Laughlin, Clemes Back From North

How he slept in the short bunks of the little Aleut people, visited Russian sea otter experiment stations in the Komandorski Islands off the coast of Kamchatka and participated in excavation of several skeletons of the pre-Aleut period, was related in Salem yesterday by Bill Laughlin, Willamette university student who spent three months with the Smithsonian anthropological expedition headed by Dr. Alex Hrdlicka in North Pacific waters.

This was Dr. Hrdlicka's 10th summer expedition to the Aleutian islands and it proved the most successful, with 55 packing cases filled with skeletons of pre-Aleut and Aleut natives, ivory artifacts and other valuable objects collected for the institute in Washington, DC.

Young Laughlin is the son of Dr. and Mrs. S. B. Laughlin of this city. Another tour with Mrs. Hewlett and their grandson, John Leroy, reported yesterday. In that state, he said, crops appeared exceptionally fine and the people were generally optimistic and active.

Iowa, Hewlett found, showed signs of listlessness on the part of its people despite the fact its crops looked good, too. Many of the farms are in the hands of life insurance companies and other loan organizations.

Generally throughout the mid-west Hewlett noted increasing displeasure with the WPA and the new deal.

Social Security Payments $6,254

"The federal government has settled claims with 129 Oregon families under the old-age insurance provisions of the social security act for a total of $6,254.40 during 25 working days of July." Ben O. Lipscomb, manager of the Salem office of the social security board, announced yesterday.

"It is particularly interesting to note," stated Lipscomb, "that the claims certified in Oregon in July represent more than seven per cent of the total number certified in this state since the old-age insurance program of the act became effective on January 1, 1937. This is undoubtedly due to the fact that the average amount to which the worker is entitled has increased as his work credits increase, and also to the spread of better understanding of the system among those who are eligible."

Nip George Aide

Edgar Dunlap
Latest development in the battle of New Deal forces to unseat Senator Walter F. George, running for renomination in the Georgia primary, came when Edgar Dunlap, a George supporter, was requested to resign his post as attorney for the RFC in the state. His resignation was requested by Claude Hamilton, Jr., RFC general counsel, on grounds that Dunlap had campaigned for George, one of those administration forces are out to defeat because he has opposed New Deal measures in the past.

Arguments Filed Against Annuity

"Citizens Retirement Bill" Passage Is Seen as Detrimental

Argument for publication in the measure's pamphlet opposing the so-called "Citizens Retirement Annuity bill," was filed in the state department here late Wednesday by the Oregon Business and Investors, Inc.

The "retirement annuity bill" would levy a two per cent gross transaction tax, the proceeds of which would be used for the payment of old age pensions.

Arguments Listed
The negative argument alleged that approval of this bill would penalize producers, vacate buildings, increase prices, drive customers to purchase outside of Oregon, raise the cost of lumber production, create more unemployment, and turn loose an army of state employees to pry into the affairs of those who receive the pension to see that the money was spent.

The measure pamphlet will be printed prior to the November election.

Nebraska Appears In Good Condition

Nebraska appears to be in the best condition of any of the states between Oregon and Kentucky, County Commissioner Leroy Hewlett, who returned this week from a month's tour with Mrs. Hewlett and their grandson, John Leroy, reported yesterday. In that state, he said, crops appeared exceptionally fine and the people were generally optimistic and active.

Iowa, Hewlett found, showed signs of listlessness on the part of its people despite the fact its crops looked good, too. Many of the farms are in the hands of life insurance companies and other loan organizations.

Generally throughout the mid-west Hewlett noted increasing displeasure with the WPA and the new deal.

Salem Traveler in Paris When France Welcomed England's Rulers

By WALLACE SPRAGUE
Luxemburg, July 24, 1938.
Without doubt I should begin this letter with a description of the week's most colorful event—the count that King of England to Paris for a four-day stay.

At the outset the city was bedecked from one end to another with French and English flags entwined. In the Place de la Concorde there were great replicas of the English royal and the French republican coats of arms. Down the Champs-Elysees were many more flags, and at the Grand Point the fountains were flanked by tall pyramids made of mirrors which reflected flags as well as the leaping water in the fountains. Along the Elysees, where the people could see the king and queen when they entered Paris, guard rails were built along the walks under the trees to keep the crowds back.

The great day came on Tuesday, June 19. Six of us, all Americans, went to the Champs-Elysees station about an hour before the procession was to arrive. We of course found the sidewalks packed with people, but not too crowded for us to walk on south toward the Arche de Triomphe.

