

News of the World Caught by the Quick Eye of the Camera

Senator and Mrs. Robert J. Bulkley

Here are Senator and Mrs. Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland as they visited the polls to cast their vote at the Ohio primary in which Bulkley was a candidate for Democratic nomination for re-election.

President Roosevelt being given degree

Shortly after President Roosevelt was given a doctorate of laws degree at the University of Georgia, at Athens, above, he called for the defeat of anti-New Deal Senator Walter F. George of Georgia in a speech at Barnesville. The president was en route to Washington after a long cross-country vacation tour and Pacific fishing expedition. In the photo, Prof. W. D. Hooper circles the president's neck with the hood designating the degree as Dr. S. V. Sanford, left, chancellor of the university system, and Col. E. M. Watson, the president's military aide, look on.

... shows stream-lined elephant Symbolic of the new mood of the Republican party, a stream-lined, trumpeting elephant was presented to National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton at the mid-summer get-together of the G. O. P. national platform committee in Chicago. When he noted the elephant bore the legend, "Let's G. O. Places", Hamilton said: "That is exactly what we propose to do."

Among early arrivals at Atlantic City, N. J., for the annual "Miss America" beauty contest is Marilyn Meake, selected as "Miss Ohio" in competition in Cleveland. The Atlantic City pageant opens September 6.

John Crowley and wife

A New York WPA worker and World War veteran, John Crowley, shown with his wife, above, has offered one of his healthy eyes to little Helaine Judith Colan, Chicago's "gloma" baby, now in New York for examination. The baby, whose left eye was removed in a life-death-blindness decision three months ago, now may lose the right eye.

Donald Budge

Bobby Riggs

Chief threat to Don Budge's efforts to score a grand slam in the tennis world is young Bobby Riggs, sensational Chicago netter. Budge has annexed the Australian, French and English tennis crowns and is out to make a clean sweep when the U. S. national tourney opens at Forest Hills, N. Y., in September. Riggs has won 13 out of 17 tournaments this season and is recognized as second ranking racket wielder in the nation.

Tom M. Girdler

Before a packed hearing room, Tom M. Girdler, chairman of the board of Republic Steel corporation, testifies as the final witness in the senate civil liberties committee investigation in Washington into alleged deprivation of civil rights during the 1937 "little steel" strike in Ohio. Girdler attacked the C. I. O. and Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

King George VI

When King George VI visited a boys' camp at Southwold, England, which he had sponsored when still the Duke of York, the royal regiment consisted of a pair of shorts which generously exposed the royal knees.

Much has been written of the hillbillies but little said about their first cousins, the hillbillies, who chose as their queen pretty Frances Crum when they held a carnival at Durham, N. C.

Miss Frieda S. Miller (above) has been appointed New York state industrial commissioner to succeed Elmer F. Andrews, recently named administrator of the Federal Fair Labor Standards act.

Craig Wood, Johnny Revolta and Sid Brews

Trio of well-known tournament golfers, left to right, Craig Wood of Deal, N. J.; Johnny Revolta of Chicago, and Sid Brews of South Africa check their scores in Cleveland where they seek $3,000 first prize in the $10,000 Cleveland open golf tourney.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wynn on honeymoon

When this picture was taken of Ed Wynn, well-known comedian, and his beautiful bride, Frieda Mierse, they were a happy honeymoon couple, but their romance ended with the announcement of the blond beauty that she was divorcing her husband because she wanted "galety and life" and desired children of her own.

Temporarily blinded, Sara Allen (above), beautiful Folies girl, was rushed from New York to Chicago, where eye specialists prepared for an operation. The beauty's second marriage to Don Watt, orchestra leader, was halted by her sudden illness.

Mystery shrouds the death of Mrs. C. A. Nash, wife of a utilities executive of Davenport, Ia., who was found slain in her home, where she was found near that of her 14-year-old son. Her husband discovered the tragedy when he returned from a business trip to Omaha.

Cochrane hailed at airport

Loyal admirers of Mickey Cochrane were on hand at Detroit airport to bid farewell to the custed manager of the Detroit Tigers when he took the plane for his Wyoming ranch.

Kay Stammers

The title "queen of the courts" might well be bestowed upon stunning Kay Stammers, British tennis star shown on arrival in New York for the national championships at Forest Hills next month.

Father Divine scans shore

Acting as pilot for his heavenly host Father Divine, hailed as "God" by members of his cult, scans the shores of the Hudson through a telescope to catch the first sight of "heaven", a retreat established at Krum Elbow, near the estate of President Roosevelt, for Father Divine and his followers.

Senator Alben W. Barkley holds press conference

An informal press conference on the lawn of his estate near Paducah, Ky., was held by Senator Alben W. Barkley, second from left, following his victory over Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler in the Democratic primary. Mention now is made of Barkley as a 1940 presidential possibility.