

August Building Permits to Be Record

Previous High Already Tied

More building permits will be issued by the local city building inspector's office during August than in any month in the history of Salem, it was forecast by that office when it was revealed yesterday's issue brought the month's total to 143 and tied the record month of Sept. 1927.

With nine permit days of the month yet to run, a new record is assured.

Thirty-three new structures and 110 repair jobs, the former valuing a total of $47,970 and the latter $27,125, were included in the 143 permits issued so far this month.

FHA Loans Help
That availability of Federal Housing Administration loans has increased permit issues was indicated both by local building concerns and the building inspector's office yesterday.

While city residents are grasping the advantages of these loans, as is indicated by the exceptionally large August permit issue, surrounding farmers are faced with a study of the two distinct types of FHA loans.

FHA officials believe many farm borrowers may find it to their benefit to employ long-term mortgage loans rather than short-term property improvement loans. Principal exception given is the type of farm loan which involves a relatively small expenditure for farm home or building modernization, or construction of minor farm buildings.

Contemplated use of the loan proceeds is the principal factor in determining whether to employ long or short-term financing, since certain types of expenditures are eligible for financing only under the new farm-mortgage program.
