Anita Louise, 10.

Adult Educational Meet Opens Today

School Guidance Conclave to Run Three Days on Campus at OSC

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Corvallis, July 12—Latest developments in the fields of educational guidance and adult education will be reviewed here July 13 to 15 at the third annual conference on these subjects which starts Wednesday afternoon. The conference is open to all without cost, with Willamette valley school teachers and school board members especially invited.

The opening general session is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock with Dr. U. G. Dubach, dean of men, presiding as chairman. "Organizing and Developing a Guidance Program in a Small High School" is the first program number, by Jesse Hawley, superintendent of schools, Carpinteria, Calif.

60 in Attendance Educational advisers of this region, here for their annual conference training period, will remain through the general conference. About 60 are attending, led by Major S. M. Ransopher, assistant national director of CCC education, and Joseph W. Burke, assistant ninth corps area educational adviser.

Educational leaders taking part in the conference will include Dr. C. C. Trillingham, assistant county superintendent of Los Angeles county; Dr. W. D. Lefever, associate professor of education at USC; George Mann, chief of the division of adult education in the California state department of education; Lee A. Meyer, state director of WPA education and recreation; Dr. John Paul Williams, Massachusetts State college; Rex Putnam, state superintendent of public instruction, and various members of the staffs of the Oregon system of higher education.

26 Fires Put out, Willamette Region

EUGENE, Ore., July 12—(AP)—Forest service officials said tonight 26 lightning fires started in the Willamette forest last week had been controlled. The largest covered three acres. A new fire was reported today on McLean mountain in inaccessible territory. Crews reached it after six hours, but said airplanes might be needed to aid the battle if conditions got worse.

Oregon Highways Safer for Month

Oregon motorists recorded substantial decreases in highway accidents and injuries during July, 1938, as compared with those in June a year ago. Secretary of State Earl Snell reported Tuesday. There also was a drop in traffic fatalities. From a total of 3286 in June last year traffic accidents dropped to 2422 in June of this year. Injuries decreased from 735 to 493. There was a 27 percent decrease in accidents in June, 1938, as compared with the previous June, and 33 percent in injuries.

Insane Hospitals Declared Adequate

Officials Say Two Present Plants Enough, Third not Necessary yet

There is no immediate need for the construction of a third hospital for the insane in Oregon even though a federal grant was authorized, officials of the present two insane institutions have advised members of the state board of control.

Both Dr. W. D. McNary, superintendent of the eastern Oregon state hospital, and Dr. John Evans, head of the western Oregon insane institution, told members of the board that the two hospitals were adequate. They said the present plants could be enlarged without creating additional overhead costs.

One of these hospitals is located at Pendleton and the other at Salem.

State Money Unavailable Reports were current here that construction of a third insane hospital in Oregon might be sought in the near future. In case a new insane hospital was constructed it would be necessary for the state to match a federal grant.

One member of the board of control, in discussing federal grants for public buildings, asked: "What would the state use for money?"

Chemeketa Plan Mt. Hood Ascent

The Salem Chemeketas, outdoor club, will sponsor their annual Mt. Hood climb next Sunday, July 17. Those not interested in the high peak's ascent may join an easier hike to the Chemeketan lodge on Whitewater creek.

Persons who wish to climb Mt. Hood with the club should register at the Senator hotel before Friday night, and should be equipped with heavy boots, warm clothing and dark glasses. Bob Kendall is leader of this hike and cars will leave Salem Saturday afternoon.

For the other hike, of which Luther Cook is leader, cars leave Salem Sunday morning.

Martin to Miss President, Farley

Governor Charles H. Martin will not meet President Roosevelt when he arrives in California later this week, he announced Tuesday.

Two invitations were received by the governor. One was from Washington, D. C., and the other from Amarillo, Texas.

Governor Martin replied that pressure of official business precluded him from leaving Oregon at this time.

The governor also found it impossible to go to eastern Oregon to meet Postmaster General Farley who will spend part of today in Portland.

New TB Hospital Plans Are Eyed

State Officials Talk With Governor on Projected Portland Building

Officials connected with the Oregon State Tuberculosis association were here Tuesday conferring with Governor Charles H. Martin regarding construction of the proposed new state tuberculosis hospital in Portland.

The 1937 legislature appropriated $110,000 for a new state tuberculosis hospital in Portland contingent upon the federal government authorizing a grant of $90,000. This grant was forthcoming last week.

The structure would cost approximately $200,000 and would have accommodations for 50 beds. Preliminary plans and specifications for the structure already have been completed.

Construction of the new institution will be discussed at a meeting of officials of the State Tuberculosis association in Portland today.

Past State PEO Head Passes at Hood River

Word has been received in Salem of the death of Mrs. Katherine Ainsworth of Hood River Monday night. She is past state president of the PEO Sisterhood and during the recent state convention held in Portland she conducted the meetings from her bedside. The funeral services will probably be held today in Hood River.

Maintaining Peace Goal of Kiwanians

Problems of maintaining peace in the world occupied principal attention at the Kiwanis International convention held recently at San Francisco. It was reported by David Wright, president of the Salem club, and Ben Ramseyer, district lieutenant governor, at the local club's luncheon Tuesday.

One of the outstanding speakers was Senator Burton K. Wheeler. There were about 4000 registered at the convention.

Ramseyer accepted, on behalf of the Tillamook club, an award for achievement won during the past year.

Rev. John Smith sang three solos at the luncheon, with Mrs. Smith as accompanist.
