

Two Prominent Maids Are Married at Impressive Ceremonies Saturday

Highlighting the week are two weddings of interest in Salem, though those of out-of-town brides. They are those of Miss Elizabeth Looney and Miss Elizabeth Keene, who are prominent in Salem's social affairs.

Cosovich-Keene Vows
Miss Elizabeth Campbell Keene, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Keene of Silverton, became the bride of Mr. Michael John Cosovich, son of Mrs. Mary Cosovich of Astoria, at a beautiful home ceremony read by the Rev. George H. Swift of St. Paul's Episcopal parish of Salem yesterday afternoon at 4:30 at the Keene home in Silverton. Tall baskets of white gladioli, white stock and white zinnias formed the floral setting in the living room bay window, with the outdoor garden greenery as the background. An aisle to the window was formed by white satin ribbons held by little George and Evelyn Powell, children of Mr. and Mrs. George Powell of Portland. Their sister, Sally, opened the door to the guests.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding dress of white mousseline de soie combined with lace. A full tulle veil was caught in simple coronet effect. The veil had been worn by Mrs. Henry Meyers of Salem at her wedding. The bride carried an old-fashioned bouquet of gardenias, bouvardia and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Frances Keene of Portland, sister of the bride, in soft garnet velvet was maid of honor. Miss Margaret Keene, also a sister, and Miss Elizabeth Ruenitz of Portland, in frocks of blue velvet, were bridesmaids. All three attendants carried old-fashioned nosegays of mixed flowers.

Mr. Peter Cosovich, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Mrs. C. W. McCain of Hood River played the wedding music.

At the reception which followed, Mrs. Richard S. Derborn of Corvallis, Mrs. M. C. Woodard of Portland, Mrs. Frank C. Taylor of Seattle and Mrs. C. A. Reynolds assisted in the living rooms.

Presiding in the dining room were Mrs. Henry Pritzloff and Mrs. J. A. Werle. Miss Ruth Ford of Gardiner and Miss Louise Reunitz of Portland assisted. Mrs. Arthur Clifford of Portland cut the wedding cake, and Mrs. George Steelhammer presided at the punch bowl.

For traveling the bride wore dark blue, trimmed in grey fox, and blue accessories. After a short wedding trip to the Washington lake country, Mr. and Mrs. Cosovich will make their home at Three Pacific drive, Astoria.

Miss Looney Weds Mr. Johnson
Autumn colors were chosen for the beautiful wedding of Miss Marion Elizabeth Looney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion D. Looney of Jefferson, when she became the bride of Mr. Clifford Johnson of Preston, Wash., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Johnson of Raymond, Wash., last night at an impressive ceremony at the Knight Memorial church.

The service was read at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of a large number of guests. Rev. H. C. Stover officiated and Miss Ruth Bedford played the wedding marches.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her father, was striking in a gown of white marquisette fashioned with very full skirt extending into a train. The bodice was very full and gathered to the waist and made with long sleeves pointed at the wrist and a V neckline. She wore a finger-tip length tulle veil edged in lace which fell from a Juliet cap of lace and also a face veil. She carried a bride's bouquet of roses and orchids.

Miss Marguerite Looney of Berkeley, Calif., was her sister's maid of honor and wore a gown of green organza with a matching face veil held by a wreath of white flowers. Her gown was designed with full skirt, puffed sleeves and square neckline outlined with ruffled ruffling.

Other attendants were identically designed gowns; Miss Eleanor Looney and Mrs. O. A. Palm of Raymond, Wash., wore rust color, Miss Mildred Hoska of Tacoma and Miss Peggy McKay were gowned in gold. They wore garlands of fall flowers in their hair. Each wore a matching face veil.

The flower girls, Miss Suzanne Murdock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Murdock, and Miss Marilyn Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Deryl Myers, wore Kate Greenway frocks in white with green sashes.

Mrs. Frank Nettleton of Ocean Park was best man for Mr. Johnson. The ushers were Karl W. Hoff of South Bend, Wash., Mr. Raymond Murdock, Mr. James Bean and Mr. Victor Vaughn of Raymond, Wash.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Looney wore a gown of gray lace. Mrs. Johnson, mother of the groom, was gowned in navy blue moire taffeta.

A reception in the church parlors followed the wedding with members of the bridal party receiving the guests. Presiding at the urns were Mrs. W. W. Allen of Mill City and Miss Edith Libby.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Lake Louise and Banff and other northern points. For traveling the bride chose a navy blue wool crepe ensemble fashioned with finger-tip length jacket and lace trim. She wore a navy blue hat with light blue trim and light blue gloves and navy shoes and purse. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will return to Preston, Wash., to make their home where Mr. Johnson is superintendent of schools.

Mrs. Johnson is well known in the Willamette valley, having attended Oregon State college where she was a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority. She later graduated from Bellingham State Teachers' college and for several years has taught at Willapa, Wash. She is one of a prominent Willamette valley family. # Art Center NOTES

By MAXINE BUREN

Interesting indeed are the new things that happen daily at the Salem Federal Art Center, and we're calling it "Federal" today because just yesterday a shipment of 500 lithographs and woodblocks arrived from California as a permanent loan (you know 99 years if you're good) from the government. They represent perhaps $5,000 to the Center and are pieces done by the Federal Art Project in California.

It seems that lithographing is an old art, which almost died. The Federal Art Project designers thought it a good thing to revive, so they did. It gives an opportunity for a wide variance of style, is one of the few forms of printing where the artists can do the work himself, even if he doesn't do the actual printing.

He usually uses a special greasy crayon and sketches his work on a stone. This is all the art work does, the rest is mechanical, but the technique allows much interesting shading and is the artist's own original, in a form that is expensive to reproduce.

These prints certainly show variety, some are daintily colored, figures of dancers or flowers or birds, others are bold in black and white, still others show those squat figures so popular with artists of the day.

The collection represents 25 artists, 16 to 26 examples of the work of each.

The interesting thing about this project is that several of the artists have two or three completely different styles on utterly unrelated subjects. A young man, one Lloyd Wolf has lithographs that show figures in the burlesque show or circus, each is a sort of caricature of the work of other artists, then he has a group of portraits done in a few deft strokes of bold black, and he has industrial scenes and great landscapes. Each shows that he is casting about for the thing he likes, and does best rather than picking out one interest, one style and doing nothing else.

An interesting piece looks at first like an abstract design but on viewing it, one gets the figures of very pleasing workers, digging a ditch.

So much for the lithographs.

Our own local artists are doing things, the guild class has an exhibit hung in one of the hall galleries that is well worth looking at. This class is made up of serious students, although several have never before done any painting, they must come regularly and each day on arrival must know what they plan to accomplish for the day. No wasted time.

Louis Bunce is the instructor, he is the master painter and the members of the class are making their paints, and even framed the pictures, coloring plain wood-on-panels to suit the subjects. They prepare their own canvas too.

They contemplate painting some murals for the schools, another art that has been revived by the Federal Art Project. We'll be looking for the interesting work.

Mr. Lemery was formerly employed at the Walt Disney studios and his picture attracted much attention from the dancers.