Guards Are Everywhere
The king was due at the Gare Bois du Boulogne at 4 o'clock, and was to pass down the street immediately afterward. It was indeed a magnificent Arab cavalcade, with the mounted Dragons who formed the body-guard for the royal car. They came galloping down the street at the double, their polished black helmets blazing in the sun and their black plumes streaming behind. In their midst was the king's car, surrounded as it was by cavalry, and moving at a good speed. Few people saw much of George VI or of the queen who followed in another car.

Glimpses Queen's Hat
I, being several inches taller than the average Frenchman, was able to see over the crowd enough to catch a brief glimpse of the king's face under a field marshal's hat as he passed by. Paul did not see the king, but did see the queen's face while I saw only her white hat. It was all over in five or six minutes except to watch the troops form and ride away.

That same evening we waited

Sub Teacher List Opened for Term

The substitute teacher list for the 1933-34 Salem school year has been opened. It was announced at the superintendent's office yesterday, and new and renewal applications for listings are now being taken. The office each year makes up a list of accredited substitutes for the ensuing fall and spring semesters.

School will open September 12.

until George and Elizabeth rode by on their way to dinner. We stood by the Grand Palais for two hours or more waiting for them to return. At 11, though, we went over by the Seine to watch fireworks from the Eiffel tower.

Now on Way East
In addition to the king we saw most of the usual Paris sights including the Louvre, the Invalides, Madame, the Montmarre after night and others. Since then we have cycled east for two days and ridden on the train for one. Since writing most of the above we have crossed the German frontier at Wasserburg and have come on through Trier to a village on the Moselle. For an hour late this afternoon we rode along a high-way bounded on one side by the soft-flowing river and on the other by steep vine covered hills cultivated to the last inch. Tomorrow we head on toward Koblenz.

Since arriving on the continent we have not used the Youth Hostels which we found very poor and not very clean. The pensions, though, have been excellent at from 25c to 40c a night. Paris was 23c a piece for a fine room.

Budget Group To Cut Figure

$42,063.86 to Be Lopped From Need Estimates of Departments

The city budget committee, which convenes September 6, will have before it the problem of lopping a total of $42,063.86 from requested budget allotments for 1939 in order to comply with the 6 per cent constitutional tax limitation, according to a statement prepared by City Recorder A. Warren Jones yesterday and mailed to each member of the budget committee, along with copies of the skeleton budget.

Estimate Is $310,392.90
Estimated requirements for operating expenses for 1939, as shown in the budget upon which the committee will act, total $310,392.90. From this may be deducted $25,000, representing anticipated receipts from various miscellaneous sources, leaving aggregate requests of $285,392.90.

Maximum amount that can be levied in 1939 under the 6 per cent limitation is $243,328.94.

Estimated Needs
Estimated needs of the heads of different city departments which exceed 1938 appropriations considerably, include: City attorney, by $300; engineering and surveying, by $2350; fire department salaries, by $4980; incidental city expenses, by $1435; jail expense, by $290; police department expense, by $1405; public buildings maintenance, by $625; public printing, by $220; street cleaning and sweeping, $3100 (for new flusher tank and chassis); treasurer's office, $630; new city barn, $22,000.

In discussing the proposed budget Recorder Jones said it was his belief the six per cent tax limitation law greatly handicapped cities whose development and growth are as swift as Salem's.

Members of the citizens' budget committee, which will convene in conjunction with the city council, include: Willis Clark, Ralph H. Cooley, Carl L. Fisher, O. L. Fisher, Jake Fuhre, Glenn Gregg, W. E. Hanson, Roy Harland, Tom Hill, F. B. Keeler, Don Madison, John G. Marr, T. C. Peerenboom, Harold Pruitt and Arthur Welch.

Pamphlet Will Go to Press

Printing of Voters and Measures Booklet to Start in Month

Printing of the combined measures and voters pamphlet, to be issued prior to the November election, will get under way in a month, David O'Hara, in charge of the elections division of the state department, announced Thursday.

The measures section of the pamphlet will contain arguments for and against 13 measures to appear on the November ballot. The measures include:
Referendums—Giving the governor 20 days in which to approve or veto measures passed by the legislature. He now has five days.
Repealing the double liability of stockholders in banking corporations.
Legislators Pay Boost
Increasing legislators pay from $3 to $3 a da, and lengthening the legislative session from 40 to 50 days.
Prohibiting slot machines, pin-ball and dart games and other similar devices.
Initiatives—Directing the legislature to ask congress to call a constitutional convention to adopt the Townsend old age pension plan.
Has Pension Measure
Two per cent transaction tax for the payment of pensions up to $100 a month.
Regulating picketing by labor groups.
Forbidding set gear in the Columbia river and its tributaries.
Providing that all intoxicating beverages shall be sold in state liquor stores.
Repealing certain sections of the Oregon laws prohibiting lotteries.
Providing for purification of Oregon lakes and streams.
